Nixon will give up tapes

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

From our congressmen:

'A visible sigh of relief...'

by BOB LAHEY

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

Police, Sen. Glass behind effort

Support builds to reduce speed limit on McHenry Rd.

by LYNN ASINOF

A citizens' group working for lower speed limits on McHenry Road from Wheeling to Long Grove is gaining support from various segments of the community, including the police department and a state senator.

At a rally Tuesday, Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposing Slaughter Elimination (CORPSE) received a police department pledge for increased police enforcement of speed limits.

"We've been promised increased police enforcement," said Karen Williams, CORPSE media coordinator. She said that in addition to enforcement of the 50-mile-per-hour speed limit, the police department also will watch for illegal passing on the shoulders of the road.

SEN. BRADLEY M. GLASS, R-Northfield, also endorsed the CORPSE efforts to lower speed limits from 50 to 40 m.p.h. along McHenry Road in Wheeling He said he would assist the group wherever possible.

"After meeting with the executive committee of CORPSE, the need for a speed limit reduction to 40 m.p.h. or lower and the installation of stoplights on Old McHenry Road became immediately evident," Glass said Wednesday. "I support fully the efforts of CORPSE and pledge my assistance to them in putting an end to the needless traffic accidents in this area."

Glass said he plans to seek more information on the problem and make inquiries of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation in an effort to expedite the speed reduction.

"These organizations like the department of transportation get tremendous number of calls and letters and they are continually responding to them and they sometimes become hardened to where there is a real need," Glass said.

Mrs. Williams said CORPSE plans to keep Glass informed of all efforts to lower the speed limits, including a meeting scheduled for next week with a representative of the Illinois Highway Division north area office.

Ray Fonda of that office is scheduled to meet with the CORPSE executive committee Aug. 1 to outline state plans for McHenry Road. Residents plan to push for state reductions in the speed limit as well as the installation of traffic lights at Aptakisic Road and the intersection of McHenry and Elmhurst roads.

THE CORPSE GROUP was formed earlier this month after the state lowered speed limits on a portion of McHenry Road from 55 to 50 miles per hour. Residents said this reduction was insufficient, and are now in the process of organizing a campaign for further reductions.

Complaints about hazardous driving conditions along McHenry Road began when the area began to attract apartment and townhouse projects. Three persons were killed in fatal car accidents along the roadway in the last year.

As part of the campaign to lower speed limits, CORPSE will be distributing bumper stickers that urge drivers to travel at 40 miles an hour along McHenry Road. Signs will also be posted along the roadway to urge drivers to travel at a slower speed.

Since the state sets its speed limits according to the speeds drivers travel, the residents hope to get drivers to travel slower, thus allowing the state to reduce posted speeds.

The group is looking for donations to cover the cost of both the bumper stickers and the signs.

Hein got advance word of Jaycees' decision

Wheeling Trustee William Hein obtained advance knowledge of actions taken at a Wheeling Jaycees' secret board meeting by summoning a Jaycee official employed by the village from his job to question him, The Herald has learned.

Hein called public works employe Joseph Chiodo, a Jaycee board member, in from the field July 11, the day after the private Jaycee board meeting and asked about the results of that meeting.

The meeting was called after Plan Comr. Jack Metzger, a political ally of Hein, charged that fellow Comr. Gilbert Monoson cashed Jaycee checks for personal use.

Chiodo, who said he was unaware that the board proceedings were to be kept secret until a full Jaycee chapter meeting that night, said he told Hein the Jaycee board had cleared Monoson of the charges and instead voted to oust Metzger from the chapter.

That night at the full chapter meeting, the board vote to oust Metzger was reversed.

HEIN, WHO SIDED with Metzger in the Jaycee battle, also said he was unaware that the board proceedings were secret. He said that he called Chiodo in from the field to talk about other matters, although he admitted the Jaycee board meeting was discussed.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said trustees are not supposed to deal directly with employes during village working hours. He said that this is the first time he has heard of a trustee calling an employe in from his job, but said he would take action if it happens again.

When the Jaycee board action was made public during a regular membership meeting, no mention was made of the fact that Hein had already learned the results of the secret board meeting.

Jeffery bridge work stalled

No action will be taken on Wheeling's long-awaited Jeffery Avenue bridge replacement until mid-August when bids on an alternate roadway from the Meadowbrook West subdivision will be opened.

The roadway is needed to provide Meadowbrook residents with a way in and out of the subdivision while the bridge is being replaced. Currently the bridge provides the only entrance to and exit from the area, and replacement for flood control will eliminate its use for sometime.

The village board rejected one $94,000 bid, saying it was too expensive for the 450 feet of two-lane roadway needed to connect Manchester Drive with Carpenter Avenue. If the road is built, Village Mgr. George Passolt said it would be maintained as an emergency exit from the Meadowbrook subdivision.

PASSOLT SAID NO decision on whether the project will be delayed another year will be made until the bids are opened. He said the village will then decide whether to rebid the project next year in hopes of getting lower prices or use a temporary roadway through Heritage Park during the bridge replacement.

The cost of using the temporary park road would be considerably less since Passolt said that the route would probably be a gravel road.

The park district has granted the village the right to install the temporary road, although the park officials will have final say on its placement. The district also asked that a permanent pedestrian walkway be installed over the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

The bridge replacement is part of the village's flood-control program. The present village has a center support which acts as a dam during high water condi-

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Bervid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Bervid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

by STIRLING MORITA

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Nixon agrees to give tapes

Nixon would begin "forthwith" to follow the court order instructing him to surrender the tapes immediately to U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

But St. Clair added that the process of reviewing the tapes would be "time-consuming" and gave no indication when the tapes would be turned over for use in the Sept. 9 Watergate coverup trial of six former Nixon aides.

JAWORSKI WEDNESDAY said he believes the trial will start as scheduled and said he would not mind if the White House started turning over a few tapes at a time rather than waiting to surrender them all at once at some later date.

St. Clair said Nixon, by complying with the court order, will be able to strengthen the presidency and the concept of executive privilege in the future. He said Nixon hoped the special circumstances of the case would "not be permitted to cloud the rights of presidential confidentiality" in the future.

"The President has always been a firm believer in the rule of law," said St. Clair.

THE THIRTY-ONE-PAGE court opinion written by Chief Judge Warren Burger said Nixon's claim of confidentiality was outweighed by the rights of the defendants in the coverup case to a fair trial.

"The generalized assertion of privilege must yield to the demonstrated, specific need for evidence in a pending criminal trial," Burger wrote.

The high court said Sirica acted properly in his original April 13 decision ordering Nixon to hand over the material but stressed that Sirica now has a heavy responsibility in handling tapes to be used as evidence for the trial.

Burger's opinion said that although executive privilege is not mentioned in the Constitution, it "is fundamental to the operation of government and inextricably rooted in the separation of powers under the Constitution."

But, it added, "this presumptive privilege must be considered in light of our historical commitment to the rule of law. This is nowhere more profoundly manifest than in our view that 'the twofold aim of criminal justice is that guilt shall not escape nor innocence suffer.' "

THE COURT SAID "neither the doctrine of separation of powers nor the need for confidentiality of high-level communications," make for unqualified presidential privilege of immunity from court rulings under all circumstances.

The opinion reaffirmed the principle that the courts have the last word in deciding what the law and the Constitution mean.

The justices also let stand the naming of President Nixon as a co-conspirator in the Watergate coverup. Nixon had challenged the Watergate grand jury's right to include him as an unindicted co-conspirator, also on the grounds of presidential privilege.

Crane, Young view it all with relief

the impeachment vote in the House of Representatives.

"The Supreme Court has spoken, and it is now up to the President to comply with its ruling," said Young. "I am certain that he will comply. If he does comply, I do not think that the ruling will change one vote in the House."

• U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, said Nixon could help his cause in the House by voluntarily extending the Supreme Court ruling and turning over the White House tapes to the Judiciary Committee at the same time he gives them to U.S. Judge John Sirica, as ordered by the Supreme Court.

"If he voluntarily makes the tapes available to the Judiciary Committee, it might help remove some of the resentment of those who have felt that he has not cooperated with the investigation," said Crane.

• Former congressman Abner Mikva, Young's Democratic opponent in the congressional election in the 10th District, expressed relief that the President had avoided a "most frightening constitutional confrontation" between the Executive and Judiciary branches of the government. But Mikva expressed concern that the President might attempt diversionary tactics to stall the effect of the Supreme Court ruling.

Concerning last night's statement by White House defense counsel James St. Clair that he would immediately begin a "review" of the tapes ordered surrendered by the Supreme Court to Judge Sirica, Mikva said: "There is nothing to be reviewed. Real compliance with the order would be to turn over the tapes tomorrow morning. I am afraid we won't see compliance with the order until the impeachment proceedings are over."

• Betty Spence, Democratic opponent to Crane in the 12th District Congressional race, said she was relieved that the Supreme Court had made it clear that "we are all equal before the law."

Text of Nixon's reaction to court

Text of presidential attorney James D. St. Clair's statement on behalf of President Nixon, responding to the Supreme Court ruling Wednesday on subpoenaed tape recordings:

"I have reviewed the decision of the Supreme Court with the President. He has given me this statement which he has asked me to read to you and this is the President's statement as he gave it to me:

"My challenge in the courts to the subpoena of the special prosecutor was based on the belief that it was unconstitutionally issued and on my strong desire to protect the principle of presidential confidentiality in a system of separation of powers.

"While I am of course disappointed in the results I respect and accept the Court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects.

"For the future it will be essential that the special circumstances of this case not be permitted to cloud the rights of presidents to maintain the basic rights of confidentiality without which this office cannot function. I was gratified therefore to note that the court reaffirmed both the validity and the importance of the principle of executive privilege, the principle I had sought to maintain. By complying fully with the court's ruling in this case, I hope and trust that I will contribute to strengthening rather than weakening this principle for the future. So that this will prove to be not the precedent that destroyed the principle but the action that preserved it."

But McClory still wants tapes given to Congress

by RON NORBERG

U.S Rep. Robert McClory, R-13, second ranking Republican on the House Judiciary Committee, said Wednesday he is "disappointed" that President Nixon failed to mention whether he would surrender 64 subpoenaed tapes of White House conversations to the Judiciary Committee, according to a McClory aide.

Robert McClory

In a statement read Wednesday by his attorney, James D. St. Clair, the President announced he would comply with a Supreme Court order, and turn the tapes over to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, but did not say whether the tapes would be surrendered to the house committee.

Robert Davenport, administrative assistant to McClory, told the Herald the President still has failed "to comply with the judiciary committee's subpoenas," which, he said, might be an impeachable offense in itself.

DAVENPORT READ from an advance copy of a McClory speech to the committee, in which he said; "The President's failure to comply threatens the integrity of the impeachment process itself. His action is a direct challenge to Congress in the exercise of its solemn constitutional right to act by way of impeachment, as the ultimate check on presidential conduct."

McClory's speech also called on the President to make subpoenaed materials available to the committee "at once, and without equivocation, on the assurance that any irrelevant material, particularly those which might relate to national security or other sensitive subjects, would be excised under established procedures."

The speech also said the committee has received none of the 147 tapes it has subpoenaed, and "very few of the documents and materials it has sought."

In a statement released Wednesday afternoon, McClory said the committee should defer any final recommendation to the House of Representatives until "a determination is made as to the availability of the White House tapes."

AFTER HEARING the President's statement, Davenport said McClory would favor maintaining the committee's timetable, which calls for a final recommendation by the end of this week.

Davenport said McClory would be happy to have the tapes available after the committee makes its recommendations, as long as they are received before the House of Representatives votes on impeachment.

Davenport said the only way the committee could enforce its subpoena would be through the threat of impeachment, and added the President "has an obligation to submit the tapes to the committee."

"The president has taken an oath to support the Constitution," Davenport said. "That itself should be sufficient enforcement."

Historic debate: House Committee meets to probe the honor of a U.S. President

THE BEGINNING, as Rep. Peter Rodino raps the panel to order to begin debates on the possible removal of Richard Nixon from the Presidency.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Debating the possible removal of a president for only the second time in U.S. history, the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday night began a lengthy televised process almost certain to result in a recommendation that Richard M. Nixon be impeached.

The subject of debate, a bill of impeachment written by senior Democrats less than two hours before the session began, contained only two articles — charging Nixon with both obstruction of justice and abuse of power. A contempt article that had been contemplated was included with abuse of power.

An informal UPI survey showed members would recommend Nixon's impeachment, possibly by a margin as great as three to one.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., who gaveled the historic session to order at 7:45 p.m. EDT, said of the committee "we are decent men who seek only the truth."

The "critical question" the committee must decide, Rodino said, "is whether the President was deceived by his closest political associates or whether in fact they were carrying out his policies and decisions . . . whether in fact Richard M. Nixon, in violation of his sacred oath of office had used the power of his high office to cover up and conceal responsibility for the Watergate burglary and other activities of a similar nature."

Just 45 minutes earlier, Nixon said he would obey a unanimous Supreme Court decision ordering him to surrender more Watergate-related evidence to the courts. But the committee decided to proceed with its debate without waiting — perhaps many weeks — to obtain that evidence from the court. The committee members had warned that Nixon's defiance of a Supreme Court order would provide another ground for impeachment.

Opening statements by Rodino and ranking Republican Edward Hutchinson of Michigan were followed by the reading of a formal resolution "that the House of Representatives does impeach Richard M. Nixon, president of the United States, for high crimes and misdemeanors."

"We have reached the moment where we are ready to debate resolutions whether or not the committee shall recommend that the House adopt articles to impeach Richard Nixon," Rodino said. "Make no mistake about it, this is a turning point no matter what we decide.

"For more than two years, there have been serious allegations that the President, Richard M. Nixon, has committed grave and systematic violations of the Constitution."

Otto Kerner resigns from bench before reporting to prison

Federal Appeals Court Judge Otto Kerner, the first U.S. judge to be convicted and sentenced while still holding a position on the bench, resigned Wednesday, five days before he is scheduled to begin a three-year prison term. The 65-year-old former governor of Illinois, convicted in a race track bribery case, had been threatened with impeachment in the House of Representatives unless he stepped down voluntarily.

Medical billpadding avoided

Illinois Public Aid Director Joel Edelman announced the state will begin paying doctors and dentists directly for Medicaid services they give the poor. Edelman said the direct payments will eliminate billpadding by middlemen who handle financial matters for doctors doing a high volume of public aid work. The middlemen sometimes kept the extra money without the doctors' knowledge, Edelman said.

Crisis appears to ease on Cyprus, new Greek government the reason

From United Press International

Greece and Cyprus moved Wednesday to end the crisis over Cyprus that toppled military regimes in both countries. The new civilian government of Greece said it recognized deposed Archbishop Makarios as the legitimate president of Cyprus.

The recognition by the new Greek civilian government of Premier Constantine Karamanlis was a complete reversal of the anti-Makarios policy espoused by the Greek military junta, which stepped down Tuesday amid widespread discontent over its handling of the Cyprus crisis it spawned.

United Nations peacekeeping forces reported a fresh outbreak of heavy fighting Wednesday between Greek Cypriot and Turkish troops in the capital of Nicosia and along the new 18-mile Turkish corridor from Nicosia to the Mediterranean Sea.

In Athens, Karamanlis appointed a civilian cabinet a few hours after taking over from the military junta. In one of its first acts on Wednesday, the new Greek government said it recognized Makarios, now in the United States as the legitimate president of Cyprus. Makarios advocates continued independence for the island, which has a Greek Christian majority and a Turkish Moslem minority.

The new Greek government also ordered release of all political prisoners in Greece.

In Washington, the White House said Wednesday that President Nixon has pledge full U.S. support to the new Greek prime minister.

On Cyprus, Glafkos Clerides also was given swift recognition by the U.S. government as acting president of Cyprus. Clerides promised new elections "within the next few months" and said Makarios could run again for president.

George Mavros, new Greek foreign minister and deputy prime minister, said talks with Turkey and Britain on a Cyprus settlement would open today in Geneva.

Mavros said Makarios' return to the island would be discussed at the Geneva talks between the three countries acting as guarantors of Cyprus' 1960 independence from Great Britain.

Senate weakens anti-busing school bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday approved a massive aid to education bill that would give federal courts certain authority to terminate school busing orders.

The measure, which would authorize $25 billion in aid to elementary and secondary schools, passed the Senate on a 81 to 15 roll call vote and was sent to the House, where it faced stiff opposition. The possibility of a presidential veto also loomed because the bill's antibusing provisions were weakened in conference.

The Senate voted 55 to 42 to defeat an effort to send the bill back to a conference committee with orders to accept the House's tougher antibusing provisions.

The tougher House version would have:

- Banned busing a student beyond the second closest school.
- Permitted earlier court cases involving busing to be reopened — no matter how long ago they were decided.
- Instructed the courts to terminate a busing order once a school shows it has complied with integration orders.

The most significant feature of the conference version passed by the Senate was giving the courts discretion to decide when a school has complied.

It also kept the ban against busing beyond the second closest school — but said the courts could overturn it on constitutional grounds — and eliminated the provision permitting old cases to be reopened.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., who led the unsuccessful fight to send the measure back to conference, said the House provisions offered the only real relief to southern schools under old court busing orders.

Madison Square Garden inherits race track liability

Payment made on Marje's back taxes

WILLIAM J. SCOTT

by United Press International

Madison Square Garden Corp. gave Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott a check for $500,000 Wednesday, the first payment on a $5.6 million tax liability the company inherited from racing heiress Marjorie Lindheimer Everett.

Scott received the money on behalf of the State of Illinois after Cook County Circuit Court Judge Thomas C. Donovan approved the terms of payment.

Under the agreement, Madison Square Garden will pay the state $1 million a year for each of the next five years, plus interest, and will immediately release $642,000 that Mrs. Everett had put into a "protest" fund instead of paying her 1972 racetrack taxes.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, a New York conglomerate, inherited the tax liability last year when it bought Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises from Mrs. Everett.

At that time Scott's suit against CTE was being appealed, but the Illinois Supreme Court ruled in his favor last November.

The suit charged that CTE owed the state $5.6 million in back taxes because from 1966 to 1971 it paid too low a percentage on the parimutuel handle at Arlington Park race track.

Scott said in the suit that CTE was able to pay the lower rate by setting up two corporations at Arlington, and paying taxes separately on the parimutuel handle of each.

That arrangement saved CTE millions because the tax rate increases sharply as the total parimutuel handle goes up.

SCOTT said Wednesday the "cozy" arrangement CTE had was approved by the Illinois Racing Board when William Miller was chairman and Otto Kerner was governor.

Kerner's conviction in the racetrack stock bribery case stems from CTE stock he bought from Mrs. Evertt at a bargain price, and favors he did for her in return.

Scott said CTE's tax arrangement "helps put in perspective what the transfer of stock to Gov. Kerner was all about."

Elrod maps own ethics plan

Sheriff Richard Elrod Wednesday countered a nine-point campaign ethics proposal by his Republican opponent, Peter Bensinger, with his own proposal for a five-man ethics board and a limit on campaign spending.

Bensinger, who said he decided to withhold a libel suit against Elrod and Winston Moore, director of the Dept. of Corrections, announced his campaign ethics program Wednesday morning. He hand-delivered a copy to Elrod's office for his co-signature.

The threatened libel suit would have dealt with a televised charge by Moore that Bensinger was involved in a "murder" 10 years ago when his auto was involved in a fatal collision in England. Moore has since said the allegation was "improper." Elrod also publicly apologized for the statements after Bensinger proved he was not held at fault in the accident.

Elrod said Bensinger's program did not go far enough, and Wednesday afternoon proposed the five-man board. Each candidate would select two members, and they would choose a fifth to oversee all campaign activities and statements. Elrod said the board would provide enforcement, something Bensinger's program lacked.

BENSINGER'S code calls for compliance with the new state campaign disclosure act even though it does not apply to county candidates this year; disclosure of all campaign contributors; and compliance with the rules of conduct outlined in the candidates' manual published by the Fair Campaign Practices Committee in Washington, D.C.

Other points promise the candidates will not use electronic surveillance or other spy techniques, that they will fire any staff members who violate the code, that "paper" organizations to hide campaign contributions will not be used and that the candidate will condemn the use of false campaign materials and personal vilification., character defamation, whispering campaigns and libel or slander against the other candidate's personal or family life.

Richard Elrod

Peter Bensinger

Bensinger's code also included a promise not to coerce public employes into doing political work or making campaign contributions.

He said he would follow the codes even if Elrod refused to comply, and would let the voters "act as jury" in November. Bensinger said he is not filing a suit now because he doesn't want the election issues to be clouded by it.

HE SAID HE BELIEVED the campaign should be "waged on the basis of legitimate differences of opinion concerning our government's problem solving and not on personal attacks, smear and innuendo."

Elrod said some of Bensinger's statements were irresponsible. He then said he would disclose his net worth and his income tax statements for the past three years. Those points should be included in the ethics code, he said.

Elrod further proposed that election campaign funds be limited to $200,000. He said his campaign coordinator will try to meet with Bensinger's coordinator to come to an agreement on the ethics issue and the five-member board.

3 named in 'theft by deception'

Temporary court order halts police magazine-ad scheme

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott obtained a temporary restraining order in Circuit Court Monday against the operation of Illinois Police Bulletin and three associates of the publication.

A full hearing on Scott's petition to permanently restrain the Illinois Police Bulletin from operations in the state will be held July 31 in Circuit Court. The three individuals involved in the "theft-by-deception" scheme are Thaddeus C. Toudor, Joseph Blanco and James Calona.

Scott filed suit against the Illinois Police Bulletin Friday. He charged that the bulletin operators misrepresented the publication as an "official" magazine to advertisers in the Northwest suburbs and throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. A runner for the bulletin was arrested July 16 by Buffalo Grove police for attempted theft.

The bulletin and associates are prohibited by the temporary restraining order from moving assets out of state, and from concealing assets.

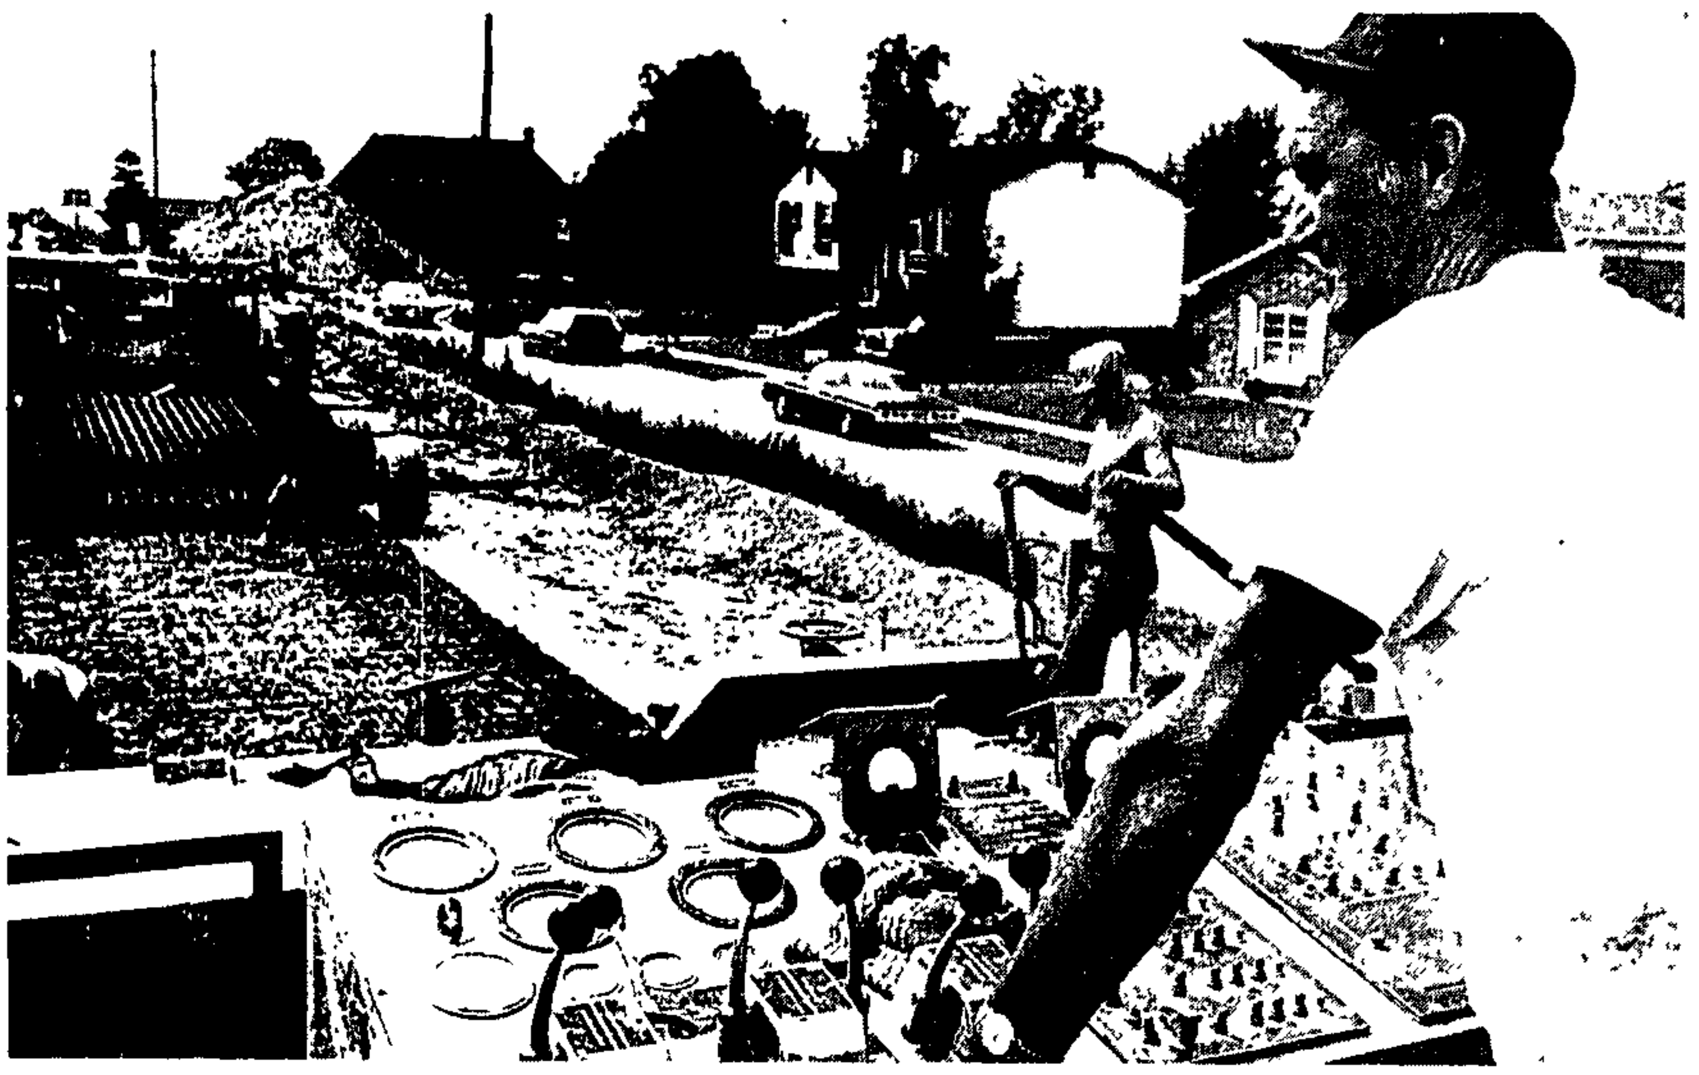
599 S. Wheeling Rd., Wheeling
East of 83, South of 68 (Dundee Road)



CONSTRUCTION CREWS along Dundee Road were busy Wednesday as they prepared to pour concrete along the highway. The activity was a change of pace from what has been the norm for the past two months when work was delayed due to a strike by cement truck drivers.

Paving on Dundee resumes after 2-month shutdown

Paving on Dundee Road resumed Wednesday after about a two-month shutdown caused by the cement and material truckdrivers' strike.

Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said Greco Contractors, the firm doing the work, hoped to put in 1,400 feet of pavement by Wednesday night.

"They've got cement now and should be able to go along pretty well if the weather remains beautiful like it has been," he said.

Sifrer said all four lanes of Dundee Road should be finished this year if construction materials remain available.

The project consists of widening Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, through Wheeling Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights. Before paving resumed, two lanes had been installed from Elmhurst Road to about 300 feet west of Buffalo Grove Road.

In addition to widening Dundee Road, the $3 million project consists of realigning Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads where they intersect Dundee Road. The realignments are expected to reduce traffic congestion.

Finally the project provides for replacing 900 feet of Arlington Heights Road, north of Dundee Road. That area has been in disrepair for more than one year and recently was closed to traffic.

Dundee Road has been under construction since September, 1972. Before road construction began almost 14 months ago, another contractor was installing sewers.

Mrs. Reid hiring to get formal approval tonight

The Dist. 21 Board of Education tonight is expected to approve a contract hiring former school board member Mary Joan Reid of Buffalo Grove as public relations and volunteer coordinator for the district.

The meeting is scheduled for 8:15 p m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Mrs Reid resigned two weeks ago after nearly nine years on the school board to accept the position with the district at an annual salary of $9,000.

Today is the deadline for Dist. 21 residents to apply for the school board seat vacated by Mrs Reid. Letters of interest should be directed to Jack Lane, school board president, in care of the administration building.

The board will interview candidates and appoint someone to serve until the school board election next April within the next 30 days

Other items on the agenda for tonight's meeting include:

- Special report on art education in Dist. 21 junior high schools.
- Bus transportation bids.
- Towel bids.
- Home economics equipment bids.

Besides Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Dist 21 also serves portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Unbuildable soil found at site of sports complex

Soil borings at the proposed site for the Prospect Heights Park District community center-sports complex have revealed several soft spots.

Park Board Pres Max Lyle Wednesday said the district will have the site, where the Lions Park pool is now located, excavated and filled with good soil. Lyle said three or four of the 12 soil borings revealed peat about 12 feet down.

The fill project could cost an additional $25,000 but will probably cost less, Lyle said The community center and renovation of the existing pool is a $650,000 project The site is located on Camp McDonald Road east of Elm Street.

IN OTHER PARK district news, newly appointed Comr. Robert M. Barut, 417 Dorset Ln , was sworn in at Tuesday's park board meeting.

The park board also voted to reduce the price of pool passes by half for district residents. The reduced rate passes, which are available now, will be good for the remaining six weeks of the current pool season.

Pool revenue so far this year was reported at $7,050. This is slightly more than $100 ahead of last year's revenue figure.

Lyle informed the park board of the possibility that the equalizer factor used to determine assessed valuation may be reduced this year from 1.59 to 1.48. Lyle said the district's total assessed valuation, which was $32 million last year, could be reduced by as much as 6 per cent unless there has been enough new construction to offset the reduction.

The tax money the district receives is based on the district's assessed valuation.

'Fire sale' to boost park grid program

Registration for the program will continue through Aug. 3 at the Heritage Park recreation building, 222 S. Wolf Rd There is a $15 registration fee to cover the cost of the game jersey and medical insurance

Following the tour through the village, the football helmet will stop at the K-Mart parking lot on Dundee Road so that youngsters can examine it.

tions, causing a backup of water. By replacing the bridge, the village will eliminate the center support and widen sections of the creek, thus increasing the flow of water.

THE PROJECT, WHICH was first scheduled for the summer of 1972, has been repeatedly delayed. The first delay came when residents from Meadowbrook West objected to the removal of many large trees for the bridge replacement and creek widening.

The village tried again in the summer of 1971 to have plans for the bridge replacement approved. Contractors, however, failed to return bids on the project, and the village had to redraw its plans to correct problems.

The project is expected to cost $132,545, although prices may increase if work is delayed until next year.

You guessed it—Illinois motorists pay more for gasoline

by RONALD NORBERG

A driver leaving the Chicago area on vacation will pay lower prices for a tank of gasoline when he reaches neighboring states, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile Assn.

The AAA's figures show gasoline prices, on the average, are lower in Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio, than in Illinois.

Robert Esserman, executive vice president of the Illinois Gasoline Retailers Assn., attributed the price differences to the tax structures in Illinois and its neighbors.

"Gasoline dealers would pay about the same for their allotments all over the country if not for taxes," Esserman said. "The price difference is due to the difference in taxes."

A driver in Illinois, Esserman said, pays 11.5 cents per gallon in road and sales taxes.

"The other states have lower taxes," Esserman said. "This has to affect prices."

THE AAA'S figures showed that a Chicago driver pays an average of 62.5 cents per gallon for premium and 59.5 cents per gallon for regular gasoline.

A driver in Columbus, Ohio, on the other hand, pays an average of 58.1 cents per gallon for premium and 54.1 for regular.

A random survey of 11 Northwest suburban gas stations, conducted Tuesday by The Herald, showed that gas prices for premium average about 62.5 cents per gallon, 58.7 cents per gallon for regular, and 60.2 cents per gallon for lead-free gasoline.

Some stations are charging considerably more than the average. The Mobil station at Dempster Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines, for example, charges 64.1 cents per gallon for premium, 60.1 cents for regular and 64.1 cents for lead-free.

Ron Fazzio, manager of the station, attributed its prices to a price increase to the dealers from the Mobil Oil Company last month.

"Don't think oil prices are going down," Fazzio said. "We're only getting 92 per cent of the gas we received last July."

JACK BERNDT, manager of Jack's Marathon, 710 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, had the same complaint.

"We're only getting 85 per cent of the allotment we received last July," Berndt said. "We've stopped selling gas for a while. We've only got 800 gallons left. That wouldn't last us a full day."

"People just don't see what's coming," said Norb Huecker, who owns an Arco station at 1 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. "There's going to be another gas shortage."

Huecker, whose station charges 64.7 cents per gallon for premium, attributed his prices to the Atlantic Richfield Oil Company's policies.

"Arco's stayed higher than everybody else," he said.

BUT PRICES in the area have not all been on the upward trend.

A spokesman at Ron's Phillips 66 station, 800 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, said prices were cut back 3 cents per gallon for all types of gasoline Monday.

The station now charges 58 cents per gallon for regular and 62 cents per gallon for premium, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for Johnson's Standard station, Route 83 and Oakton Street, Elk Grove Village, said the station has received exactly the same allocation as last July.

Prices at the station are 62.7 cents for premium, 59.7 cents for regular, and 60.7 cents for lead free.

Against Dwyer School director

NEC board hears teachers' charges

The Northwest Education Cooperative governing board expected to hear charges from at least 11 former and current teachers in the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children at a closed door meeting Wednesday night.

The governing board, made up of representatives from the 10 school districts in NEC, also was expected to hear officials from County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office, who have been investigating the charges. At Herald press time, the board was still in session.

The teachers have charged that students have been unnecessarily physically punished in the program, that Dwyer clinical director John Whipple and other members of the staff are unqualified and that Whipple allows "unprofessional" behavior among staff at the school.

Whipple and his attorney were not invited to the closed meeting. Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges to give him the opportunity to cross-examine those making the charges against him.

See Wandalyn Rice's "Education Today" column, Page 7

OFFICIALS IN Martwick's office said Wednesday they did not expect to make a formal statement following the meeting. They said their concern at this stage of the investigation is that the governing board should hear the charges.

Officials at NEC said that in addition to the teachers making the charges, some teachers who are now teaching in the program and who support it also may ask to appear before the board.

Among the specific charges some of the teachers have made against Whipple is that he does not have an administrative certificate as required of school administrators in Illinois, that he permits teachers to dress inappropriately and smoke in the classroom and that he has "showed off" the behavior of some severely disturbed children to visitors to the school.

In addition, officials from Martwick's office have indicated they want to check the claims that have been filed for state school aid from Dwyer School to see whether the school may have received more money than it was entitled to.

IN ANOTHER development Wednesday, James Travers, acting director for the Handicapped Children Section of the State School Superintendent's office said he cannot comment about the controversy except to say that no questions about the operation of Dwyer have yet been referred to his office.

Travers said Leo Athas, council for the state superintendent's office, has been working with Martwick on the case. He said, "There is the possibility this will be referred to us at some point."

NEC officials had written to Travers to ask his office to review the Dwyer program when Martwick's office first told them of the charges. Travers said Martwick "has statutory authority" to investigate the matter and said, "We don't want to second guess him until he makes some judgment."

The Dwyer School program is for children from ages 3 to 14. School districts sending children to the program are Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21, Prospect Heights Dist. 23, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

For just $375, you can kick the habit

by JUDY JOBBITT

All right all you smoking addicts — there's new help for you. The recently opened Shield Center for Control of Smoking is offering a five-day treatment to stop smoking.

Just plunk down $375, commit yourself to the thought that you'll really try to stop this time and set aside one hour a day for the five-day treatment.

And then plan on returning to the center at 721 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, once a week for the next eight weeks to get support for kicking the habit.

THE OPERATION is an outgrowth of one started in Los Angeles, Calif., about four years ago. James Jones, president of Shield, decided to start a similar operation in the Midwest after the Los Angeles program helped him stop smoking after 30 years of addiction.

The Shield program uses the concept of aversion therapy, a method outlined by behavioral psychologist B. F. Skinner that supplies negative associations with smoking.

Before starting the treatment, the smoker receives a counseling session with Paul Price, director, who discusses the treatment and has the client fill out the pre-treatment questionnaire. The questionnaire asks the smoker's reasons for quitting and a brief medical history.

If the smoker has any problems in his medical background, the center contacts his physician to get approval for the treatment. According to Mitch Kisacky, vice president, many of those seeking treatment must stop smoking because of heart conditions or cancer.

THE FIRST DAY of treatment, the patient receives another counseling session and gets his first taste of the electrode treatment. He is required to bring in two packs of his favorite cigarets that are used during the treatment.

A therapist takes him into a small room and introduces him to the therapy that he will receive for the next five days. The patient sits at a table in front of a mirror and smokes three cigarets while he watches himself smoke. The ashes are piled in a corner in front of him to emphasize that smoking is a dirty habit.

Each time the patient picks up the cigaret, inhales and puts the cigaret down, he receives a mild shock from electrodes placed on his wrist and administered by the therapist. The voltage for the shocks are adjusted for each individual and cannot harm anyone.

THE SECOND DAY of the treatment, the patient goes through "habit saturation." He goes into a second room with three other individuals and sits around a metal tub piled high with cigaret ashes. Everyone is then instrcuted to smoke three cigarets in a row, inhaling for one second, exhaling for five and then inhaling again on the sixth second.

By the third cigaret most people feel nauseous, said Kisacky. All but some of the hard-core five-pack-a-day smokers get nauseous, said Kisacky.

The final three days the patient continues with the counseling and electrode treatment.

Besides the daily treatment, the patient is placed on a restricted diet that prohibits eating sweets and carbohydrates. The patient is required to drink several glasses of fluid daily, exercise and eat a high-protein diet.

Cooperation from friends and relatives also is requested. The patient's family is asked not to smoke in front of him and if they smoke, to keep all cigarets and ashtrays out of sight.

After the five days of negative associations with smoking, about 86 per cent of the patients will have quit, said Kisacky. Once the habit has been kicked, patients are requested to return once a week for the next eight weeks to get positive reinforcement for stopping smoking. The sessions allow patients to discuss their problems and benefits from stopping smoking and offer lectures on subjects related to smoking.

Arrest warrant issued for no-show in court

An arrest warrant was issued Tuesday for a Chicago man who failed to show up in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court on a disorderly conduct charge.

The defendant, Raymond D. Smith, allegedly harassed a Buffalo Grove man and his wife May 30 in the Buffalo Grove Mall parking lot, 1300 W. Dundee Rd. Smith also was charged with criminal damage to property in the incident because he allegedly struck the victims' car with a chain.

Police identified the victims as Richard Clyburn, 773 Grove Dr., Buffalo Grove, and his wife.

Full story of Dwyer School still hasn't been told

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

By now, almost everyone who has even a passing interest in stories about schools has heard about the growing controversy surrounding Dwyer School in Arlington Heights and its program for emotionally disturbed children.

A group of former and present staff members of the school have gone to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick with charges that children have been unnecessarily physically punished, that the program's director and some other teachers at the school are unqualified and that teachers behave in an "unprofessional" manner around the children.

The story surrounding these charges still is unraveling. Dwyer School clinical director John Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges. In the next few days and weeks, more will become apparent and it will be easier to judge the merits of the charges.

HOWEVER, SINCE THE stories began appearing, I have received a number of calls from parents who have children in the program. Many, including a group that brought in a letter that appears on The Herald editorial page today, have been very supportive of the program. Others have said they do not like the program or have had complaints about it.

The parents with complaints who have talked to me have not necessarily pointed to the same charges being made by staff members. One woman, whose son is in the junior high school program, said she was upset by the lack of control staff members have over students. She said she wished the staff in the junior high school program used the paddle as teachers in the elementary school program do.

All of the parents who have called on both sides have been genuinely concerned about their children and about the charges. Many have said that no matter what their feelings they do not want to talk about the charges to the paper if their names would be used because they are afraid of what their neighbors might do if they found out their children were in Dwyer.

The Dwyer School program is, after all, a sensitive one. Some children in the program are severely disturbed, even violent, and the parents are concerned about their privacy.

ONE WOMAN DID come into the office Wednesday, however, saying she wanted to talk openly about the charges and that she had no sensitivity about having her name used. She is Charlene Carlino of Palatine, who has a foster child she eventually hopes to adopt, in the program.

Mrs. Carlino supports the program, but she agreed that the charges that have upset her. She said that when she first read the newspapers she called her child's teacher, Linda Hallman, to ask about them.

"I know that Linda has a paddle in her class," she said, "and when I called her I said I didn't believe in paddling." She also called the caseworker from the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society who has worked with her and her child and talked to her about it.

"My caseworker explained that there are children who are emotionally disturbed who can be benefited by paddling," she said. But she added that she does not believe her child would benefit from paddling and "I wouldn't want to see it happen."

MRS. CARLINO also described the problems that her little girl, who is now seven, had before she was placed in the program. She had come to the Carlinos when she was about three, Mrs. Carlino said, and was at first passive and withdrawn.

Then, as the little girl "came out of her shell," Mrs. Carlino said, she became aggressive and hyperactive. She tried to push her sister down the stairs, abused the family dog and could not be trusted around children who were smaller than she.

In addition, Mrs. Carlino said, she once went looking for the child and found her curled up in a box in the back yard, not moving. She had been that way for at least a half hour. "It was frightening," she said. "We were afraid for a year or two she would never be to the point of being loving."

Mrs. Carlino worked with her caseworker and the school to have the child place in Dwyer and when she finally got the call saying she had been accepted, "I cried," she said.

Since that time, she said, the little girl has made remarkable progress. "Her enthusiasm toward school and the program just couldn't be there if she wasn't getting the kind of education she needs," she said.

"We hope in a year or two she will be in regular school," Mrs. Carlino said. "But she would be in a bad state if there wasn't a program and a teacher like Linda next year. I don't think she's ready yet to cope with a regular classroom all the time."

MRS. CARLINO said there are some things about the school she doesn't like, but added, "There are things I disagree with in the school my older boys go to." She said she doesn't like the situation on the bus that takes her girl to school, where older children sometimes pick on her, but "I can't do much about that."

Mrs. Carlino said she has never met Whipple, the program's clinical director who is the focus of most of the charges. And, she admitted, she can't be sure the charges aren't true, even though she has been in and around the school and met members of the staff.

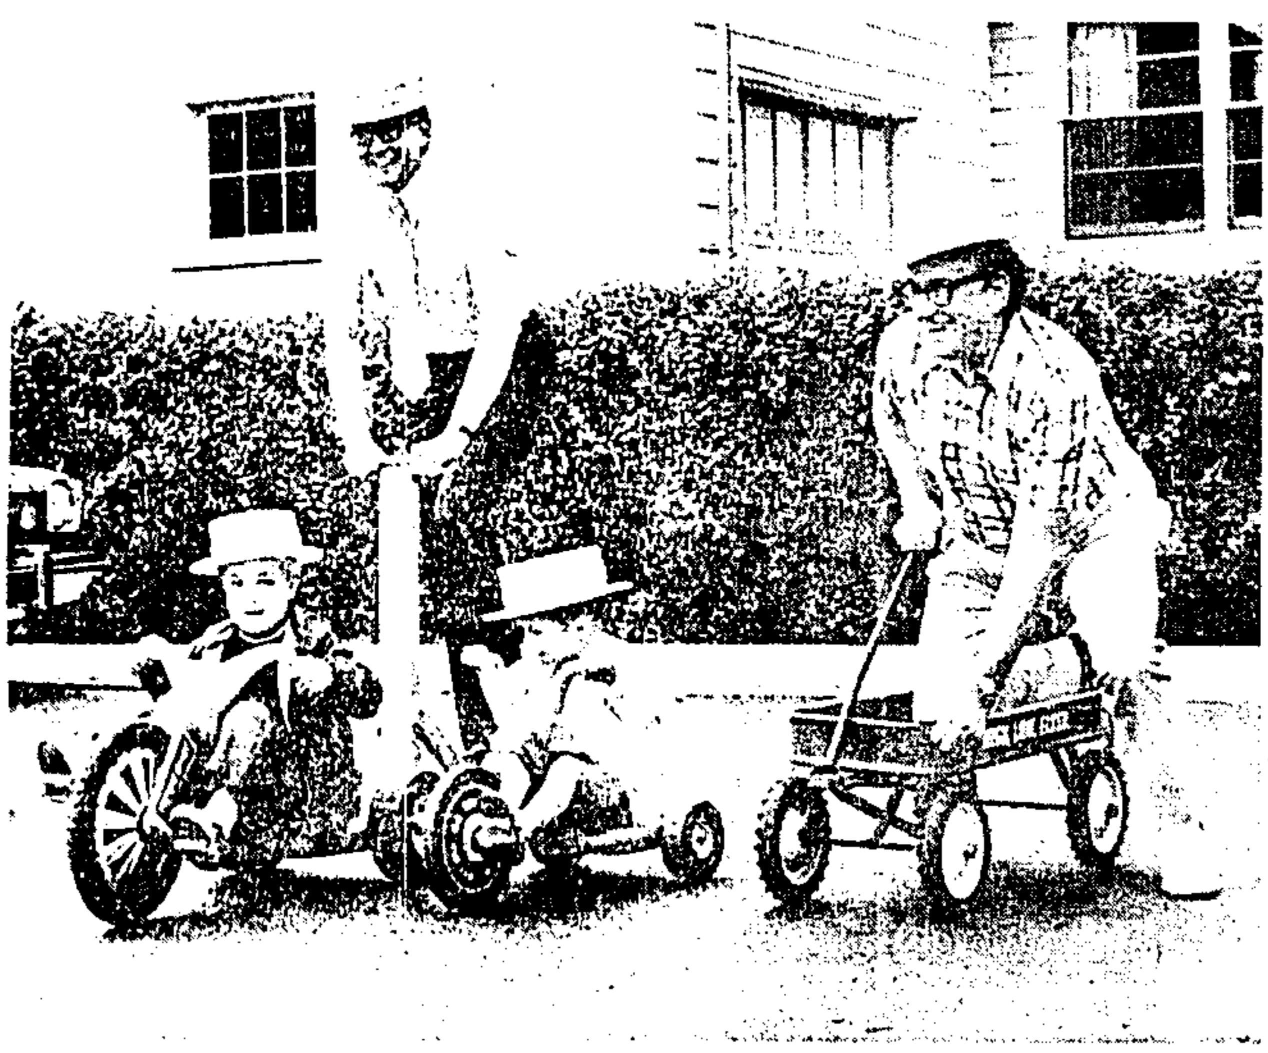
However, she told the story of a recent experience with her child in which they read a "Happiness is" book with Peanuts characters. She asked the girl what made her happy and the child replied, "Having a mother who loves me." It was a moment she said would have been impossible before the girl started at Dwyer.

NOW, MRS. CARLINO is not the definitive expert on Dwyer School, as she admits. And, from talking to her, I have a feeling she has a great deal to do with the progress her little girl has made and even may have made progress without Dwyer School.

But her experience, while not negating the need for investigation of the serious charges that have been made, which may be true, does shed some light on the problems the children, and perhaps the staff, at Dwyer face.

Her comments are offered here in that light.

'Great Race'—for charity



TIME TRIALS for "The Great Charity Race" to be run Sunday by Republicans from Elk Grove and Wheeling townships are staged by four of the youngsters who will participate. Local political figures will race to drum up contributions for Shelter Inc., an agency for dependent children in the Northwest suburbs. Pictured on a pair of the vehicles to be used are Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township GOP committeeman and candidate for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, on the homemade scooter, and Frend Yonkers, Wheeling Township committeeman. Youngsters are Gregory Walton, left, and Peggy Spellman. Kids will race Big Wheels at 3 p.m. for prizes. The main event will follow. Races will be held on Dunton Street near the library.

Agency survey of young users

Black-market methadone gains foothold in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 60 per cent of a group of young drug users here were found to have used methadone purchased in a blackmarket, according to a report by New York City's Addiction Services Agency.

The report, commissioned by the agency and prepared by the Center for New York City Affairs by the New School for Social Research, was based on a survey among 426 young offenders at the Riker's Island remand shelter for youths during the summer and winter of last year.

Methadone is a synthetic form of morphine that is being used increasingly across the nation for the daily treatment of heroin addicts who want to "go straight."

BY SUBSTITUTING the highly addictive drug for heroin and then steadily increasing the dose, the addict finds he cannot get high from shooting heroin. And by maintaining himself on a constant level once a high tolerance has been achieved, the patient does not get high on the methadone, either.

But, when abused, methadone can get a drug user very high.

A recent UPI investigation found many patients on methadone maintenance programs in New York City able to manipulate their doses and take less than is prescribed. Thus they can make do on three or four prescribed doses a week and sell the "take-home" doses they don't use.

Such "diversion," as the trafficking is called, accounted for more than 500 methadone-related deaths in the city last year, exceeding heroin's death toll for the first time.

THE DIVERSION problem, however, soon may be solved. The President's special action office for drug abuse in Washington is funding a series of pilot programs around the country for a new drug called l-alpha-acetly-mehadol (LAAM).

LAAM is a longer-acting drug which can be administered only three times a week instead of seven, thus eliminating take-home doses.

In addition, LAAM, which drug treatment officials in New York say has "an excellent safety record," also may eliminate some of methadone's unpleasant side effects, such as excessive sweating, drowsiness, impotence and constipation.

But until the new long-acting drug is proved effective and made available to all programs, the deadly diversion is likely to continue.

Shock treatment radio show topic

Is shock treatment still being used to cure the mentally ill?

When and why shock treatment (electro convulsive therapy) is used will be discussed on "The Search for Mental Health" Sunday at 8 a.m. on WJJD-FM (104.3). Dr. Zigmund Lebensohn, a clinical professor of psychiatry at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., and head of psychiatric services at Sibley Memorial Hospital talks with Morris B. Squire of Forest Hospital about the pros and cons of this controversial form of treatment.

"The Search for Mental Health" is a nationally distributed public service radio series funded by the Forest Hospital Foundation in Des Plaines.

Forests to be treated with herbicides

by LEA TONKIN

Defoliation: The U.S. forest service will treat some 37,000 acres of national forest lands in the Midwest and East with herbicides in its current maintenance program.

Assistant regional forester Lee Kelley, in Milwaukee, Wis., said the use of herbicides in Shawnee National Forest in Illinois and other properties is a traditional, effective means of controlling unwanted weeds and poison ivy as well as a timber management tool.

Kelley said a complaint about the use of the chemicals is raised in the suit by the Wisconsin Dept. of Natural Resources. The department contends that the forest service herbicide program failed to comply with the provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act at the Nicolet and Chequamegon national forests.

It's true that the chemicals as 2,4D and 2,4,5T are the ingredients of Agent Orange used to defoliate in Vietnam, said Kelley. He contends that objections to the chemicals can be overcome by a check with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's list of chemicals which are registered as acceptable for the specific purpose.

"We've been using this material since 1951, and this is the first year we've had an outcry," said Kelley. He said the chemicals are ingredients in gardening products which any backyard gardener may obtain.

The Shawnee National Forest herbicide program includes ground spraying of 278 acres of land with 2,4D and the selective injection of trees on 530 acres of land with 2,4D and 2,4,5T.

Despite the Forest Service assurance that the chemicals cause no risk to the public, a Sierra Club spokesman raised objections that the use of herbicides would be the prelude to massive introduction of toxic chemicals.

Comment sought on regulation

The Illinois Pollution Control Board reports that the record on R73-17, proposed modifications of the sulphuric acid mist regulation, will remain open for public comment through Aug. 5.

Great Salt Lake rising

The Great Salt Lake has been growing steadily in recent years, causing problems for industries and resorts along its shores. Scientists are worried that the influx of fresh water that made the lake water level rise is also reducing its salinity — and thus its buoyancy and brine shrimp population.

According to Walter Katzenderger of the Utah Geological survey, the brine shrimp population has declined at a rapid rate. The tiny shrimp act as filters purifying the water and devouring algae. Katzenderger said the lake would be overridden with algae and turn stagnant without the brine shrimp.

Companies which now pull purified salt from the lake would have to turn to other means of filtering the water if the quarter-inch long shrimp disappear, he warns.

Resort beaches along the lake have been swamped by the rising water level. Portions of the foundations for a $2.5 million roadway being built from the eastern shore of the lake to Antelope Island have been repeatedly washed away.

The lake reached its highest level in 45 years on June 1 — 4,201 feet above sea level. It was 10 feet higher than the record low of 4,191 feet in October, 1963.

Leon Jensen of the Geological Survey said the lake water level will drop slightly by fall, then start filling up again in its annual cycle. The steady rise of its level in the past decade is part of a cycle that usually continues 15 to 20 years, he said.

Women's group gives $250,000 to ERA drive

A quarter-million-dollar fund raised by supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment within the ranks of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was announced this week at the group's annual convention in Chicago. The session continues through today at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

"A great milestone has been achieved," said outgoing national president Jean McCarey, announcing the results of a year-long fund raising effort. "With the $251,091 we have raised, final plans can now be made that will assure ratification of the amendment and its accompanying equal rights for all persons."

SHE ADDRESSED more than 2,000 representatives of Business and Professional Women's clubs from across the country. The group paid tribute to retiring congresswoman Martha Griffiths of Michigan. Mrs. Griffiths was the author and co-sponsor of the ERA legislation in congress. The BPW fund was established following her recommendation that funds are needed for ratification of the amendment.

"We will ratify. We have only five states to go and we are going to get those states," said Mrs. Griffiths. "Today there are more women voting than men voting in every district throughout America. We need only help women in those districts understand what ERA will do for them and the amendment will be ratified."

Backgammon

Poker instincts often pay off here

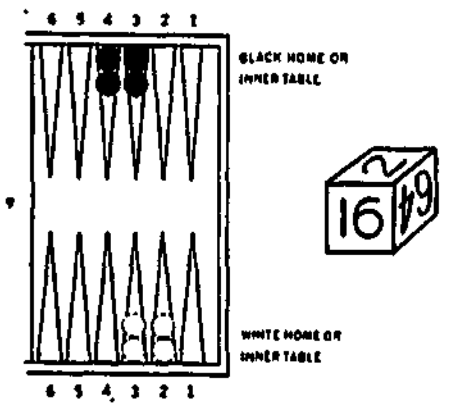
by OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

(Ninth of a Series)

The additional element in backgammon that makes it an exciting game is the doubling cube, a die-sized counter with 2, 4, 8, 16, 32 and 64 inscribed on its sides. At the beginning of the game it is set in the center of the bar with the 64 facing either left or right.

At any time during the game and before he rolls the dice; a player may double the stakes. Of course, he will usually do this when he thinks his chances to win are better than his opponent's. If the opponent refuses to accept the double, the game is over and the opponent loses.

Once a player has doubled, he cannot double again until after his opponent has doubled. To show whose turn it is to double, the cube — with the appropriate number face up — is placed on the side of the table near the person who has the next option to double.



In the diagram, all other men have been borne off. If it's White's turn to double, he probably should.

Because backgammon is a game of changing fortune, occasionally a game will be played for 32 or 64 times the original stake. This is particularly true when wealthy novice players are competing recklessly. When the world's best are fighting it out, however, it is rare that a game is ever played for even four times the original stake.

Whether the game is doubled or not, if you remove all your men before your opponent has removed his first man, you receive a double win. To do this is termed a gammon. If, by some rare stroke of luck or adversary's incompetence, you remove all your men while your opponent still has one or more men remaining in your home table, you receive a triple win. This is called a backgammon.

CUSTOMERS of the Tic-Toc Take Out Restaurant in Buffalo Grove can purchase a 50-cent ticket for a chance to win $1 million in the Illinois State Lottery. Les and Beverly Keith's restaurant was one of 7,000 Illinois establishments awarded licenses to sell tickets.

CONNIE PATRICK of the Illinois Dept. of Revenue bundles stacks of lottery tickets in preparation for the first sale of the tickets July 30.

State employes getting ready for lottery

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — State employes working on the Illinois lottery are laboring through double shifts daily to get ready for the first ticket sales July 30, according to Revenue Dept. officials.

Revenue Director Robert Allphin told newsmen Tuesday the stepped-up production pace will continue until an eight- or nine-week reserve supply of lottery tickets is printed.

"This way, of something comes up to halt production, we won't have to interrupt the actual lottery," Allphin said. "Once we have several weeks in the pipeline, we can cut back production to match each week's sales."

The Revenue Dept. is responsible for distributing lottery tickets each week to sales agents throughout the state.

Rules of the game, set by Illinois Lottery Supt. Ralph Batch, call for drawings every Thursday beginning Aug. 8 when the first weekly "Lotto" winners will be drawn at the state fair. "Lotto" winners will get anywhere from $20 to $5,000 depending on how many numbers on their tickets match the winning numbers.

From the "Lotto" winners will come those eligible to participate in the following week's "Bonanza" game where participants can win from $100,000 to $300,000.

Whenever 30 million tickets have been sold — once every five or six weeks, Batch said — the "Millionaire" game will be played. Winners of this game will be given $50,000 a year for 20 years.

Chicago chosen as headquarters for lottery board

The Illinois Lottery Control Board has chosen Chicago for its headquarters.

The board decided that since three of its five members reside in Chicago, and since there was enough staff in Springfield to publicize the lottery downstate, Chicago was a logical place for the board to have an office.

The board appointed Adele Halkin, 42, as executive secretary to the board. She will be paid $18,000 a year to run the Chicago office and "assist in carrying out the powers and duties of the board."

Mrs. Halkin was one of four applicants for the post, and said she has done no political campaigning.

Ralph Batch, lottery superintendent, attended the board meeting and said nothing would prevent ticket sales beginning on July 30 as scheduled. The first drawing will be Aug. 8.

Batch also said 7,500 agents — 40 per cent of them within Chicago city limits — have been licensed to sell lottery tickets thus far. He said 730 banks throughout the state would act as safekeeping facilities for tickets and the money collected through their sale. — (UPI)

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Big bust causes brain damage...

"Well," said West philosophically, "Anyone can chuck a trick when he has good cards. It takes a real genius to throw one away when you hold a bust."

East had shown no interest at all in the bidding or in the early play. Maybe he had been happy when North and South failed to reach a slam, but we'll never know.

West started out by leading out his three top clubs. South didn't bother to ruff the third lead. He was afraid that trumps might break 4-1 against him and in any event the deuce of hearts that he discarded would have been an eventual loser.

West decided to lead a fourth club. South ruffed in dummy and East couldn't wait to overruff. South overruffed in turn; cashed his ace and king of diamonds and ruffed a third diamond in dummy.

The suit broke and it was a simple matter for South to take the rest of the tricks.

Do you see why West was annoyed? East could have beaten the contract by just discarding a diamond on that fourth club. South would still have to ruff a diamond in dummy whereupon East would have been able to overruff.

Herald opinion

Dist. 21 shift a mistake

A serious mistake has been made by the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Elementary Dist. 21 school board in hiring Mary Joan Reid to coordinate the district's volunteer and public relations programs.

Mary Joan Reid

It hired Mrs. Reid after she resigned from the board nine months before the end of her elected term. In hiring her, the board set an unfortunate precedent and created the appearance of impropriety.

Board President Jack Lane has said he will ask the board to consider a policy prohibiting board members from applying for full-time paid jobs in the district. Such a step might prevent the repeat of this kind of problem.

Lane's statement, however, doesn't change the hiring of Mrs. Reid — and it does not make her hiring an acceptable practice.

Mrs. Reid's job qualifications are not at issue. She may well be, as Supt. Kenneth Gill has said, the most qualified person for the job. The issue is the propriety of a board member applying for a job in the organization which that board member governs — and the chance such a person might have the inside track on such a job.

The Dist. 21 board should have realized that problem, and they should also have realized that nothing they could say about Mrs. Reid's qualifications could dispel the sense of an unfair advantage.

Both the Dist. 21 board and Mrs. Reid could have avoided this criticism by being sensitive to the way the post-Watergate public perceived the resignation and hiring. The maneuver seemed all too close to cronyism, and that is not the kind of behavior which any public official or public body should practice in this or any year.

PATH's commendable job

It's an exciting but often lonely experience to be a father or mother for the first time, even if your son or daughter is a normal, healthy child.

Imagine, then, the added agony for the new parents who suddenly discover that their first child is handicapped. It is a very special kind of agony, and there's a sudden sense of being unable to turn to anyone who can truly help out.

But there is a group in the Northwest suburbs which can help parents with just that problem. It's called PATHS (Parents and Teachers of Handicapped Students) — and The Herald believes that such a local organization deserves special praise.

PATHS is not an arm of government. Rather it's a group of parents and teachers from the Kirk Center in Palatine that helps other adults adjust to the idea and to the practical everyday details of raising handicapped children.

People everywhere are not concerned enough about the welfare of their neighbors. When we see a group such as PATHS helping parents deal with the heartbreaks — and the joys — of raising handicapped children, it's a special sign that neighborliness and love aren't dead at all. PATHS, keep up the good work!

Praises retardate work

Katherine Boyce wrote an article in the Herald on July 18. She interviewed one parent of a retarded child.

I am concerned how this article will affect parents of young retardates.

True, some of the retardates and their family experience some of the sad situations Mrs. Hartwig faces, but then again there are a great number of retardates and parents who do not have these problems. I have a mongoloid child and I don't feel I made a mistake. He has brought much happiness into our home. He has only been in the hospital once in his life and that was to have his tonsils out. I know many retarded children that are very healthy and have never been in a hospital. I agree with Mrs. Hartwig that P.A.T.H.S. is a good organization, but I joined because it was the parent and teachers group of my son's school, to me it is a parent teachers group working together to see that our youngsters get the best education possible.

I disagree with the article that people don't care. I think once people are aware they care very much. We have several community groups right now that are working very hard for the retardates in our community. We owe these groups a vote of thanks for all they are doing.

Mrs. Hartwig asks, "Can a brain damaged child understand God?" I don't think any of us really do but I have always had faith that He understands us.

Censorship hit

During President Nixon's recent trip to Russia, the television media showed the American TV audience the difficulty they had trying to transmit the news from Russia. Russian technicians literally "pulled the plug," and thus did not allow the news to get out.

Most of us have probably been critical of the American press at one time or another. However, the incident from Russia of news repression showed to perfection how wonderful it is that the press in this country is free.

Dwyer defended

In response to charges made against the Dwyer School program, we, parents of children who attend Dwyer wish to publicly express our support of the program.

The published charges, not as yet substantiated by evidence in a proper public forum, have placed a heavy burden on ourselves and our children. In rebuttal we publicly state that we feel that our children have benefitted from the humane, concerned care and treatment of the Dwyer School Program.

In your June 26 Herald, I read the article on the Rand-Elmhurst-Kensington corner being the most dangerous. I have a question I wish either you or the police could answer for me.

I travel Kensington Road to Route 83 quite frequently, going westbound. Is the left turn lane at Kensington and Route 12 meant for people who want to turn on either 12 or 83 or just turning left onto 12? I always stay in the right lane until after I cross 12, and then go over to the left. However, so many people use it for either one that it is a cause of many near mishaps. Am I right or wrong in thinking that it is for turns onto 12 only?

Mrs. R. Rogers
Mount Prospect

EDITOR'S NOTE: According to Lt. Fred Hedlund of the Mount Prospect police, Mrs. Rogers is correct. Legally, cars wishing to turn south onto Rte. 83 from Kensington Road should be in the center lane when crossing Rand Road. Hedlund said the same situation exists for cars northbound on Rte. 83 that are either turning west onto Kensington or Rand roads.

How do you get yourself into situations like this?

Lindberg for governor?

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

In 1972, George Lindberg wanted to run against Mike Howlett.

He could conceivably get the chance in 1976.

William J. Scott

George Lindberg

Lindberg let it be known before the 1972 election slating by Republicans that he wanted to challenge Democrat Howlett for the post of secretary of state.

He had served three terms in the Illinois House of Representatives, gained statewide recognition as the author of ethics legislation, and he was eager to move up.

His ambition, however, ran afoul of that of Ed Kucharski, then Cook County Republican chairman, who also wanted Howlett's job.

Lindberg, recognizing the relativity of clout within the party, graciously stepped aside and ran instead for election as the first state comptroller in Illinois, which he won handily, while Kucharski achieved oblivion.

The possibility of Lindberg as candidate for governor — where he might encounter Howlett on the other side of the ticket — is enhanced by recent statements by Attorney General William J. Scott indicating that he might not want to be governor after all.

It had been an article of faith in Republican circles that the only question about a Scott bid for the governorship or the U.S. Senate was simply one of timing.

Scott, however, passed up the opportunity — indeed, steadfastly refused it — to run this year against Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson. In a recent television interview Downstate, Scott declared that he is perfectly satisfied with the attorney general's post and thinks he can accomplish more there than in the governor's office.

Scott's reluctance to enter a tough political contest, despite his proven vote-getting ability, is attributed by various Republicans to a number of reasons, none of them very favorable. The most common is that he simply doesn't have the stomach for a grueling statewide campaign without a guarantee of success.

Scott declared that the Republicans hve a surplus of fine gubernatorial candidates, but the only one he singled out was Lindberg.

With Scott out of the picture, there would remain House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest. But to remain creditable gubernatorial material, Blair must first get himself reelected and then retain his stature as the Republican leader in the House.

Many observers feel he will have difficulty in the first instance because of his role in creation of the RTA, and in the second because of animosities he has aroused as speaker.

Lindberg, meanwhile, is going quietly about the business of establishing what looks like a sound and tough-minded system of control over state expenditures. By 1976 it is likely that he will be able to point to a record of saving the state money which will rival the one which has contributed so much to Howlett's reputation as state auditor and secretary of state.

Such a record, combined with his performance in his first statewide campaign, would make him attractive to many Republican leaders. His first statewide campaign proved his attractiveness to voters, something which Blair has not had an opportunity to do.

Blair, nonetheless, would be heavyweight opposition in a primary contest.

What happens on the Democratic side probably depends most on whether Gov. Walker decides to run again. But he too could have heavyweight competition, in Howlett or Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan.

Kissinger getting OK

by STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger appears well on his way to securing the renewed senatorial seal of approval he demanded as the price for remaining at his post.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, investigating whether Kissinger committed perjury in his confirmation testimony last fall, will not wind up its work for several weeks. Kissinger and the man who succeeded him as national security adviser to President Nixon, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, are yet to be questioned.

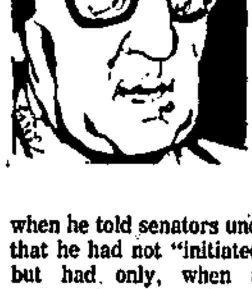
However, it is clear that so far as most committee members are concerned, the verdict has already been reached. It is, in effect, "not guilty of any misrepresentations of overwhelming significance."

At least, that's the way Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., put it last week. He wondered aloud if attacks against Kissinger were not made primarily by those who opposed better relations with Russia. He mentioned Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger in this connection.

Other committee members were even more categorical in their exoneration of Kissinger.

Comments by Fulbright and other senators came after they received a letter from Nixon absolving Kissinger of any blame for initiating wiretaps on 13 officials and four newsmen on grounds of "national security" between 1969 and 1971.

Kissinger's dramatic assertion that he would resign if his "credibility and integrity" were not restored came at a Salzburg, Austria, news conference June 11. He had been brooding four days over questions at a Washington news conference as to whether he had been lying when he told senators under oath last fall that he had not "initiated" any wiretaps but had only, when asked, supplied names of persons who had access to secret information that had been leaked.



Henry Kissinger

The Washington questions were based on FBI documents indicating Kissinger himself had directed the operation.

Nixon's letter rebutted that. The President said Kissinger and others "were operating under my specific authority and were carrying out my express orders."

Diplomatic circles noted that Nixon took quite a while to answer Fulbright's request for a letter on the subject. Some of them noted cynically that the President wrote Fulbright only after a number of leaks from friends of Kissinger — some of which appeared in print — to the effect that the secretary was disgusted and not going to stay around much longer anyway. This appeared to some to have been a tactic to force the President's hand.

In any event, there probably was never much doubt about the outcome. The pudgy diplomatic warrior with the heavy Teutonic accent had become a sort of folk hero in his adopted land. The fact that he does not look like a secretary of state or act like one actually seems to reinforce his credibility in many quarters. His negotiating successes have led many admirers to consider him an indispensable man in an otherwise dispensable administration.

The consensus here is that Kissinger will get a ringing vote of approval from the Senate committee and remain on the job for the time being. What he will do when some of the diplomatic successes go sour, as some always do, is another matter and one which may not arise for some time.

Although most park districts sponsor sports and activities, carrying accident insurance is the exception, not the rule

A Herald staff report

Only four of the 13 park districts in the Northwest suburbs carry accident insurance, although most sponsor contact sports and other programs that result in numerous serious injuries each year.

"It's just too expensive," said one park district director, Thomas W. Cooper of Mount Prospect. "None of us can afford it."

A Herald survey of park districts revealed that one — Arlington Heights — carries a comprehensive policy covering bodily injury and property damage. Three others carry medical insurance limited to specific programs — Prospect Heights for football, Palatine for hockey and Rolling Meadows for women's softball, boys' hockey and boys' football.

The other nine — Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, River Trails, Salt Creek, Schaumburg and Wheeling — carry no accident insurance except for employes. All 13 are covered for liability in the event they are sued.

AS A RESULT of the general lack of insurance, parents of youngsters who suffer mishaps while participating in organized park district activities are forced to rely on their own health insurance policies or pay the medical bills themselves.

"We advise people in some of the programs like hockey to have some coverage of their own," said Marvin Weiss, director of the River Trails Park District. The Buffalo Grove Park District requires parents to sign waivers of liability before accepting a youngsters in one of its programs.

No accurate count of injuries incurred in park programs or on park property is available, but it is estimated there are hundreds of accidents each year, the vast majority in the scraped knee-bruised elbow category.

Park officials concede, however, several more serious injuries requiring medical attention, such as broken arms and concussions, occur each year. In the last few weeks alone:

- An 8-year-old lost her balance on a high diving board at Civic Pool in Schaumburg and fell, suffering a concussion and a broken wrist.
- Another girl, 9, underwent surgery for internal injuries after slipping off a round ladder rung on a "rocket" slide at Roosevelt Park in Elk Grove Village.
- Six stitches were required to close a gash when a six-year-old boy cut his right knee on a broken tile at the Meadows Park pool in Mount Prospect.
- A girl broke her pelvis bone when she fell from a horse in a Des Plaines Park District program.

ONE OF THE park officials said accidents are "one of the hazards you take when you go to a swimming pool, baseball field or playground. Most of the parents accept it as part of growing up."

Robert Kunkel, parks and recreation director of the Des Plaines Park District, said taxpayers would have to foot the bill if insurance were provided, because an extra charge would be tacked onto program registration fees to cover the cost. Insurance premiums, he said, would be "awfully expensive."

James De Vos, director of the Salt Creek Park District, concurred. "We would have to tax the public" in order to provide accident insurance, he said flatly.

Lorraine Grenvich, an account executive with Frank B. Hall and Co. of Illinois, 230 W. Monroe St., Chicago, which insures 90 Illinois park districts including 10 in the Northwest suburbs, said limited insurance — known as "buffer insurance" because it is intended to head off lawsuits — is available for such programs as baseball, belly dancing, wrestling, swimming and playground activities. As an example, she said, a park district with 5,000 participants (some in more than one activity) would have to pay about $5,000 a year in premiums.

SPECIFICALLY excluded from the policy, however, because of the higher risk of injury, are tackle football, ice hockey and snow skiing. For these accident-prone sports, insurance is available at $150 a team for football players under 10 years of age, on up to $360 a team for 15-year-olds. Insurance is not offered to teams whose players average 19 years of age, Mrs. Grenvich said, because "there's too much of a risk."

The Arlington Heights Park District pays $13,500 a year for its comprehensive liability policy with Federal Insurance Co., said director Thomas Thornton.

Dave Phillips, park superintendent of the Wheeling Park District, discounted the need for accident insurance because most residents are already covered privately and can file claims through their own policies.

However, a spokesman for an insurance company noted that most residents are covered by group insurance plans through their employers, which generally are $50 to $100 deductible. And, he noted, claims run the risk of rates being raised or policies being canceled.

PLAYGROUND activities often can lead to scrapes and bruises for which nine of the 13 park districts are not liable.

BELLY DANCING and other limited contact recreation can be covered by "buffer insurance," intended to ward off lawsuits.

POOL PROGRAMS are not without their casualties. Two youngsters have been injured in recent weeks frolicking in the water.

CHILDREN YOUR GREATEST ASSET?

Are you worried that your child can't read, write or do simple math problems?

Does the lack of morality concern you?

If the answer is yes and you would like an alternative to public schools, consider sending your child to the CHRISTIAN LIBERTY ACADEMY.

The Academy stresses Reading, Writing and Arithmetic in kindergarten and earlier grades. Latin, Greek, Economics, History and Christian Philosophy are among the subjects added in 4th through 12th grade. There will be an Education Seminar given at the school on July 25 at 8 p.m. All concerned parents are welcome. Following the presentation, there will be a conducted tour through the new school facilities.

Harper board to weigh grievance procedure changes

by WANDALYN RICE

The Harper College Board of Trustees has scheduled a closed session today to discuss proposed changes in the faculty grievance procedure.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the college. In addition to the board members, attorney R. Theodore Clark Jr. of the law firm of Seyfarth, Shaw, Fairweather and Geraldson, will attend.

The Illinois Open Meeting Act says that all board meetings must be in public unless they involve land acquisition, collective bargaining, hiring and firing of employes or student discipline cases.

Clark has told the board he believes the meeting on the grievance procedure legally can be held in closed session because it is a matter of "collective bargaining" between the board and the faculty.

THE PURPOSE OF the meeting, according to Clark and members of the board, is to analyze and review the college's grievance procedure and proposals for change in the procedure presented to the board by members of the faculty grievance committee.

ROBERT POWELL

The faculty grievance committee has proposed a change in the procedure to include binding arbitration if a grievance is not settled.

Clark said in a letter to the board that the grievance procedure is covered by the term "collective bargaining" because "it is our understanding that the grievance procedure was previously the matter of collective bargaining between the board and the Faculty Senate."

William Kelly

Shirley Munson

However, Faculty Senate Pres. Robert Powell said Tuesday the grievance procedure "was never the subject of negotiation." Instead, Powell said, the procedure was developed by a faculty-administration committee in the same way that other policies for the college have been developed.

"WE'VE HAD SEVERAL of these committees and as in all committees there is an element of negotiations in that you make compromises, but it's not collective bargaining. If this is negotiations then everything is negotiations," Powell said.

Board Pres. William Kelly said he supports Clark's view that the grievance procedure is properly the subject of a closed session. "I'll be guided by that legal opinion. It's very much a matter of collective bargaining."

Kelly also said, "The faculty has taken a very strong position that this matter is of utmost importance to them. We have to be enlightened about all the issues that are so important to them." He added that a closed session on the issue is important because "collective bargaining is the most obvious case where the board must speak as one voice."

He added that the faculty had chosen to come to the board with proposals for changes in the procedure instead of discussing the problem with the administration. "This is a violation of policy and we're reacting to it in the most open and friendly possible way," he said.

HOWEVER, BOARD member Shirley Munson said, "I'm at the point now where I am not comfortable with this decision. I would like to see this subject covered at a public meeting because I think the Harper constituency would be interested in following it." Mrs. Munson said she had called Kelly to question him about calling a closed meeting on the subject.

Board members Marilyn Marier, Jessalyn Nicklas, Judith Troeller and Lawrence Moats supported Kelly in saying they will rely on Clark's legal opinion. Mrs. Marier said, "There was a legal opinion that we got that this in an allowable thing. I really have to rely on the legal opinion. The minute faculty matters come to the board for negotiations it seems to me to be collective bargaining."

Wheeling surges to gain Paddock Olympics crown

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The eighth edition of the Paddock Olympics wound to a glorious finish yesterday with the Wheeling Park District coming from way off the pace to take the team championship.

The championship was the first for Wheeling and was a surprise to many as the winners were 41 points behind the leader, and eventual runner up Schaumburg, after the first day's events were completed.

Wheeling trailed by two points going into the tug of war, the culminating event of the Olympics. Schaumburg had led most of the way, jumping to an early lead with four individual titles in the tennis competition held Tuesday at Lions Park Recreation Center in Mount Prospect.

The final day, held at the Palatine High School track, ran smoothly except for a slight logjam during the standing broad jump that threw the timetable off by half an hour.

Responsible for the smooth workmanship were the co-hosts of the Olympics, Steve Whittier and Rick Pyle plus the many members of their staffs who helped.

Wheeling outdueled Elk Grove in the tug of war for the 10 points that thrust them into a final margin of victory over Schaumburg at 262-254.

Elk Grove finished third with 225 points.

Wheeling fought their way to the title with a convincing show of superiority much like Schaumburg had displayed the day before. Eleven titles were won in the 12 and 13-year-old age groups alone, including a sweep of the shuttlerelay, an event that called for balance in each age group.

In the boys half of that race Dean Tufano took the 13-year-old event for Wheeling. Elk Grove's Mike Guendling halted a sweep by Wheeling, winning the 12-year-old race.

A pair of Palatine boys triumphed in the 12 and 13-year-old 50-yard dash. Steve Trauber won the 12-year-old division with John Slywka winning the 13-year-old bracket.

Twelve-year-old Donna Miloch won the 50-yard dash for Wheeling with Elk Grove's Jackie Mieshiki capturing the 13-year-old race.

Elk Grove's 12-13-year-old girls' softball team had fallen to Arlington the day before, 10-1, in the championship game of that event.

Mary Galow won another event for Wheeling, the standing long jump for 13-year-olds. Her teammate, Maureen Geiger, finished first in the 12-year-old group.

Wheeling competitors won two more individual championships in the older age brackets when the softball throw got underway.

Among the 13-year-olds Cary Larson won the girls' bracket while Dean Tufano took another championship in the boys'.

The organization planned on before the meet and the precautions taken to avoid the confusion of last year were only partly successful.

Specified areas for each park district were set up but their effectiveness was minimal, the threat of disqualification apparently not too much of a deterrent.

There was also some comment concerning the placement of kids in age groups.

But all that was irrelevant as the youngsters enjoyed everything as much as ever.

The ninth running of the Paddock Olympics will no doubt kick off next year at about this time with Wheeling in the unenviable position of defending champs.

The other park districts finished in this order: Arlington fourth with 187, Hoffman Estates fifth at 161, Mount Prospect, 148, defending champion Palatine at 113 and bringing up the rear, Salt Creek with 52 points.

Fantasy becomes reality for writer in Pro-Am event

There you are, racing down the field for the winning touchdown. The crowd's roaring as you touch the end zone. After spiking the ball, you're wisked off the field by exuberant teammates before a standing ovation.

What sports nut hasn't been lost in such a fantasy as he sat before his TV set.

Or how about that homer you dreamed of blasting in the bottom of the ninth? Then there's that clutch basket you sank at the buzzer for the overtime victory. Not to mention your slap shot which turned around a hockey game.

Once, just once, frustrated fans should be allowed to live out a sports fantasy. Some fans make as much money as the big-name professionals, but the applause and cheers can't be bought . . . or can they?

An abbreviated pair of hyphenated words — Pro-Am — is the vehicle. Pro football, baseball, basketball and hockey are too rugged for most fans to play. They really have just two options — tennis and golf.

Amateur netsters and linksters can usually buy their way into a charity sponsored Pro-Am event. For a few brief but memorable moments, they can be volleying or putting with a pro. And — given the proper breaks — they can equal or surpass their pro partners at one point.

Ironically, fantasy and reality go hand in hand. At least that was the case with me last Monday at the Child and Family Services Classic, a Pro-Am golf tournament held at Dominion Golf and Country Club.

Kathy Farrer

Playing with pro golfer Kathy Farrer along with Desi Alley, a four-handicapper, and Dr. John Kelly, a 10-handicapper, was the reality part. The fantasy portion came at different times as you could picture yourself coming through under pressure.

The women pros, coming straight from the United States Women's Open last week, were shooting for some of the $10,000 purse. The amateurs were gunning for trophies, and, in the process, had the chance to sample the strain that's part of the pro tour.

Our foursome came to the 18th green needing a four by me to go eight-under par. Being the highest handicapper of the group with a whopping 20, a legitimate par would be worth a birdie toward our team total.

We already knew that the tourney's lowest score was a 59. Our only hope of capturing one of the top four spots was for me to notch a net three.

An unconsciously solid drive and a conscious second shot that was poorly hit had left me off the edge of the green and about 40 yards from the flag. As we walked up the fairway, the high handicapper's nightmare appeared to be unfolding. Around the 18th were about 20 or 30 people watching us. A gallery!

Pros hunger for crowds and seem to thrive on their presence. It means money in their pockets. It meant a tightening of my stomach.

Somehow, the pitching wedge made contact. It didn't feel just right. I thought I'd hit it wrong, but it was almost perfect. When you don't hit 'em right most of the time, the good shots sometimes feel bad.

Before the ball stopped near the cup, xome modest applause began. When it finally came to rest, one fellow actually yelled, "Nice shot!" The ego trip was on.

One hangup remained — a three-foot downhill putt. No high handicapper likes them, especially when it means winning or losing. Somehow it dropped, leaving me feeling pretty relieved.

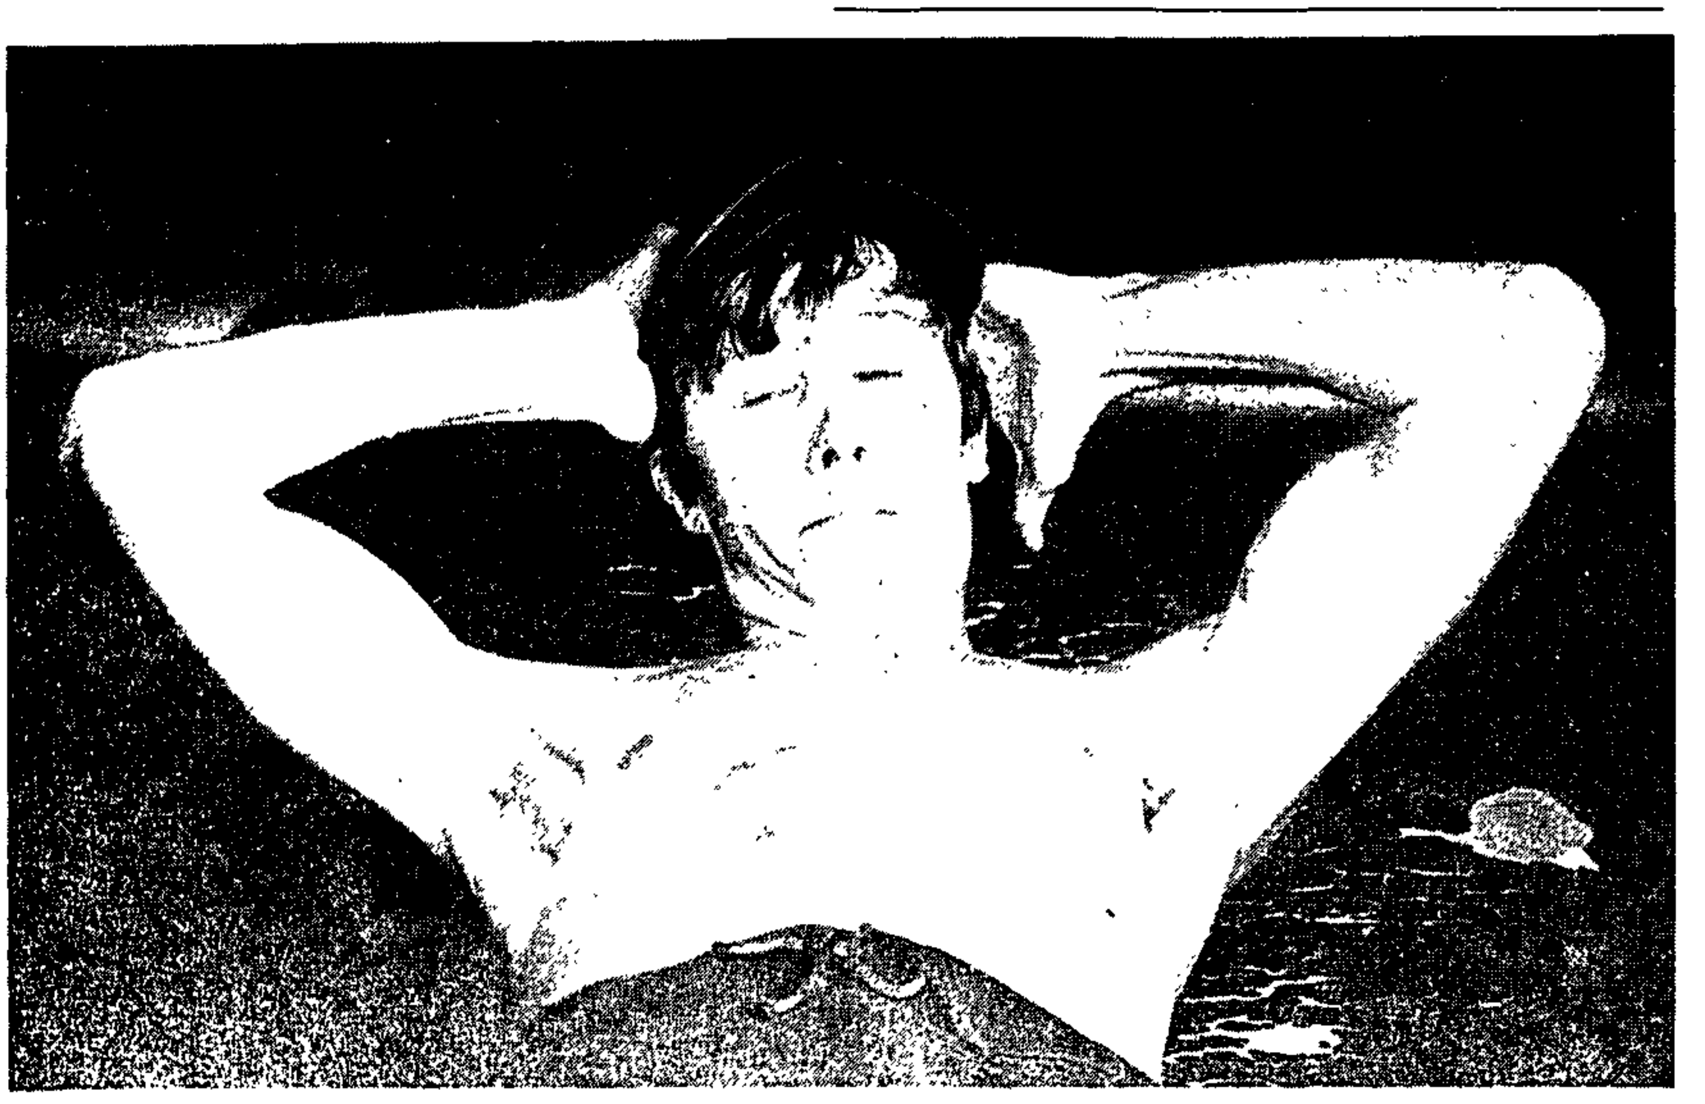
We had finished with a 62 on the difficult par 70, 6,248-yard Wood Dale course. It was good, but was it good enough to win trophies for the amateurs?

At the trophy presentation ceremonies, we found out that three other teams finished with better scores. We were tied with two others for fourth.

By matching scores, starting at the 18th hole and working back, the tie was broken. We had to sweat it out as the master of ceremonies explained that our team and another matched scores as far back as the seventh. It was there that Dr. Kelly sank a super putt of some 50 feet for a gross birdie and net deuce.

The fantasy had finished in fairytale fashion. We had our trophies, some glory and some thrills.

And, at least for me, I was glad to be driving home after the banquet instead of traveling to the next stop on the tour. Earning a regular paycheck with a typewriter is much easier than sinking three-foot putts for a living.



THIS IS RON SHEA, grimacing in his attempt to set a new world situp record. Ron expected to pass the old record of 25,222, set by an 8-year-old, on Tuesday. But his training regimen of 4,000 situps a day wasn't stiff enough and Ron finally quit, nine hours after he started, with 11,127 situps.

Situps show

Ron Shea and his bid for a world's record

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Ron Shea, closing fast on his 5,000th situp with metronomic efficiency, talked easily about why it was harder for him to do the world record total of 25,222 than the 8-year-old kid from Idaho who held it.

The whole thing was a matter of moment.

"Moment," Shea explained, "is an engineering term that means mass times distance. The farther a weight is from a certain point the more force it takes to move the weight.

"In other words, it is harder for me to move my head which is three feet from my butt than it is for a kid whose head is only one or two feet from his butt.

"I think," he said, "if I can make it to 10,000 and still feel physically strong then even though I may feel bad psychologically, that will give me the lift to finish.

"But I need an adult to stay with me from six to eleven tonight so the record will be official."

That last sentence describes the crushing anonymity of what Shea was trying to achieve. Except for a few bored kids who had been collared into counting for him, Shea toiled alone.

There were kids playing basketball and others running about the Wheeling High School gym. Yet everybody ignored him as if his state of mind was contagious. Or they stared at him like he was carrying out some form of bizarre punishment.

"I feel bad trying to con somebody into staying here all night with me," Shea said. "I'd feel like I kept them out of bed if I fail."

Failing is something that Shea couldn't seem to bear. An engineering student at Villanova and a graduate of Wheeling, he appeared disinterested in any form of success apart from doing 26,000 situps, a task which, if completed, would eat up roughly 25 hours of his life.

"You want to be able to do something," he said, "that no one else in the world's been able to do.

"To know I've got enough self control to be able to ignore the pain.

"Self respect," he explained, "has to be gained as much as the respect of your peers."

The physical rigors of that many situps can be minimized through training and special precautions. Shea's muscles are clustered on his abdomen like a half a dozen hard biscuits. He keeps a rolled towel under his feet to elevate the muscles he pulled so they won't hit the floor. He has smeared his buttocks with vaseline to delay the bleeding that stopped his last attempt.

It is the psychological effects that debilitate Shea. The monotony of doing the same motion over and over and over again for hours wears him down.

To counteract this he varies the routine. Sometimes he'll do the situps with his hands behind his head (the world record doesn't require this), putting on his Navy ROTC cap to keep his hands from sliding off his hair.

Shea has a tape player and a gym bag full of tapes such as Beethoven's 1st Symphony, Glenn Miller playing "Chattanooga Choo Choo," and Strauss' "Also Sprach Zarathustra."

During his five minute breaks every hour he sips orange juice or honey and munches on predigested protein supplements.

"I think the metabolic processes adjust to the routine," Shea said. "There is the discomfort of being tremendously thirsty.

"After a while there doesn't seem to be any reason to go on. That's what I have to fight against. I feel like quitting at any time."

Shea has been something of a situp phenomenon since junior high when he set a record of some sort by doing 1,111. He has been training for his assault on the ultimate by doing 4,000 a day. When his last attempt failed at 4,200 he had been training at only a thousand a day. Shea keeps a diary on hand that lists his daily quota of situps and it stretches back for months, revealing that he increased his training methods by 100 situps a day.

But at about five in the afternoon, nine hours after he began and still 15,000 away from the record, Shea knows he is going to fail.

His mother has arrived and is urging him to quit before he damages himself. Shea has to hurl his arms up from the ground to propel his body off the mat. His face is locked into an expression not so much of physical pain as disgust.

When one of the counters says he is only 56 situps into the latest group of 100 he claims he has counted 79. The loss of those 23 situps seems to break him.

At 11,127 he stops. The kid in Idado can relax.

Will he try again for the record?

"No," Shea said. "I'll never have the time to train again."

Did he think he had failed?

"I didn't get the record, did I?"

Wheeling stumbles; tourney begins

by ART MUGALIAN

This must have been how it was when the Titanic slipped beneath the waves.

When the Wheeling American Legion team fell to Park Ridge Tuesday 5-3, those who looked on could only watch in awe as Wheeling slipped to its final resting spot — second place in the Ninth District standings.

Among the onlookers at Wheeling High School was Arlington Heights coach Lloyd Meyer, whose team finished the season on Sunday with a 15-5 league record. By virtue of Wheeling's loss Tuesday, Arlington ended the season in first place, one game ahead of Wheeling.

Gerry Grybash's Wheeling squad had a chance to tie the final standings and force a playoff with Meyer's crew, but a pair of Park Ridge pitchers limited Wheeling's batters to four hits and the dream was over.

Wheeling's Ninth District demise saw them lose six of their last 12 games to fritter away a 3½-game lead. Meanwhile, Arlington Heights was winning 12 of its last 11 to overtake them.

"We just haven't been playing like we were earlier in the year," said Bob Grybash, Gerry's assistant and brother. "There's just no fire left in this team."

So the once hard-hitting Wheeling squad goes into the Legion tournament, which started yesterday, with a final 14-6 record, just a game and a half ahead of third-place Park Ridge.

They trailed Park Ridge right from the beginning Tuesday, as Jerry Romes' Ridgers touched Wheeling starter Mitch Gullett for three first-inning runs. Dan Lowy and Jeff Schwarz rapped out ground singles, Jim Lyons lined an RBI hit to left, and Doug Sellegren followed with a base hit to right field for two more runs.

Grybash's boys cut the Ridge lead to 3-2 in the bottom of the first without getting a hit. A walk and an error set up the first run as George Kaage grounded to first baseman Tom Comyn, who threw to the plate trying to cut down Jeff Brisson. The catcher's tag was late and the speedy Brisson scored. Later in the inning, Ken Morgalski was hit with a pitch with the bases loaded.

In the second, Park Ridge catcher Andy Brynsicka doubled after getting a new life when his foul popup was dropped. He eventually scored on a single by Schwarz.

Kaage singled to drive in a run in the second, but it was the final run Wheeling could get. Park Ridge's Bob Flagler relieved starter Dave Ellin in the fourth and allowed just two hits the rest of the way. The Ridge pitchers were helped by the outstanding defensive work of centerfielder Tony Reibel, who on one occasion took extra bases from Brisson with a fantastic, fence-rattling catch.

Wheeling had the tying runs on base in both the sixth and seventh innings but couldn't move them around. They left 13 runners on base.

All that remains is the Legion tourney. Arlington Heights, as district champ, will get a bye through the tourney and play the survivor. Wheeling will play in one of the games scheduled for today at two Arlington Heights locations. They were to have played Mount Prospect yesterday and Park Ridge was to have played Logan Square. The two losers are to square off today at St. Viator and the two winners are to play at Rec Park.

ANDY ALMBLAD, from the Arlington Heights Park District, advanced to the finals of the boys 13-year-old tennis competition of the Paddock Olympics before losing to Mike Charlier of Palatine.

Golden Bear team in weekend split

Golden Bear Restaurants' team split over the weekend, winning on Saturday and falling on Sunday.

The Bears, playing at home Sunday, lost to Addison 13-0 at the Schaumburg field. The day before they won 5-2 against hosting Elgin.

Although the semi-pro baseball game was scheduled for nine innings, it was called after seven because of the slaughter rule. The Bears could only manage two hits.

A pair of Bears hammered two hits each on Saturday — Pete Kowalski, one of which was a triple, and Jim Kennedy — as they blasted the Elgin Sox.

Dick Stevens went the distance on the mound, striking out 11, walking five and allowing just six hits.

The Bears begin tourney play this weekend with a Saturday game against Oak Lawn. If they win, they must face this same Addison team. The winner will advance to Rockford.

Bicycle feature at Northbrook track

Bicycle Race Capitol of the World 1974! Is it Northbrook, U.S.A., or Montreal, Canada?

Montreal will host the 1974 World Championships Aug. 14 through 25. More than 50 nations will send their finest amateur and professional bike racers to compete in the Track and the Road World events. Entries already received assure the greatest number of riders ever to compete for world titles.

Northbrook's challenge, July 25 through Aug. 8, will feature more than 400 riders, representing all 50 states and many International riders, with competition on the Meadowhill Park Track.

The keen competition for 1974 National Championships and a place on the U S. Team to Montreal has many riders already at Northbrook. Riders from Canada, Philippine Islands, Trinidad and Americans currently holding world championships have raced in recent Thursday night meets, Meadowhill.

A 20-mile Team Race will be the feature event on the 7:30 p m. Thursday, July 25 race meet. A full supporting card of Midget, Intermediate, Junior and Senior, Men's and Women's races, round out an exciting program.

On Saturday, July 27, at 7:00 p.m. more than 150 riders are expected for a race meet staged by the Northbrook Bicycle Club. Out-of-state riders are enthusiastic about this chance to compete against an All-Star field on the Track of The 1974 Nationals.

On July 31 through Aug. 3, the National Amateur Championships for 1974 should be the "best ever Nationals." The quality of the American riders has shown great improvement during the past five years. The number of American-registered amateur riders increased from 2600 in 1969 to over 8,000 this year. More riders, more races and keener competition are helping riders rank with the leaders in world cycling.

On Aug. 6, 7 and 8, several foreign teams are already entered for an International Bicycle Race meet at Northbrook.

Last Thursday, Brian Keast (Vancouver, Canada) turned in some sensational sprints, as he and his partner Don Noll (So. Calif.) won the feature 20 mile Team Race. Eddy Van Guysse and Danny Van Haute (both Chicago riders) were second. Trinidad rider Pat Gallineau (studying in New York) and John Allis (Mass.) earned third place over the popular local favorites Charles Chin and Mark Holt. Del Blundell (Texas) and John Byrnes (Mich.) were fifth.

Another exciting 20 mile Team Race will be the main event at 7:30 p m. Thursday July 25, supported by a full card of Midget, Intermediate, Junior and Senior races for both men and women.

Sprint Races, Point Races and the popular Miss and Out races will be featured on the 7:00 p.m. Saturday, July 27 show, with more than 150 riders expected.

Many riders qualified to represent their states in the Nationals are already at Northbrook, and will remain through Aug. 8. More riders are showing up every day.

The "long team", selected as possibles for the U.S. Team to the World's in Montreal, has begun intensive training on the quarter mile banked Meadowhill Park Track. Performance in the training and the racing, now through Aug. 3, final day of the Nationals, will provide the Amateur Bicycle League Officials, the best way to select a strong team, for The International Meet, Aug. 6, 7 and 8, and for the World's Championships in Montreal, Aug. 14 through 25.

Fiocca, Hagg join Jacobsen in state test

Len Fiocca

Palatine native Len Fiocca fired a one over par 73 Monday at Plum Tree National golf club in Harvard to qualify for the Illinois State Amateur Golf Championship that will be played Aug. 6-8 in Urbana.

Fiocca toured the 6,723-yard course in a 35-38 split for his 73. The field was led by Rockford's Ken Kellaney who shot 35-36—71, a one under par total.

Nearly 100 golfers worked for 27 additional spots available in Urbana's scheduled 120-man field. But a flock of golfers carded 79's at Plum Tree, so many that 41 golfers will go downstate from this northern qualification.

Among those is Art Hagg of Arlington Heights who shot 41-38/79. Schaumburg's Tom Jacobsen has been accorded a bye due to his 149 showing in last year's Amateur.

Other area golfers who played Plum Tree but didn't qualify included Hoffman Estates's James Marko, 38-42—80; Arlington Heights' Brad Stake, 4-39—80; Palatine's Steve Cisco, 41-41—82; and Mount Prospect's Dave Nelson, 44-44—88.

Area ski racers set for Austria trip

Blair Stribley

Wayland Joe

Steve Skobel

Three young ski racers from the Northwest Suburbs, members of the Chicago Metropolitan Ski Council, will train Aug. 5-27 in Stubai, Austria as part of a program under the direction of Peter Lorenz, head coach of the council's Junior Alpine Racing Team.

Blair Stribley, 536 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, Wayland Joe, 300 Wellington Ave., Elk Grove, and Steve Skobel, 610 S. William, Mount Prospect are among the 33 racers, aged 8 to 17, who will train in the Alps.

They trained this past winter at Wilmot, Wis., on the snow and weekly in a gymnasium in Arington Heights, to become competitors at the United States Ski Association Junior Racing meets in the Michigan Upper Peninsula and Wisconsin ski racing areas.

The Austrian camp is the International Invitational Stubai Summer Racing Camp, about 10 miles south of Innsbruck. The training area is on the high glaciers of Stubai at an elevation of 10,000 feet.

Lorenz said the 20-day Stubai program is especially designed for the dedicated racer, patterned after a national ski team training center rather than a vacation camp. The camp will be open to the British Junior Team and applicants from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, as well as to the Chicago Metropolitan Ski Council.

A typical training day for camp enrollees will include running at 6 a.m., breakfast and on skis by 8 a.m. Slope training will continue until 3:30 p.m., followed by another run in the woods and on the mountains, hiking or swimmig. Movies, lectures, discussions and clinics will follow until 9:30 lights out.

Many of the youngsters will spend a week after camp sightseeing in Italy, with tours of Italian cities and some Mediterranean beach resorts.

The Junior Racers are paying camp costs by working at various summer jobs. Girls are baby-sitting and delivering newspapers, boys are bagging groceries, working for landscapers, driving delivery trucks and working in restaurants. All are jogging and getting in good physical condition for the Stubai camp.

Upon return to their homes, the youngsters will begin training and earning money to enter the next training camp at Park City, Utah at the United States Ski Team Training Center in early December. Their goal is to become competitors on the Junior National Team of the United States Ski Association.

Five area teams survive in summer league tourney

When tourney play starts, it's one loss and pack the bags.

Several area baseball teams packed their bags Tuesday in summer league competition, but there were some survivors.

Prospect passed its first test with a snappy 4-2 triumph over Crown on the Knights' home field.

Prospect righthander Scott Rochelle handcuffed Crown on just five hits as the Knights were never headed. Rochelle was staked to a 2-0 cushion early in the ball game and cruised the distance.

Mike Quade paced the Knights' attack with a pair of singles and Rochelle's pinpoint control keyed the victory. Rochelle didn't allow a walk while hurling Prospect into a second-round contest against Palatine.

The four-hit pitching of John Mertins and the rallies started by Matt Splitt and Mike Mayerick helped Arlington defeat Forest View 4-0 at the Falcons' diamond.

Arlington provided Mertins all the runs he really needed in the first inning when they got to Ken Meek for two runs. Splitt walked and Mayerick was safe on an error. Jim Vogts followed with a triple down the right field line, knocking out Meek.

The Cardinals also scored two in the sixth after Split walked, Mayerick singled and Don Stebbins loaded the bases with a single. A fielder's choice by Mertins and a single by Rick Purcell drove in the final runs.

Mertins allowed just one walk in going the distance.

Buffalo Grove took advantage of some shaky pitching by losing pitcher Gary Ruske to defeat Maine North 3-1 in a tournament game at the Norsemen's home field.

Three walks, a hit batsman and a wild pitch added up to two runs for the Grovers in their first. A third inning bases-loaded walk to Tim Tatge accounted for the third marker.

Maine North got its only run in the fifth when an error allowed George Kaufman, who had tripled, to cross.

Bison twirler Dave Smithern checked his opponents on just two hits, while fanning five and passing one in a route-going triumph.

Wheeling used a three-run fifth to kayo host Dundee 5-2 in tournament play.

A two-run single by Glenn Barry followed an RBI safety by Bob Terreberry to do the damage.

Al Newman's sacrifice fly in the first and a run-scoring single by Kevin Fry in the sixth assured Wildcat pitcher Keith Pecka of the victory.

Schaumburg, behind the distance hurling of Jeff Infusino, shut out Rolling Meadows 2-0 in summer league tournament action on the Mustangs' home diamond.

The Saxons got all they needed to win in the fourth inning when three straight hits, the last by Jeff Benson, drove home a run.

Cushioning their advantage in the seventh, the visitors parlayed a walk and a run-scoring double by Gary Frontier to pin the loss on John Carbery.

Hosting Wheaton Warrenville jumped on starter and loser Steve Kliff for six runs in the first three innings and then coasted to a 6-0 victory over Elk Grove.

The winners pounded out nine hits, but were shut off by Jeff Raver over the last three innings.

Of the four hits the Grenadiers had, Dave Millner had two.

Fremd was eliminated, 6-0, by visiting Barrington Tuesday, as Bronco southpaw Rob Simond fired a no-hitter. The Vikings managed to hit only one ball to the outfield off Simond, who will be a senior in September.

Fremd started Scott Orbin, a no-hit hurler in his own right, but Barrington's heavy bats were more than the Vikings could cope with. Orbin, who had zipped Crystal Lake last week, was relieved in the fourth.

Two eaglès highlight golf action in Friday division

A pair of eagles highlighted recent action in the Mount Prospect Friday Twilight Golf league. Bill Gasparino notched his eagle on the 13th hole and Bob Bracken got his on the 17th.

Joe Kubik registered a pair of birdies, on 5 and 9, Bob Harrison birdied the 6th and the 9th, Ron Risso had a birdie at 12, and John Klein birdied 17.

Clayton Court Apartments maintained their slim lead in the team standings over Bruno Pinkos Prudential Insurance and Keefer's Pharmacy. Herb Rose Associates and G & R Masonry also stayed in the thick of the team battle.

Curly Whistler and Bracken tied for the low gross honors with 38 and George Mischevich had low net of 30.

Woodfield stars in state action

The Woodfield Junior Babe Ruth League All-Stars have advanced to the state tourney at Harvey with sectional and regional victories over Schaumburg, Lombard, and Rock Island.

Woodfield lost its first game at Harvey in the double-elimination tournament and were to play in the loser's bracket last evening against Harvey.

The Woodfield team, composed of 13-15 year-olds, started out by defeating Schaumburg, 9-1, behind the pitching of Lou Citro, and besting Lombard, 13-2, as Tim Prokof picked up the win.

In the regionals, Woodfield eliminated Rock Island, also by a score of 13-2, as Citro again took the victory on the mound.

However, in the opening game of the state tourney at Harvey, Woodfield dropped a 3-2 decision to Mount Greenwood. An unearned run cost pitcher Ray Gawron the game, even though the hurler allowed just four hits.

On Sunday, Woodfield came back to beat Rantoul, 5-1, as Citro fired a three-hitter.

Several star in Newcomer action

Ann Anderson took low gross honors with a 50, and tied Marge Melcher for low net at 34 in first flight action of the Arlington Heights Newcomers' Golf League.

Diane Spanier carded three pars, while Anderson, Melcher, Bea Dunn and Dottie Fisher, who had a low putts score of 13, recorded one each.

Second flight's best low gross was 54 by Jan Gustafson, who tied Jeri Buffum for low net with 34. Maxine Buhler had low putts for the flight with 15, as Gustafson, June Emerson and Mary Haynie were each sinking a par.

Third flight play saw Marie Borghese with low gross at 69 and Gini Daley winning low net with her 39. Nancy Horton scored low putts with 19, and she and Daley each were credited with a par.

Sis Shire was a double winner in the fourth flight of play with her 67 and 31 the pace-setting low gross and low net scores, respectively. Sue Coffey had low putts with 16. Pat Stevens netted the only par.

GRAND SLAM HOMER! Brett Fraso rounds third after clubbing a [illegible] Liggett last Friday. The blow gave [illegible] had been down, 4-0, and eventually lost, 7-5. George Vukovich, Jerry DeSimone and Joe Riplinger also scored on the hit.

Team 4 earns Paddock spot

The Buffalo Grove Men's Golf League wound up the first half of their season with team 4 coming from behind to trim team 7 for the first half championship.

The margin of victory for team 4 was a slim half point with the winners coming from 4.5 points back.

Team 4 thus earns a spot in the Paddock Publications Golf Tournament to be held at the Palatine Hills Golf Club on August 18.

Members of team 4 are John St. Germaine and Hank Miller of Arlington Heights and Carl Martin and Ron Avildsen, both of Buffalo Grove.

Arlene Runge tops Associations golf

Rain did not dampen the spirits or hinder the swing of Arlene Runge in the first flight of the Arlington Associates Golf league Thursday. She registered a low gross of 54. Ms. Runge also won the event of the day, "most sixes."

Ruth Ritterbusch had second flight low gross of 57. Cathy Bonard and Lee Yelevich tied for the event in second flight of most sevens with three apiece and scores of 60 each.

Dottie Hardy had low gross score of 68 in the third flight. Mary Ann Schwelgert won the event for the flight with three nines.

JANE BLALOCK, one of the tour's superstars, completes her powerful swing during action at the United States Women's Open at La Grange last weekend. Blalock as well as the other big names found the course super challenging. She finished with a 310 or 22 over par.

'Rhoda' steps out on own in new show

by Frank S. Swertlow

HOLLYWOOD — Valerie Harper is a bit nervous. She is starring in her own show after winning three Emmy awards as Mary Tyler Moore's sidekick Rhoda, and the experience is unsettling.

"I never thought of having my own show," she said in an interview at the Bel Air Hotel. "All I wanted to do is work consistently. Just for an actor to work consistently is Nirvana.

"But now I see something in peoples' eyes and that makes me dig my heels into the ground."

FOR FOUR YEARS, Miss Harper has appeared as Rhoda Morgenstern on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." This year, Rhoda, whose last name means Morningstar in German, leaves Minneapolis for marriage in New York.

"I never thought the role would take off," she said. "I never wanted to be Mary and things were so comfortable on the show, but sometimes you have to make a change."

Miss Harper said much of her success with Rhoda stems from the writers who provide her with a human character.

"It's easy to memorize their material," she said. "It tastes good in your mouth and you can almost walk backward through the lines.

"With bad writing you have to do a lot of tap dancing with reality."

SHE ALSO SAID a great deal of credit belongs to Miss Moore and her approach to the other actors on her show.

"Mary allows others to develop," she said, "and she encourages them to stand out. She never plays star."

Miss Harper, who is married to actor Richard Scheel, has not always been in the running for stardom. She has had to pay her dues on the road to success.

At the age of 17, she was a dancer in the grueling shows at Radio City Music Hall in New York. A year later, she began studying acting. Next came summer stock, industrial shows, Broadway and television, then "Rhoda."

"I really got into the business sort of sideways," she said. "I studied to be a ballerina and then classical dance, but then one day I got a job in a Broadway show where I met a lot of actors and actresses. It was show business; what can I say?"

WHAT IS surprising about Miss Harper is that her voice does not betray any touches of Rhoda's Brooklyn accent. Her speech is clear and regionless.

"When we are in production I find that every once in a while I drop into Rhoda when I am off the set," she said. "But in the first year, I had a lot of trouble learning her accent and had to keep calling friends in New York when I had a difficult passage to read."

Miss Harper wore a wide-brimmed hat that is reminiscent of the film stars of the 1930s and 1940s. She was asked if she might ever become a Lana Turner or Rita Hayworth.

"Oh, no," she said. "Those people were of another age. They were our American royalty, our kings and queens. The movies made them larger than life. When I come into someone's living room my head is no bigger than a bran muffin."

And Mary's starting her own new life

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mary Tyler Moore has gained 10 pounds, reconciled with her husband and never looked better in her life.

Mary and husband Grant Tinker began producing "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" five years ago. It was their only project.

This summer they are producing five prime time series, including "Rhoda," a spinoff from Mary's show starring Valerie Harper.

"We're starting our fifth year and it's just as much fun as the first," Mary said. "A series is like a marriage. There are different levels of enjoyment. Relationships grow and mature.

"My separation from Grant was the best thing that happened to us. When two people spend as much time together as we do they tend to take one another for granted."

Mary and Grant separated last year for several months and reconciled without making a formal announcement.

"I'm his partner, but I'm an actress, and that's all I want to be as far as television is concerned."

New issue to honor Chautauqua shows

The U.S. Postal Service pays tribute to the Chautauqua Institution when it releases the second 10-cent commemorative stamp in the Rural America Series Aug. 6.

First day ceremonies will be held at Chautauqua, N.Y. during the formal observance of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the institution.

Chautauqua was developed by two prominent Methodists, the Rev. John H. Vincent and Lewis Miller, for Sunday School teachers "to utilize the general demand for summer rest by combining daily study with healthful recreation."

The program progressed from lectures, concerts, readings and social entertainments into a program of credit and non-credit adult courses in a variety of interest areas.

About 1902 commercial traveling companies began using Chautauqua as a generic name and were spending three to seven days in towns and villages where lecturers, orators and performing artists were seldom seen. These traveling companies, copying many features of the official Chautauqua Institution, contributed significantly to a nation not yet served with modern communications.

Designed by John Falter of Philadelphia, the stamp will be printed by the Giori and offset presses with 50 stamps to a pane and one plate number.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to Chautauqua Movement Stamp, Postmaster, Chautauqua, N.Y. 14722 enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

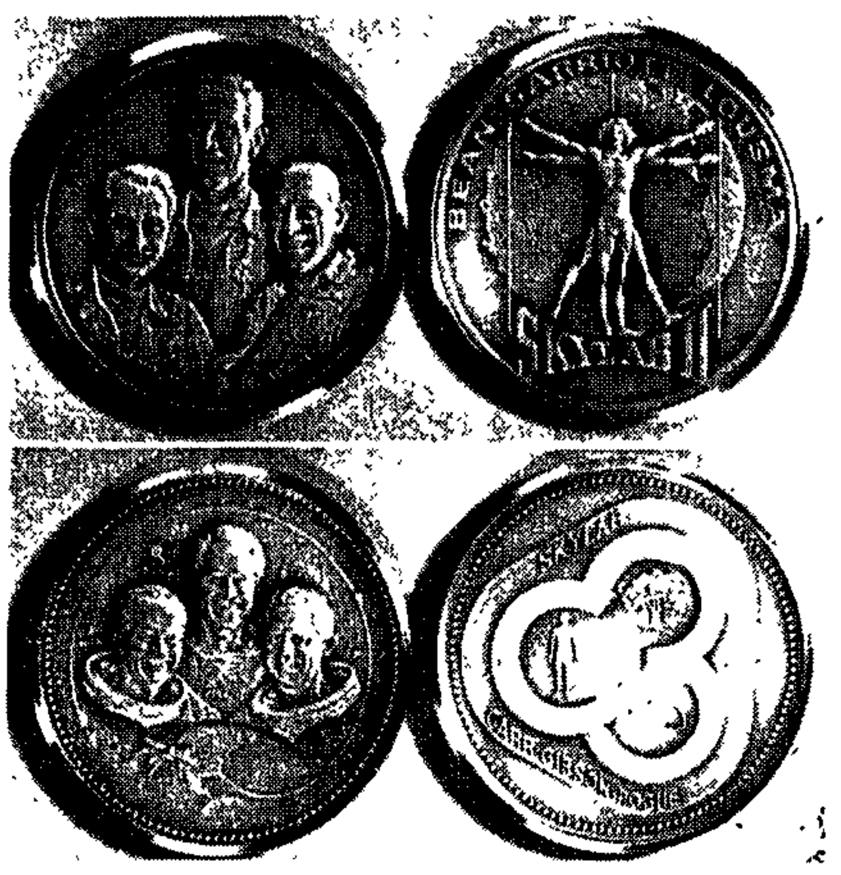
Medallions to commemorate Skylab II, III missions



Collectors, aware of the massive impact of the Lombardo Mint Skylab I medallion, will be happy to know that it's creator, Arnaldo Marchetti, has just completed the series with his Skylab II and Skylab III medals. Undoubtedly, there will be similar sculptures honoring the Russian orbital station experiences.

The obverse of the Skylab II medal depicts the busts of Alan L. Bean, commander of Skylab II; Jack R. Lousma, pilot, and Owen K. Garriott, science-pilot. Marchetti's work has often been described as remarkably detailed, and in this case he has captured the facial characteristics of the astronauts in a most outstanding manner.

Skylab III carries the portraits of its crew members on the observe, in this case Commander Gerald Carr, Edward Gibson and William Pogue, hovering over the planet earth.

The reverse of both medals displays the official crest of each mission.

Bronze copies are $3.50 each and pure silver $14 each. And while they are still available, copies of the famous Skylab I may be had in both bronze and silver at the same price. Interested readers may write: Skylab, The Lombardo Mint, P.O. Box 203, Sherbrooke, Que., Canada.

Overbreathing being caused by anxiety

I am 26 but have had a problem for six years. I have very frequent chest pains, tingling feeling in my hands, nose, mouth and face with breathing attacks where I can't get my breath. I have difficulty in swallowing, like I have a lump in my throat. What makes me breathe extra breaths?

Before an attack I feel funny all over, very lightheaded, and get pale-looking and my eyes feel funny. I have been to a couple of doctors for this, and they tell me it's my nerves. I have also been in the hospital for this and have had every test in the book.

My doctor says I have chest neuritis and my blood pressure gets low, but nobody seems to help me. I have a wife and two great boys to take care of. This is making me miss a lot of work. Please write me. I need an answer.

The doctor says

by Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

Your symptoms probably are caused by anxiety, but I have never seen a case of anxiety helped by not understanding what causes one's aches and pains. There is a reason why you have these problems, and you can do something about it.

First, let me reassure you that this problem is not going to damage your health. It is not an indication of a serious illness. Even so, when you have these attacks they can be disabling.

You have hyperventilation, or simply called over-breathing. When you breathe too often and too deeply, you blow off too much carbon dioxide. This upsets the body chemistry. The disturbed chemistry causes that tingling feeling you describe so well in your hands and around your nose and mouth.

Attacks like this can often cause fainting. The arteries inside the muscles dilate and other changes take place. Blood literally pools in the bottom part of the body. That pale skin is part of the impending faint appearance. The lightheaded feeling is from lack of blood flow to the brain and the chemical changes. It, too, is part of the impending faint.

DIFFICULTY in swallowing with a lump in your throat is also part of the picture of anxiety. I hasten to add that anyone who has a problem swallowing must see a doctor at once, because it can also be caused by serious medical problems. But, with your symptons and examination, you needn't worry abo" that.

I can't do anything about the underlying reason for your anxiety. If you can obtain some help from a psychiatrist, it might be helpful in unmaking what is working on your psyche to cause you to be so anxious. It might help, though, to understand your symptoms.

Now, I would suggest that when you start to have one of these attacks immediately, consciously breathe slowly and shallowly. Do not hold your breath. You can try breathing into a brown paper bag, if you want, for a few minutes. By preventing overbreathing you will stop the symptoms. Try to relax, and you will feel better. And, if you are not in good physical condition, improving your fitness sometimes helps in many ways. Finally, if you use coffee or other stimulants stop them entirely. That includes tea and colas. Also, I think you should stop smoking, if that is one of your habits. Let me know how you do with this program.

NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Fraser-Plescia, Inc. Realtors

The firm of Fraser-Plescia, Inc., was formed by three real estate brokers who feel there is a need in this area for "a person-oriented, professionally staffed firm which feels that each person, be it a seller or buyer, is important and should be treated as such. That is our credo!" noted the owners.

The staff currently consists of four real estate brokers and two real estate salesmen plus a full-time secretary. The staff specializes in working with corporate transferees, acquainting them with the area and assisting them in securing new homes in the northwest suburbs.

As members of MAP Multiple Listing Service, the real estate firm offers all buyers and sellers the entire range of properties available, and exposure to the many MAP offices and professional salespeople working in the northwest suburban area.

Fraser-Plescia, Inc., is the exclusive area member of "Global National Referral Service." If a family is moving out of the Chicago area, the firm will contact a professional Realtor in the town to which they are relocating and give them the required information to properly prepare for their arrival at that locale, thereby making the move easier and less time and effort consuming.

On the other side of the coin, Fraser-Plescia, as Realtors, gets similar referral on persons moving into this area, which enables the firm to speed along the new family's relocation also.

Despite what many persons feel, there is not now, nor has there been, any difficulty in securing mortgage financing for any customer of Fraser-Plescia, Inc., noted the owners. "Very desirable commitments from several leading lending institutions and banks have been made to us based on our past performance and relations with these institutions," Mrs. Fraser said.

She moved to Palatine in 1955 and has been active in real estate, Girl Scouts and Welcome Wagon. She also serves as publicity chairman for the Kenilwicke Homeowners Assn.

Older business buildings getting more attention

Old office and industrial buildings are receiving a fresh appraisal by the nation's real estate sector.

"And when today's tight money situation eases, these existing commercial properties may be virtually worth their weight in gold."

So observes Durand A. Holladay, managing trustee, Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston.

Holladay stresses that in-town buildings, particularly in areas due for revitalization or located on land adjacent to transit lines, will achieve prime status in the near future.

"Once interest rates start down, funds will flow back into the rehabilitation process begun this past winter as an offshoot of the energy crunch," he predicts.

Any projects contemplated by developers, however, will be given careful assessment — consequences of the current inflationary spiral plus long-term effects of energy-related problems — must be analyzed and resolved before any major work will begin.

Holladay outlines some problems facing the nation's construction sector over the remainder of 1974:

- Financing. When the money faucet begins flowing again, lenders will be looking for the well-conceived project. The piecemeal approach is definitely out — planning will be the key.

- Building location. "A crucial consideration. Areas set for rehab in town, for example, will have their property values skyrocket It is in this development that lenders will put their investment dollars," he declares.

- Transportation facilities also important. Fears of any repetition of the past winter's fuel squeeze will spur recycling of older buildings located along transit corridors.

- Other pluses of older properties which will attract the construction sector — an existing fuel supply and some pre-air conditioning features — windows that open and good ventilation. "Perhaps a simple refurbishing is all that is required to turn a run down structure into a hot investment item," Holladay explains.

He notes that due to a unique combination of factors today — the temporarily tight money market, energy-related problems and spot shortages of certain materials — the existing commercial properties are now attaining a prime position.

"The focus of construction activity — indeed, a building boomlet — will be these older properties in late 1974, early '75.

"The real estate sector will prove that what is old is functional — and, with a good remodeling effort, beautiful as well," Holladay concludes.

Apartment dwellers need to save cooling energy, too

If you live in an apartment, you may be able to make as great a contribution toward energy conservation in the operation of your air-conditioning system as your friends and acquaintances in single-family homes, the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute points out.

Whether you have "individually metered" electric current, or the power bill is paid by the building owner; whether the air conditioning is centralized, serving the entire building and controlled by the landlord, or cools only your apartment and is controlled by you, the opportunity for energy conservation is the same — and if you have control of the system, and pay for the energy you use, the possibility of saving some money exists, as well.

Even if you don't pay the utility company directly for the power, you are paying it to the landlord as a part of your rent. If his costs go up, you can be sure that your rent payments will escalate. So, in addition to the "patriotic" aspect of conserving energy, you could be saving money in either event — or at least minimizing the increased costs.

Several types of systems are used to apartment cooling. For optimum control by the tenant, the "unitary" system which air conditions only his dwelling area, and for which he pays the operating cost, appears best, since he actually is able to "see" the saving which results from eliminating waste.

The presence of the blue and white ARI Seal of Certification on "unitary" equipment indicates that the model was designed to meet performance and safety tests specified by the Institute.

It might be advantageous for you, the tenant, to learn what type of central system is in your building. If you don't have a unitary air conditioner serving your apartment only. To find out about this, you should talk with the building owner, the building manager, or building engineer.

Generally, the same conservation measures as those suggested for home owners will apply, such as turning your thermostat to the highest acceptable setting, wearing cool clothing, not blocking the free flow of air from registers, curtailing heat-and humidity-producing activities or limiting them to early morning or late evening, and drawing shades ove wwindows in direct sunlight.

However, if you have your own unitary system, you should also keep your air filter clean, or replace it two to three times a season, before it becomes clogged with household dust and lint. Also, you should have an arrangement with your landlord to have the unit inspected and serviced by a competent service man at least once a year (twice is better).

Air conditioning has become almost a necessity to apartment dwellers, not just because it cools and dehumidifies air and makes up for the lack of cross-ventilation. It also allows windows to be closed against dirty air and street noise and helps the city dweller maintain, in his home, a refuge from the stresses of city living.

McDonald's leases space in Water Tower Place

McDonald's Corp. will open its first downtown Chicago restaurant in the vertical shopping center in Water Tower Place on N. Michigan Ave. The new facility will be located on the fifth level of the shopping complex, along with other restaurants and youth-oriented specialty shops.

The announcement was made jointly today by Fred L. Turner, McDonald's president and chief executive officer, and Thomas J. Klutznick, president of Urban Investment and Development Co. Urban, a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty, is a co-developer of Water Tower Place with Mafco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co.

The Water Tower Place McDonald's will be one of the firm's new Town Houses, a more elaborate version of the traditional outlet. The facility, which will be among the more than 100 specialty stores, shops and restaurants in the seven-story Water Tower place shopping complex, will occupy approximately 4,500 square feet of space. McDonald's presently has nearly 3,000 restaurants, including more than 120 in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Constructed around a grand atrium and five courts, the Water Tower Place shopping center will contain approximately 600,000 square feet of space. Marshall Field & Co. and Lord & Taylor, which together will occupy nearly one-half the retail space, will have entrances on each of the seven shopping levels.

Besides the shopping complex, Water Tower Place will contain two floors of office-commercial space, a 20-story Ritz-Carlton Hotel and 40 floors of luxury condominium residences. The 74-story structure will begin opening in October, 1975.

Sudler & Company, a Chicago real-estate firm, is the leasing and management agent of the Water Tower Place shopping complex.

Council gives six reasons to modernize heating system

Does it pay to modernize your old heating system? Yes, responds the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, and the experts give six reasons for doing so.

1. You gain more living space. Modern heating equipment takes up far less room. For instance, hydronic (hot water) heating baseboard panels fit snugly against the walls at ankle height and allow wall-to-wall carpeting, floor length drapery and furniture to be placed even against the baseboard without fear of scorching or blocking out of heat. Today's boilers are compact, taking up far less space than the old ones, and many have 'built-in' indirect hot faucet water heaters which saves even more space.

2. Permanent improvements such as a newly installed heating system increase the home's market value. Also, if you ever plan to sell the house, mortgage lenders will give it a higher rating because it has a permanent improvement.

3. More comfort within the home is gained because the new hydronic equipment is better. Hydronic baseboard keeps floors and walls warm and allows only a minimum difference in temperature between floor and ceiling. No more hot head — cold ankle syndrome, the sign of a sick heating system.

4. You'll find that you will have reduced fuel consumption since modern heating plants burn fuel more efficiently. Incidentally, you can use any fuel with hydronics, so select the most economical one in your area.

5. Modern heating systems are designed for trouble-free operation. Set the thermostat to the temperature you want. The system will activate when the thermostat calls for heat and turn itself off when it reaches the desired setting.

6. Improvements sell homes faster, and a modern heating system is a strong selling point.

One word of warning from the Council, don't do-it-yourself. Heating is the most important feature in the home with regard to comfort, and to do it right, experience as well as skill is needed. Consult a contractor who can design a well-balanced comfortable system for your home.

Relo Relocation Service enjoys 23 per cent increase for year

Many businessmen and their families would like to be able to predict their own transfers around the country as accurately as the nation's oldest not-for-profit real estate transferral service predicts the growth in the number of transferees it serves.

"Right on target" is how Robert Starck, president of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, describes the 23 per cent increase in the number of transferring families served by RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service during the first seven months of its fiscal year, through May 31.

"Portland, Oregon Realtor Stan Wiley forecast that the country's market for transferee's homes will continue to grow by 20-25 per cent during fiscal 1974 when he took office as RELO national president last November. Since then, referrals of transferees from the 7,000 communities served by our organization's 675 member firms have increased precisely as predicted," Starck notes. Every referral exchanged among members represents a transferred family who receives advance assistance in finding and financing a new home. Help comes from RELO members in both a transferee's original and destination locations, according to Starck.

"Growth in the dollar value of the homes purchased by these RELO referrals has also increased 26 per cent in the current seven month period," according to Starck. The present rise in housing cost, and both the cost and difficulty in obtaining financing, often has to be offset by added work and knowledge on the part of the realtor serving a transferred family. Today we may be as much concerned with a family's lifestyle and personal interests as with the kind of home they want. More and more we have to help transferees sort out their values to assist them in making an intelligent home choice quickly in an unfamiliar area. They need accurate personalized information about neighborhood and community facilities, and answers to many individual questions. RELO has a continuing educational program for members to share new techniques in this kind of service to the transferee's entire family needs."

Middle-aged parents buy suburban condominiums

The beginnings of what may be a new trend in condominium buying have been reported by Norton Turchen, sales manager of The Courtyards of Arlington Heights.

Turchen says that many buyers of condominium homes at the Courtyards of Arlington Heights are middle-aged couples who want to live near grown children, other relatives or friends, who own homes in the same community.

"Typically, the head of a family buying a condominium at The Courtyards is not much over 40 years of age. Although the family may have a married son or daughter living in a home in Arlington Heights, they may also have a child of school age.

"In some cases, these families are moving from an apartment or home in Chicago and are attracted by the location of the Courtyards, only a block from the Chicago and North Western station and equally as close to downtown Arlington Heights for shopping.

"They are less dependent on their automobiles than they were when they lived in the city," Turchen said.

Turchen believes that the preponderance of what he calls "young middle aged" buyers makes buyers in other age groups feel comfortable about buying at The Courtyards.

"We have buyers under 40 and others over 50 years of age. As a result, The Courtyards is a diversified community, without the age separation cometimes found in new developments," Turchen said.

He adds that price is definitely a factor behind sales activity at The Courtyards. One and two bedroom condominium homes with all the amenities of suburban living start at $25,900.

The Courtyards sales office and furnished model are open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The property is located at 346 W. Miner St. at Somerset Ln. in downtown Arlington Heights.

The Courtyards has been developed by C.S.T. Venture and is being marketed by Seay & Thomas, Inc., a member of the IC Industries Real Estate Group.

Antioch office passes million

The Antioch office of Homefinders Realtors has reached one million dollars in residential sales since January 1.

The office reached this figure just before the end of last month, attaining this goal two months earlier than last year.

Managed by Russ Landt, the Antioch office was purchased by Homefinders and opened last January, marking the beginning of Homefinders' expansion in 1974. Another office was opened in Roselle in April, a tenth office in McHenry last month and another office is scheduled to open in Libertyville in August.

The Antioch office of Homefinders is located at 389 Lake.

A.G. Weber & Assoc. honors Florence Hoffman for top sales

Florence Hoffman, an associate realtor of A. G. Weber & Associates, Des Plaines Realtors and Counsellors, has been named by the company's president as "Sales Professional of the Month."

Mrs. Hoffman, during the past month, has participated in real estate transactions of more than $208,000, all of which were residential properties in the Des Plaines area.

According to Weber's sales manager, Mrs. Hoffman will exceed two-million dollars in sales for 1974 at this continued rate.

As a token of the company's appreciation, Mrs. Hoffman will be an all-day tour and luncheon guest at the world's largest atomic facility, the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia.

Florence Hoffman is a member of the National, State and Northwest Suburban Boards of Realtors and a two-year graduate of the Illinois Realtors Institute. Mrs. Hoffman resides in Des Plaines with her husband, Ed, and two daughters.

More and more women entering real estate field

If you buy or sell a home this year, chances are that your real estate sales representative will be a woman.

More than ever, women are playing an increasing role in real estate — the largest industry in the northwest suburban area.

Diane Bruch

Valentine Ericsson

Bunny Polanzi

Beverly Ann Berry

That's the opinion of Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president of Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Realtors, and he has the statistics to back up his statement.

Women first joined Q&T's residential sales staff in the early 1930's after previous service in the rental field. Today, 130 of the firm's 170 sales representatives are women.

Rutledge said their contribution to the company's success is reflected in the following facts:

- Thirty-four women were among the 50 Q&T sales representatives who each sold more than $1 million last year. Virginia Furst of the Winnetka Area Office led the entire staff with sales in excess of $3 million. Bunny Polanzi of the Arlington Height-Mount Prospect area office and Patricia Kleeman of the Lake Forest area office each sold more than $2 million.
- Forty-four women have earned membership in the Quinlan and Tyson President's Circle which cites employes for exceptional achievement.
- Thirty-four women have earned the real estate broker's license and several more are studying for the broker's examination.
- Eighteen women have earned the G.R.I. (Graduate, Realtors Institute) designation. Many other female staff members have already completed one or two years of the three-year program.
- Helen Seefurth of the Winnetka area office leads all active Quinlan and Tyson salespersons with a career sales volume of about $19 million.
- The lifetime sales volume of active women sales representatives still selling for Quinlan and Tyson amounts to more than $358 million.

The Q&T executive also said women have been successful salespersons because they know the area in which they are selling homes — the school sytems, churches, shopping areas, recreational facilities and transportation. "They are residents of the area we serve, and their first-hand knowledge is invaluable to home buyers," Rutledge said.

In addition to holding sales positions, many Q&T women have managerial and supervisory responsibilities. Amelia Way, a vice president of the firm, is manager of the Lake Forest area office. Beverly Ann Berry is assistant sales manager of the Palatine area office, and Jane Merle is assistant sales manager of the Evanston area office.

Four other women employees of Quinlan and Tyson have managerial responsibilities. They are:

- Diane Bruch, manager of the Condominium and Co-op Sales Division.
- Ann Falconer, vice president, corporate secretary and manger of the closing department.
- Valentine Ericcson, "QuesT" Transferee Co-ordinator for the firm's program serving transferred executives.
- Alice Zepp, vice president, corporate secretary and controller.

Heating systems require tune-ups

If your grandmother had wheels, so goes an ancient proverb, she would have been a trolley car. On the other hand, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, if your heating system had wheels, it could make six trips around the world every winter.

Each winter, your home heating system operates almost continuously for nearly 3,000 hours. If you car ran that long, it would travel about 150,000 miles, or six times around the world.

Most cars don't last long enough to go that far — and certainly not without servicing and maintenance. But your heating system usually does. The major cause of breakdowns in heating service is neglect.

The best way to keep your heating system in top condition and prolong its life is to have it 'tuned up' every 150,000 miles — once a year at the beginning of the season. Just by adjusting the burner and removing any obstacles from the chimney, you'll be cutting down on fuel consumption. A few drops of oil in the pump will assure quiet, efficient operation.

By calling your heating contractor early enough, there won't be any interruptions in service on cold nights when you need it most.

Realtors report increase in single family home sales

Sales volume of existing single-family homes for May was 3.7 per cent above volume for the same month last year, reports the National Association of Realtors.

Although this is the second consecutive month in which sales exceeded the level of the same month a year ago, the increase still is less than half of the 7.6 per cent reported in April.

Median cost of an existing home in May was $32,130, compared with $28,790 for the same month a year ago — an increase of 11.6 per cent.

In the north central region May's median-sales price of an existing home was $27,670 as compared to $25,090 for May, 1973.

By price class, 69.8 per cent of existing single-family homes sold in May cost $25,000 or more; 23.5 per cent were in the $15,000 to $24,999 range; and 6.7 per cent, less than $15,000. Figures in the first two price classes follow a long-term trend during which sales in the highest price class have increased, and those in the middle class have decreased.

Data for the National Association's monthly existing single-family home sales report comes from a survey of Realtor boards in representative market areas.

Safeco division headquarters now situated in Woodfield Plaza

The newly-established North Central Division headquarters of The Safeco Insurance Companies is now situated at 1111 Plaza Drive in Woodfield Office Plaza, at the intersection of Golf and Meacham roads, Schaumburg.

Safeco is initially occupying three floors of space as the major tenant in one of two 123,000 sq. ft. eight-story office buildings developed by J. Emil Anderson & Son, Inc. of Des Plaines in its 325-acre Woodfield Park commercial development adjacent to Woodfield Mall — the world's largest enclosed mall shopping center.

James H. Anderson, vice president in charge of sales for J. Emil Anderson & Son, said that Safeco's move into its new offices was completed on schedule and that other tenants will move into the first Plaza building within the next 45 to 60 days. A second office building is under construction and will be ready for occupancy in the fall of this year. The Anderson company is the owner-developer-builder as well as the leasing and management agent for the Woodfield Plaza office project.

Safeco, 50-year-old corporation and the nation's 27th largest insurer, is headquartered in Seattle and offers all lines of insurance coverages through a national network of independent agents.

Plaza financing arranged by B.B. Cohen & Co. firm

Permanent financing of $8.5 million has been arranged by the Chicago-based international mortgage banking firm of B. B. Cohen & Co. for two eight-story office buildings currently under construction. The Cohen firm acted as correspondent for Connecticut General Life Insurance Co.

Each of the two buildings, one of which is to be completed later this year and the other in 1975, will provide 123,267 square feet of net rentable office area. Identical in appearance, the structures will be of precast reinforced concrete and insulated bronze glass construction. Parking for more than 900 cars will be afforded on the landscaped 11.5 acre site, which is adjacent to Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg.

To be called Woodfield Office Plaza, the project is located at Golf and Meacham Rds. Other major corporations with offices in the area include Motorola, Union Oil Co., Western Electric Co., Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., Gould, Inc., Squibb, United Airlines, Nuclear Data, 3-M Co., Safeco Insurance Co., Mobil Oil Corp., Chemplex, and the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Jay J. Strauss, senior vice president, represented B. B. Cohen & Co. in the negotiations.

Starck Realtors has record sales despite tight mortgage money

A new one-month record for sales was attained by Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, during the month of June. The announcement was made by Robert Starck, president of the 15 year old firm.

Sales totaling almost $2.8 million were reported by the five Starck offices. Some of these sales were made in cooperation with other brokers. This was a 34 per cent increase over June, 1973. The new record was set despite the current tight mortgage money picture.

Starck attributed the record-breaking month to several factors — additional management and sales staff employed by the firm along with advanced sales training given to both new and experienced sales associates. The firm's membership in RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service coupled with an active corporate transferee program has resulted in an unusual upsurge in sales to transferred employees. New advertising and merchandising support for the sales staff including a new NHIS Home Guarantee program have all helped to generate sales activity for the company.

In addition, activity by new-home builders has been down about 30 per cent in the area which has resulted in good, pre-owned homes being in relatively short supply.

Starck feels that the sales trend will continue for the third quarter of the year during which time the supply of mortgage money will increase. The interest rate, however, will remain high. Home prices will continue to run ahead of general inflation, so home purchases will continue to be sound investments for any family.

Starck, with headquarters at 209 S. Main St., Mount Prospect, also has offices in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

Squassoni is Kunkel sales leader

For the third time this year, "Woody" Squassoni has been named sales leader at Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, announced Ralph H. Martin, president.

Squassoni received the sales leader of the month award twice in 1973 and this year in February, April and June. He received the award for bringing in the highest monthly total of real estate sales and listings. In addition, he won the sales leader award four times in 1972.

A member of the Kunkel residential sales staff since 1966, Squassoni has gained lifetime membership in the "Million Dollar Sales Club" of the Illinois Association of Realtors as a result of achieving real estate sales exceeding $1 million in each of the past four years. He also has obtained the designation of Graduate, Realtors Institute for completing the three-phase seminar of the state realtors association.

In 1972 Squassoni was associate director of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and is on their social activities committee. He also is a member of the Elks, Moose and Anvil Clubs. He resides with his wife, Vi, in the Brentwood area of Des Plaines. They have three children: Jeff, Debbie and Lori.

Older homes refinished as clubhouse, playhouse

RESIDENTS OF Tyler Bluff, Townhomes in Elgin enjoy an outdoor pool, children's recreation house and adult social center. The pool is surrounded by full-grown trees, inset patio gardens, sundecks and a lounging deck outside the social center overlooking the pool.

Two old homes on the entry road to Tyler Bluff Townhomes in Elgin were retained and have now been converted to an adult clubhouse and a children's playhouse, according to Leo Goldschmidt, developer of Tyler Bluff.

He says the four main floor rooms are all tiled and painted to handle rough play. There is a kitchen where the mothers can have coffee and a lounge area for socializing.

A geodesic domed greenhouse off the original living room area has been retained so that the children can experiment with growing their own plants all year Toys and some furniture, are being provided by the developer, and the Homeowners's Association will decide what else they wish to add to the building A hobby and craft room has been set aside for the teenagers to enable this age group to have an area to themselves.

Across the lawn from the children's clubhouse, and adjacent to the swimming pool and sundeck with its flower beds, is the formal adult recreation house also converted from a two story residence that the developers retained for the purpose.

The main floor of this clubhouse has two lounges with beamed ceilings and gold carpeted floors and fireplace. It is furnished with a piano, lounge chairs, couches and card tables and chairs. Carol Sigel and Mark Marks of the Design Center in Chicago have used earth tones in a tailored decor throughout the house. The chairs and couches and bridge chars are upholstered in rough woven brown, black and white uneven stripe. Walls are papered in textured stripes of brown, white, gold and black.

A fully equipped kitchen and snack area with bar adjoins the lounges on the main floor. Locker facilities' and shower area for the pool are in the basement with direct access to the back patio, sundeck, and fenced pool. The basement also has a bar.

On the second floor, two furnished guest rooms with private bath can be reserved by residents for the use of their out-of-town guests. These guest may also use the kitchen facilities on the main floor. Anohter carpeted room upstairs can be reserved for card games or privated parties. It is furnished with card tables and chairs.

The exteriors of the recreation houses are painted a bright mustard to contrast with the dark brow of the townhomes surrounding them. The wooden picket fence around the pool and the trim of the houses is white. There is also a hedge along the road. Around both clubhouses, the orginal plantings of shrubs, perennial flowers and trees have been retained. Jay Robinson of Environmental Design Associates, Carpenfersville, and John R. Cook Associates, Rockford, has been responsible for the environmental planning and landscaping throughout Tyler Bluff.

The initial eight acres of woods were preserved and directly across from the pool area there are pine trees. One hundred twenty additional trees are being planted throughout the hillside property to compliment the existing woods and plantings.

At each road juncture, railroad ties frame hillside gardens of annuals and perennials. Lilacs, honeysuckle and snowball bushes are among the flowering shrubs retained around the recreation area. Approximately $1,000 additional per unit was allocated by the developers, L-G Associates of Elgin and Chicago, for landscaping at Tyler Bluff.

Says Mr. Goldschmidt: "Because each Tyler Bluff home has its own fenced yard, patio, and balcony, we wanted the recreation area to be an estension of each home; an opportunity for expanded activity. It is possible that in the future we will add tennis courts to our present facilities. And, of course, we overlook Tyler Creek, the Forest Preserves and the Fox River Valley. The view is an important part of the relaxation and the recreation here."

The three-bedroom and two-bedroom with den townhomes with two car garages are priced from $45,500. Tyler Bluff is located ¼ mile south of the Route 31 south exit of I-90, two minutes from downtown Elgin. Furnished models can be seen by appointment or on weekends from noon to dark.

Bedroom lavatories coming back

Water in the bedroom went out with great grandmother's china bowl and pitcher. Now it's making a strong come-back — with a difference!

According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, one of the strongest trends in bedroom decor today is a single or double-bowl vanity lavatory with hot and cold running water. The gowls are installed in handsome countertops that serve as dressing tables. A cabinet beneath provides drawers and shelves for storage.

The bowls come in luscious colors, and the countertops and cabinets are styled in virtually any furniture period you may wish You can go plain or ornate with the faucets too. They come chrome or gold-plated or made of a crystal, jewel-like material. You have your choice of "conventional," single-handle, dial or push-pull.

In short, the bedroom vanity lavatory can blend smoothly into the rest of your bedroom furnishings.

Bedroom vanitories are especially popular with teenagers, who regard them as a kind of status symbol. They're popular with parents too, because youngsters are likely to do their hours-long primping in the bedroom, leaving the bathroom free for adults.

Deerpath sales surpass million in first two weeks

Twenty-one homes were sold in the Deerpath subdivision by Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. in north suburban Vernon Hills marking $1 million in sales during its first two weeks, Robert T. Craig, Vice President and Regional General Manager, announced.

Deerpath is a $55 million planned unit development that will contain approximately 1,300 units representing 500 single-family homes and 800 townhouse/condominiums when completed.

The subdivision is located on Town Line Road (Ill. Hwy. 60) one mile west of Milwaukee Avenue (Ill. Hwy. 21). More than one third of the 300-acre site will be devoted to open space which includes three lakes, recreational areas, green belts and waterways. A convenience shopping area is proposed within the development.

According to Craig, of the four models offered in single-family houses, the four-bedroom, tri-level Stratford was the best seller. The top-of-the-line four-bedroom, two-story Colonial Exeter was next, followed by the three-bedroom, two-story Larchmont and the three-bedroom, two-story Andover.

Traditional in architecture, the Stratford offers two exterior variations. One is a gable design with brick and aluminum siding, the other a gambrel design with stone front.

Highlighting the Stratford are three distinct levels for comfort, entertainment and privacy.

On the entry level, one will find everything needed for entertaining. From an entry foyer providing direct access to a 25-foot living and dining room running the full depth of the house, to a kitchen and breakfast area with insulated glass sliding doors leading to a rear yard. Not to mention a powder room and guest closet.

Included in the kitchen are many deluxe features: range and double oven with vented hood, dishwasher, disposer, stainless-steel sink, rolled-edge countertops and wood-grained cabinets.

Just a few steps away is the lower level. Highlighting this comfortable area is a 21-foot paneled family room with a built-in fireplace and two bench seats flanking the slate hearth.

A patio walk-out option is available in the family room. A hallway provides easy access to the laundry/utility room, storage closet and service door to an attached two-car garage.

The upper level is designed for privacy. Off a center hall are four large bedrooms, a linen closet and family bathroom with ceramic tile and built-in vanity. The master bedroom comes complete with walk-in closet and a private ceramic bathroom containing a built-in vanity. The three additional bedrooms each contain oversized closets.

Included in the $56,500 price of the Stratford is wall-to-wall carpeting in all living areas. All utilities are installed underground. A basement which provides a fourth level is available at additional cost.

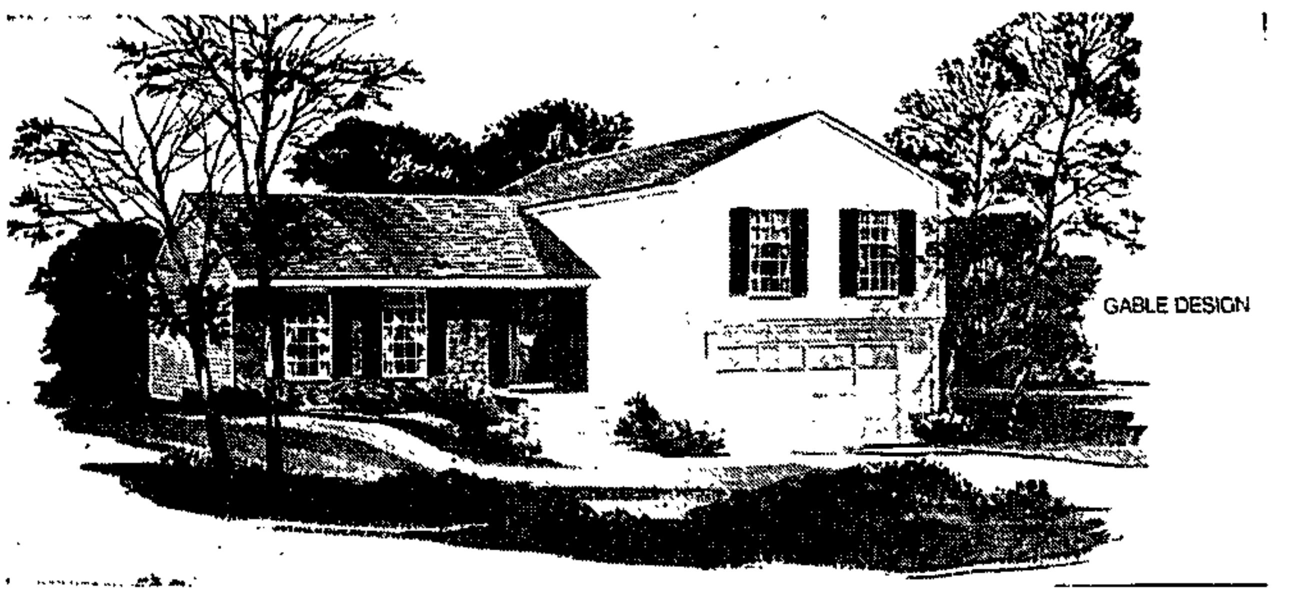
All four models come with attached two-car garages, 2½ baths and paneled family rooms. The three-and four-bedroom homes offer between, 1,900 to 2,400 square feet of living space.

Prices for the other models are $52,990 for the Andover, $56,990 for the Larchmont and $59,990 for the Exeter. All include homesites.

Deerpath is located near Hawthorn Shopping Center, a few minutes from the Tri-State Tollway access at Ill. 60, the Libertyville Milwaukee Road commuter station and the North Western train station in Lake Forest.

In addition to Deerpath, Levitt is currently building six subdivisions in the Chicago area. They are Strathmore Grove in Buffalo Grove; Sheffield Park, Sheffield Towne and Sheffield manor all in Schaumburg; Old Farm in Naperville; and Greenbriar in southwest suburban New Lenox.

Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. is a division of Levitt and Sons, Inc. a residential community building firm. The Levitt organization is currently building projects throughout the U.S., Puerto Rico, and in France, Germany and Spain.



MOST POPULAR of the four models offered at Deerpath subdivison by Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. in Vernon Hills is the tri-level Stratford. Priced at $56,500 including homesite, the Stratford includes four bedrooms, an attached two-car garage, 2½ baths and paneled family room with wood burning fireplace.

Tradesmen to be honored at REALCO luncheon

A major Chicago area home builder will take time out this month to stage an unusual luncheon honoring the men who build his houses.

Harold Palmer, president, REALCOA (Realty Company of America), 6430 N. Central Ave., will pay tribute to carpenters, roofers, plumbers, brick layers, electricians and other skilled craftsmen who build the thousands of houses which Chicagoland demands each year.

"These craftsmen have real talent," Palmer explained, "and it is a privilege for our company to take time out to pay tribute to them."

REALCOA currently has four projects underway in the Chicago area building houses and condominium homes.

The 12 representative tradesmen will be honored at lunch on July 24 at the Marriott Motor Hotel at 8535 W. Higgins Rd. Their employers also are being invited.

REALCOA launched the program five years ago. Each month officials select a "tradesman of the month." This year the dozen men being honored for the period from July, 1973 to June, 1974 include:

William Born, 24W420 Arrow Court, Naperville, a painter with Procraft Painting, Inc., 5316 Stoney Creek, Oak Lawn.

Drew Woodman, 4730 Lee Ct., Richton Park, a carpenter with C. V. Carlson Construction Co., Inc., 6600 College Drive, Palos Heights.

Bill Burns, 615 N. Lincoln, Addison, a plumber with Glendale Plumbing, Inc., 21 W. 626 North Ave., Lombard.

Industrial building sold in Elk Grove

Bennett & Kahnweiler Assoc. has announced the sale of the one-story building containing 10,000 square feet located at 1425 Howard St. in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village, to an undisclosed investor.

Edward A. Rowe of Bennett & Kahnweiler Assoc. represented the purchaser and Thomas Conrady of Prudential Realty Co. represented the seller in the $162,500 sale transaction.

Attorneys were Alphonsze Cerza for the purchaser and Harold F. Scovel of McKenna, Scovel and Gannon for the seller.

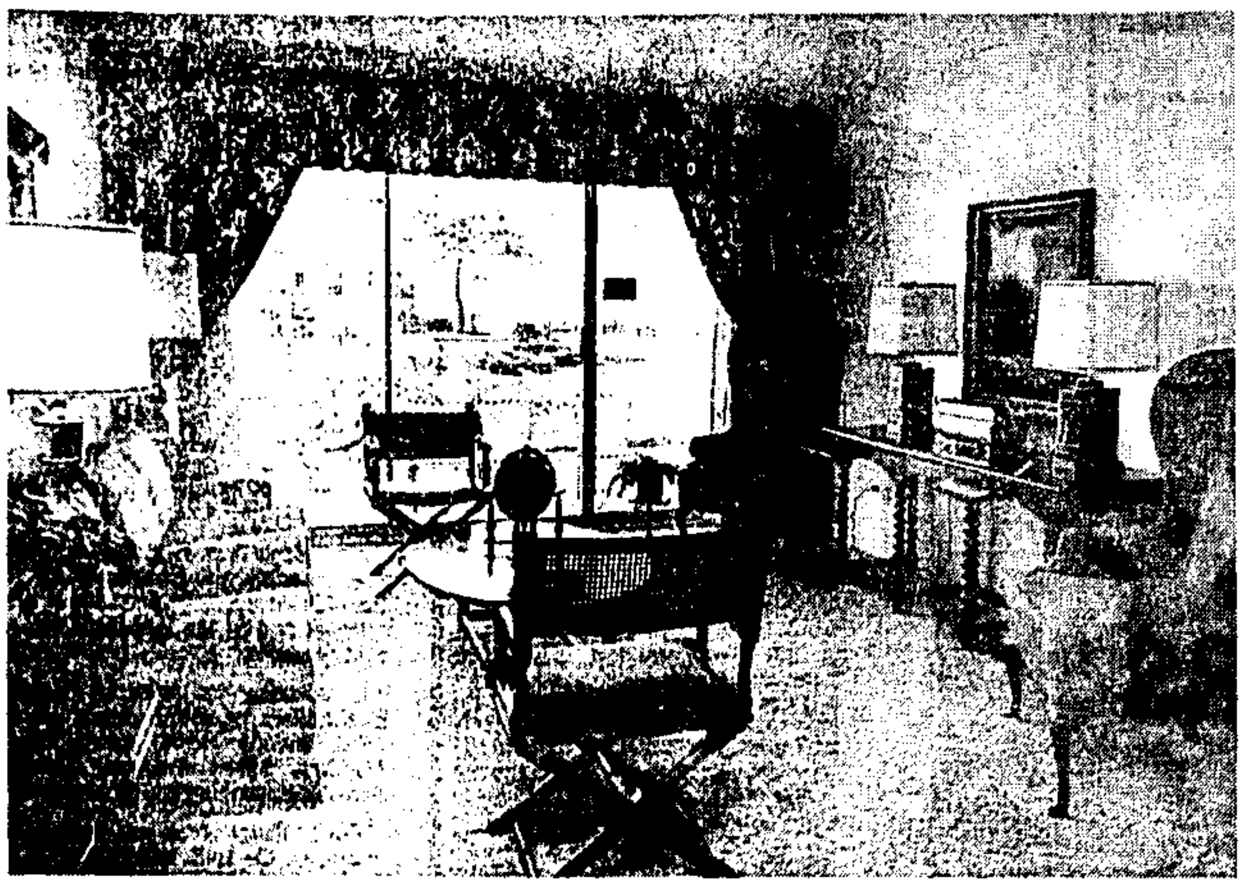
Lighting important feature at Versailles-on-the-Lake



ACCORDING TO Mrs. Betty Felix, manager of Versailles-on-the-Lake apartments, one of the strong points of the apartment complex is that the apartment design takes advantage of natural lighting. Big, patio doors allow natural light in up to 14 or 15 hours a day, and natural light is most complimentary to the colors in carpeting, furniture and paintings.

Versailles-on-the-Lake apartments make excellent use of natural lighting, according to Mrs. Betty Felix, manager of the apartment complex in Schaumburg.

The rental complex, designed in the same vein as the French palace from which it derives its name, takes full advantage of natural lighting for more than just the practical reasons, explains Mrs. Felix.

Natural lighting is available up to 14 or 15 hours a day — and there is no charge for it, she notes. Natural lighting also permits residents to see how furniture and accessories go well together — to see the real colors of carpetings, wall coverings, paintings — as they were meant to be seen. Also, by permitting natural light to stream in, residents can also take in the beauty of landscaping, views out over the lake and generally enjoy the formal setting in which Versailles-on-the-Lake is designed.

The general effect of natural lighting is carried into the apartments after sundown in a simulated manner. The kitchens at Versailles-on-the-Lake feature "whole ceiling illumination," providing the feeling of skylighting in the room. This method of dispersing light indirectly minimizes shadows and is considered restfully pleasant to the eye.

Indoor lighting at night is both important and dramatic at Versailles. The elegant candelabra in the Marseilles model apartment dining room, for example, provides just such a touch of drama. It is simple, has a nostalgic charm and its wall-mounted dimmer switch enables the entertaining hostess to create an infinite variety of mood lighting from a soft glow in each "flame" to a brilliant display of dazzling light that reflects from a silver service or bone china place setting.

Even the ceramic-tiled, vanity baths are given unusual lighting attention, with "theatrical" lights, up, over, down and around the large mirrored-door medicine chest. In each apartment, insulated, sliding glass patio doors, floor to near-ceiling height, permit additional natural light to be admitted. Sunlight is softened as it passes through sheer white underdrapes furnished in Versailles apartments.

Special lighting treatments at Versailles-on-the-Lake are not limited to the examples cited. They are an integral part of the total commitment, says Donald J. Scholz & Co., developer. Each of the red-carpeted corridors is well-lit, and each apartment entrance is flanked by a pair of old-fashioned coach or carriage lamps.

Prospective residents at Versailles have a variety of apartments from which to choose from studios, one, two and two-bedroom plus den units, from $225 to $430 per month, including appliances, air-conditioning and underground, heated garage space. Residents also have complete use of the clubhouse, swimming pool, sauna and other recreational facilities.

Cheap fixtures not best buy

The cheapest isn't always your best buy. This is especially true in plumbing fixtures, faucets, shower heads, piping, valves and drains.

The cheapest fixtures are usually undersized and lose their luster in short order. Cheap faucets, shower heads, drains and valves, don't stand up under continuous use. They often break down within the first year and must be replaced, whereas quality products costing only a little more will last up to 15 years or more, and in some cases even as long as the building.

And when it comes to piping behind the wall or under the floor, quality is even more important, because to replace it calls for breaking through the wall or floor, a messy and expensive job.

The cost of replacing cheap fixtures and other plumbing is only part of the frustration. Undersized fixtures are a source of inconvenience and irritation.

Plumbing is one place where the "most expensive" is really the cheapest. Also, the difference in original cost between the cheapest and the best plumbing fixtures is surprisingly small.

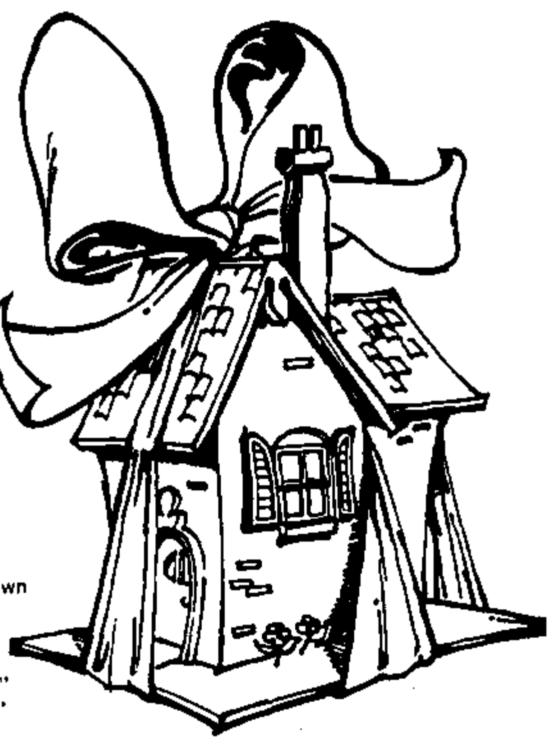
We gift wrap your home with lots of ribbon... and no red tape.



We've got the know-how...plus.

Get out the ribbon and forget the red tape. We can make selling a home easier than most people would believe, because we know how to show it . . . to buyers . . . not "lookers".

Our lookers are buyers because they've done their browsing with our Homes For Living magazine. They've already seen your home, pictured clearly on a page of our monthly magazine. They know what features it has to offer, and they know your price. It's all right there in print.

And we find our buyers in places you wouldn't think to look. Hundreds of our magazines are distributed locally. And copies are sent to our offices in all 50 states, so that out-of-town buyers, who are relocating here, can get a good look at your home before they arrive.

We show your home to interested "lookers" across the country. We bring you the "buyers" to wrap up the deal.

It's "ribbon" and not "red tape" when we sell a home . . . because we've got the Know-how . . . Plus!

Woman named office manager at Arlington

Kay Napolitano has been named manager of the Arlington Heights office of Homefinders Realtors, according to an announcement by Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm.

Kay Napolitano

Mrs. Napolitano is a million dollar sales associate with Homefinders, and is the fifth woman to be named to a management post in the Homefinders chain of sales offices.

In addition to Arlington Heights, Homefinders maintains offices in Antioch, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, McHenry, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Roselle, Schaumburg and Streamwood.

The McHenry office was opened last month, as the tenth sales office in the northwest suburban real estate firm.

Homefinders, which is now observing its "Lucky Seven" anniversary year, has a commercial and investment division under the direction of David Hanner and a New Homes Division supervised by Richard Griggs.

The executive offices of Homefinders are located at 235 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Two pass million at Arlington Realty

Arlington Realty announced their first two qualifiers for the 1974 Million Dollar Sales Club award. The two sales associates are Lorraine Larsen (South Arlington office) and Evelyn Hines (North Arlington office) both of whom handled sales in excess of $1 million in less than six months of 1974.

Lorraine Larsen

Evenlyn Hines

Both Mrs. Larsen and Mrs. Hines are lifetime members of the Arlington Realty Million Dollar Club since they have qualified for the past seven consecutive years. Both women had sales exceeding two million dollars in 1973 to become two of the top sales volume producers in the entire suburban area. Both have been associated with Arlington Realty for more than nine years.

Arlington Realty also announced sales for the first six months of the year in the amount of $10.7 millions, down slightly from 1973, but still the second best six-month period in the twenty-four-year history of the firm.

It's Easy To Write A Good WANT AD!

Lots of people get confused when it comes to writing a Want Ad. Do you? If so, here are a few simple rules to make ad writing easy. A good ad is just conversation in print. So when you're preparing to place an ad, just write it the way you'd tell your neighbor about it.

Why Leave Them Guessing?

What do you want to sell or buy? If it's an appliance, what's the brand? What's the size or capacity? Model? Year? Any accessories included? Does it need repair, or is it ready to use? Now put yourself in the buyer's position. If you were reading this ad, what would you like to know? Price? By all means, put that in. In nearly every ad, price is the most important information. Anything else missing? If so, fill in those blanks, too. All clear, now. OK, just a few more little points.

Ordering Is Easy

Just write the Herald Classified Department or come in and see us at 114 West Campbell, Arlington Heights.

Don't Cut Off Your Own Nose

Once the ad has been completed, read it over. It's fine to eliminate a word here and there, but don't "edit" it to the point where the reader may have to guess at the meaning. You might save a few pennies and lose dollars in results.

The Heck With It

If any of this seems complicated don't lose your grip. You can still place your ad. Just pick up your telephone and dial 394-2400. We have 8 lines to serve you, with an experienced ad writer on each one waiting to help you.

ELAINE COSTELLO demonstrates one simple exercise using Mrs. Dena Wilson of Cary as her model. Lying on a tightly rolled towel a few minutes every day helps to normalize the muscles in the back, relieving daily tension. Main emphasis of the "Physical Reawakening" class is to make the person feel relaxed and refreshed.

Suburban

SIMPLE YOGA positions are being taught senior citizens through a special "Physical Awakening" workshop at Harper College. Participants were carefully instructed so as not to overexert themselves.

At Harper workshop

Seniors learn yoga

by GENIE CAMPBELL

The idea is to feel better and more refreshed.

Senior citizens who recently took part in Harper College's "Physical Reawakening" course learned how deep breathing exercises and simple yoga postures can alleviate bachache, headaches and other age-induced twinges and pains.

"Now this will strengthen all the vertebrae in your back," recommended Elaine Costello, yoga instructor at the college, who led the oldsters in suitable breathing and stretching exercises.

"Shoulders on floor, palms down, feet close together. Now inhale slowly. Exhale and bring left hip up and twist. Don't cheat. Don't raise the shoulders," she admonished two in the second row. "But remember, if your back says this is dumb, don't do it," she also cautioned.

DURING THE three weekly sessions Mrs. Costello demonstrated exercises that would offer serious practitioners a sense of deep relaxation.

"The first important thing is to help an individual become aware of his own condition, get in tune with his or her body," said Mrs. Costello.

The "Physical Reawakening" sessions followed immediately an "Expanding Horizons" workshop designed to help senior citizens become aware of individual potential, and consequently, better plan for the future.

How important is exercise to those over 65?

The American Medical Association (AMA) recommends six minutes of sustained exercise a day to strengthen hearts, raise the oxygen level and generally make a person feel healthier and more relaxed, explained Mrs. Costello. The exercises that she promotes are meant to reduce stress and daily tension without harm of over-exertion.

"IN THIS CLASS we are more concerned with techniques of complete relaxation rather than any endurance or competitive approach," said the Arlington Heights yoga instructor.

She first introduces deep breathing exercises and then progresses to simple yoga postures that affect the nervous system and pave the way for auto suggestion relaxation.

"We are using the physical movements to reach mental, self-induced relaxation. The body understands and feels good," she said.

"Aches and pains can be eased by diverting mental concentration away from the hurt to other parts of the body," Mrs Costello explained to her students.

"I KNOW ANOTHER way to get that tingling sensation she is talking about . . . find a 20-year-old blond," chuckled one man under his breath to his floor partner.

"What about double chins?" inquired one woman.

"When you do yoga, double chins go away," Mrs. Costello answered.

After a period of stretching and exercising it was time to relax totally. While her pupils rested comfortably on the floor, Mrs. Costello explained the procedures of deep relaxation that can be achieved without having to fall asleep.

Each muscle of the body is attended to and mentally released. Afterwards, classmates agreed, it was the best part of the whole afternoon.

Many of them already felt better. Notebooks in hand they copied down instructions so they could practice daily during the week.

AS THEY FILED out the door, Mrs. Costello yelled out one last suggestion. "Forget your girdles next week, girls. It's harder that way."

"Physical Reawakening" courses for nior citizens will again be offered through Harper College beginning in September. Information concerning times and registration is available through the Office of Admissions, 397-3000.

Sex and the preschool child

Balancing prudence and prudery

by JOANNE KOCH
(Second of four related articles)

An obscenity uttered by an appealing kindergartner in earshot of her younger brother is incongruous and unnerving. Four-letter words have become part of young people's casual jargon. The changing standards of language in books and films affects parents, too, so that swearing is no longer strange to the ears of 3-and 4-year-olds.

I clearly remember the night we were at the table with our two daughters, then 3 and 6. Their 18-month old brother was just learning to talk.

Between chicken and dessert, 6-year-old Lisa asked in her sweet, rather thin little voice, "Daddy, what does f—k mean?"

Dad coughed and got up for a drink of water, trying to give the usually perceptive Lisa a hint that it would be nice if she changed the subject. However, she repeated the question exactly and with emphasis, not realizing this was something he would have given her five lollipops not to repeat.

SOME PSYCHOLOGISTS, among them Child Guidance author Rudolph Dreikurs, advise parents simply to ignore the use of obscene language. While this may be more effective than washing the child's mouth out with soap, I prefer the approach of Dr. Maria Piers, dean of the Erickson Institute of Early Education. "If a child asks about or uses such a word, explain that it is an ugly word which children use for showing off."

But Dr. Piers adds that if the child has had some education in this area, it's a good idea to explain that the ugly word stands for something which is not ugly but is, instead intimate, private.

Dr. Piers believes that a child's use of obscenity may be a veiled request for an explanation. She points out that many things, certainly the facts of life, need to be explained more than once. She advises parents to be sensitive to these cues from their children. If the child sees his questions are not being avoided, the way is open for other communication and the parent is likely to find the child more amenable to using discretion.

FORTUNATEY, there are many books available which help us over the sometimes awkward moment of having to explain the facts of life to a preschool child. "How Babies Are Made" by Andrew C. Andry and Steven Schepp (Time-Life Books) and "The Wonderful Story of How You Were Born" by Sidonie M. Gruenberg (Doubleday) are two such helpful story and picture books which present information in an attractive format designed for 3 to 6-year-olds.

Even with the best of books and the clearest of explanations, the child may not grasp the full meaning of your story.

One recently briefed 5-year-old discovered a stringy vein in his chicken wing and said, "Mom, is this a sperm?" "No," said mom, reluctant to deal with the subject again. "Well," said her son, "it sure looks like a sperm."

CHILDREN DON'T always hear what we tell them, even when we try our best to be accurate and thorough. They naturally tend to relate the mysteries of conception and birth to their own experience. They may, for example, confuse conception with ingestion, a much more familiar and acceptable notion than intercourse. Even when they have been told the facts, it is quite common for kids to assume that the "seed" which daddy "plants" gets in through the mouth. One 6-year-old listening to the garden version of the facts of life broke in with an "ugh" of disgust, "Mom, that must taste awful."

The particular explanation given to a child is not as crucial in shaping his personality as other factors. Our anxieties concerning normal child development have indeed been channeled into the highly charged sex education controversy. But learning the answer to the question of where babies come from is only a small part of the child's growth.

THE MOST significant influences on a child's personality — of which sexuality is only a part — are the attitudes conveyed by the behavior of parents towards the children and each other.

Freudians insist that the unconscious desires of parents can also play a part. Dr. Ner Littner cites an example: "Child psychiatrists recommend that children of this age not see parents nude under any circumstances. In some parents' minds there is an unconscious wish to seduce the child. These parents will rationalize why they are nude, but the real reason may be that they want to exhibit themselves. The blanket restriction against the open-door policy is to avoid those rare cases where parents have such seductive attitudes."

Centering on the child's fantasies rather than the parent's, Helen Arnstein points out in her valuable book "Your Growing Child and Sex" that the practice of parental nudity may be a reaction to Victorian prudery, a way some parents choose to say secrecy about the human body is unwholesome.

BUT MISS ARNSTEIN explains that this practice tends to arouse more curiosity and more anxiety than is good for a child of 3 to 6 "who is still struggling with the fantasies of love and possession of one parent and rivalry with the other." She advises parents to tell children to knock on doors to bathrooms and bedrooms before entering simply because people like to be alone at times.

When I made this point to my 4-year-old son who had barged into the bathroom, he walked out, shut the door and went into his own room.

Forgetting the incident, I later walked into his room without knocking and he had to remind me, "Don't you know people need privacy?"

A child is, after all, a person.

MRS. COSTELLO, a yoga instructor in the continuing education program at Harper College, explains and reviews several exercises with members of her class of senior citizens. Response to the initial three-session course this month was good with both men and women turning out to learn.

Hang-up of modern man

Fears—all the old ones plus new

All his life, said Henry Fonda recently, he has been hounded by the fear that his most recent film would be his last. Fear of failure, he said, has accompanied him step by step, like a persistent shadow.

Renowned anthropoligist Dr. Loren Eiseley says that man today carries a double burden of fear — not only most of the fears of ancient man, but also the fears engendered by a highly complex, technological, competitive and impersonal society.

The Harris, Gallup, and Yankelovich polls reveal a rising fear of the miscalculations, the malice and the malfeasance of public officials, fear of inflation and its effects, fear of a breakdown of morals, fear of the deterioration of society and more.

We still carry with us many of the ancient fears of mankind, fear of darkness, death, illness and disability, small places, high places and the unknown.

BUT THE BURDEN of fear borne by modern man — his anxieties, concerns and worries — manifests itself in a national preoccupation with psychotherapy, chemical dependency, psychosomatic illness and perhaps depression, called the most common "ailment" in America, according to research by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., Minneapolis.

Fear virtually immobilizes many people. It muddles their minds and steals their concentration. It incites them to rash action or freezes them into inaction. They stutter, develop nervous "tics" — and nervous stomachs — and become exhausted when only half the day is gone. they get headaches frequently, suffer from insominia and even faint.

Companies such as Arthur D. Little, Inc., management consultants in Cambridge, Mass., offer special programs to employes on ways of coping with fear-caused anxieties.

White Plains Hospital, White Plains, N. Y., established a Phobia Clinic to help patients who have difficulty functioning because of their fears.

A LIST OF "modern" fears would include crime on the streets, flying and driving. Dr. Boris Rifkin, director of the Out-patient Psychiatric Clinic of St. Raphael's Hospital in New Haven, Conn., reports that he sees a great many people who are afraid of driving.

Americans especially fear failure — falling short of standards set by society and themelves — social standards, job standards, sexual standards. In general, Americans have a morbid fear of being "different" and of being identified with a group lower in status than the one in which they place themselves, the Family Economics Bureau reports.

People are terrified of vacuum cleaners, elevators, escalators, dentists, hypodermic needles, holidays, too much free time — and fear itself, a condition psychiatrists call "phobophobia." In fact, the fear of fear may indeed be the most crippling fear of all. President Franklin D. Roosevelt recognized this in his first inaugural address with his oft-repeated statement, " . . . the only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

AGAIN, IN THE words of Dr. Eiseley: "We fear the water we drink, the air we breathe and the insecticides dusted over our crops. We fear the awesome powers we have lifted out of nature. We fear the weapons we have made, the hatreds we have engendered."

There's a clue to the origin of fear in the fears of childen. Textbook psychology says fear stems from insecurity and is learned in infancy from deprivation and lack of affection. Fear usually originates before the age of 10.

A National Institute of Health study discovered that the most common fears of children are the fear of being kidnapped, fear that their homes might burn down or that someone in their families might become ill or have an accident, fear of dying and fear of attack by lions, tigers or snakes.

Many children's fears are symptoms of social pressure — fears about personal relations, fear of school, tests, and grades, fear that they will wear the wrong hair style or fear that they are too skinny or fat.

Usually, one can diminish his fears — even eliminate them — if he can recall the incident in which his fear originated.

SOME POPULAR "therapies" such as transcendental meditation are helpful. Learning systematic muscle relaxation provides temporary relief, according to Northwestern National Life.

Unfortunately, some people merely look for ways to forget their fears, or they try to flee from them or rationalize them away. Others fight fear with anger or intense preoccupation with a job.

The most constructive course is to find the cause of fear and then treat it. Dr. Rifkin teaches his patients to express repressed feelings. Often, their fears disappear.

A psychiatrist may "desensitize" patients to their fears. He may have them listen at home to tape-recorded descriptions of situations and incidents that arouse fear. He begins with the least-feared situations and progresses to those the patient fears most — always introducing each tape with relaxation instructions. After a patient relaxes, he plays and replays the oral descriptions of each fear-filled situation, visualizing it clearly, until his fear disappears. Then he proceeds to the next, more fearful situation.

Psychiatrists have proved that most of a man's fears are an unnecessary blight upon his life. If he can face them, admit them and trace them to their origins, he can usually escape them.

She opts for lace, sentiment

Bouquets accented with pink roses and lace-covered picture hats on the bride and her attendants set a sentimental wedding scene July 6 when Gail Ristau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ristau, 180 Michael Rd., Des Plaines, and Michael Palmier of Wheeling were united in marriage.

Mike's parents are the George J. Palmiers of Belleville, Ill.

The 5 p.m. double ring ceremony took place at the Lutheran Church of Martha and Mary in Mount Prospect. Beverly Fink of Elk Grove Village served as maid of honor. Kimberly Meinsen of Des Plaines; Becky Jo Ristau of Wheeling, the bride's sister-in-law; and Lynne Tumino of Elk Grove Village were the bridesmaids.

Gail's wedding gown of ivory organza and Cluny ruffled lace had a high Victorian neckline with crystal tucked bib bodice and long, sheer balloon sleeves with high lace cuffs. To it was attached a cathedral length train bordered with double rows of lace and ruffles. A cathedral-length illusion veil fell from the crown of her picture hat. Pink Sweetheart roses, ivory babies breath and ivory carnations made up her bouquet.

BRIDAL ATTENDANTS were attired in ivory organza Victorian style gowns with an overlay of pink roses. They carried baskets of pink roses, ivory carnations and pink babies breath. Each wore a lace covered picture hat, the maid of honor's ivory, the others pink.

The groom's brother, Richard Palmier of Belleville, served as best man. Other groomsmen were Peter Hill and Thomas Sintzel, both of Belleville; Joseph Pennachhia and David Ristau, the bride's brother, both of Wheeling; and Gary LaGesse of Des Plaines.

The reception was held at the Elk Grove Holiday Inn. Following a week's honeymoon in Hawaii, the newlyweds are now living in Wheeling.

Employed by Kraft Foods in Chicago, Gail is a graduate of Elk Grove High School and Moser School in Chicago. Michael, who attended Southern Illinois University, is working for Commonwealth Edison in Mount Prospect.

Nitpicking hurts consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

Why is it that so many really important consumer problems take so long to be addressed by government agencies?

Two prime reasons: lack of priorities in some government agencies, and misguided, nitpicking consumers.

For example, the consumer fraud department of the Illinois Attorney General's office held a hearing Monday in response to a complaint from a northwest suburban woman alleging that a local supermarket misnamed a certain cut of meat.

A $12,000-a-year attorney, a higher-salaried hearing officer, plus assorted law clerks and secretaries, all of whom are in tremendous demand in this understaffed office, spent their valuable time — and taxpayers' money — to decide whether one grocery store wrongly called a shank a hock.

Why?

Mainly, conceded one spokesman, "to make this lady happy. She's very persistent."

And so, to get an overzealous consumer off their backs, the consumer fraud office handled this "problem," while another area consumer who was sold a used car as a new car and given a worthless warranty could not be helped by the consumer fraud office. That's also the same office which held hearings a year ago on debt collection abuses but hasn't had time yet to issue any regulations or prosecute any collection agencies because they've been too busy handling consumer complaints like the one heard Monday.

Ironically, the consumer fraud office and the woman do have a significant consumer issue by the tail — if they would only expand their sights a little.

Consumers across the country are overpaying by untold sums for meats that are given hundreds of different names meaning absolutely nothing. Many supermarkets take identical cuts of meat and charge as much as 20 cents a pound more for one than the other just by giving it some fanciful name. And that's fraud, by the consumer fraud office's own definitiln.

In an attempt to correct this deceptive practice and help consumers know what they are buying, the American Meat Institute has issued an index of names based on the cut of the meat. It has urged supermarkets to adopt these uniform, meaningfull names and eliminate all others.

But it's strictly voluntary, so most grocery stores have largely ignored it. And so has the Illinois consumer fraud office.

If Mrs. X of the shank-hock caper is really interested in striking a useful blow for consumers at the meat counter, why doesn't she direct her energy and talent on making the AMI's standard meat names mandatory? Consumerists do themselves and others a disservice by causing a row over a non-issue.

And, if the Attorney General's office is going to spend valuable time and money on a case like this, why don't they make it worthwhile by investigating the general meat naming practices of all supermarkets in Illinois? Just because this incident was ruled "not fraudulent" doesn't mean there is no misrepresentation in the meat cases.

'Helping hands' is theme of coffees

"Helping Hands" of Arlington Juniors will be the theme of the Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club membership coffees being held this summer.

Two coffees are planned to acquaint interested women in Arlington Heights with the organization. A short program, "Winning Hands," featuring the club's activities and service to the community will be presented.

Dates are Wednesday, July 31, and Thursday, Aug. 15, in the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Public Library, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club, a federated woman's club, is a group of women in the community, under the age of 40 interested in promoting community interest and rendering community service.

LOCALLY, JUNIORS work with the young and the old. They have donated many hours working with the girls of Maryville Academy, the children in the Head Start program and the students at Clearbrook, Countryside and Kirk Centers.

Making learning aids for area schools during American Education Week, and sponsoring activities for the Over 50 Club have been other areas of interest.

This summer they are co-sponsoring, with the Arlington Park District, Safety Town, a program of safety for preschoolers. Members also participated in the Arlington Heights Summer Festival.

Anyone wishing to attend the coffees or to become a member may contact Mrs. James Kendell, 253-5738, or Mrs. James Martin, 259-8651.

Spiders terrify his wife, but most of them harmless

Dear Dorothy: We have an inordinate number of spiders in our basement and home. My wife is terrified of them and while we don't like the idea of pesticides, I'd like to know what to use to get rid of them — and how to keep them from coming back. — Thomas Johnson

With the exception of the black widow and brown recluse, most spiders are harmless; in fact, they have some value since they live on household insects. But there's no question about their making a lot of people queasy. The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends a household spray containing either lindane, ronnel or malathion. Ronnel and malathion are the least toxic. Even though lindane belongs in the chlorinated hydrocarbon group, it has been cleared for use by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Clearly, you need no counseling about reading the instructions with care. All I can tell you about keeping spiders out is that a tight house helps, as well as making sure there isn't any loose wood, tile or trash near the basement entrances and windows.

Dear Dorothy: A favorite brown blouse seemed to have changed color when I took it out of the plastic bag it had come in from the cleaner last fall. I complained and the cleaner said the blouse should have been taken out when I got it — that while it's okay to store clean garments in the heavy plastic bags, the filmy bags do strange thing to silks in browns, greens, blues and reds. Thought others would like to know this. — Marie Marcus

A printed tag hung over the hook would tell people these things.

Dear Dorothy: We take baking soda along on our camping trips and, in addition to all the other well known uses for this product, we find it super to get the black off the bottoms of cooking pans. — May Lynch

William Busse takes Indiana girl as bride

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Busse

A romance on the campus of Valparaiso University in Indiana culminated in marriage June 29 for Marcy A. Michael of Valparaiso and William J. Busse of Mount Prospect.

They both graduated last year, and the bride is now a third grade teacher at Longfellow School, Buffalo Grove.

William, son of Mrs. Marian Busse and the late William J. Busse of S. Louis Street, is an investment officer at Mount Prospect State Bank. He was a member of the class of '69 at Prospect High School.

THE COUPLE EXCHANGED vows, and rings by candlelight in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect. The five o'clock nuptials were followed by a reception for 225 guests at the O'Hare Inn Penthouse.

Marcy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern J. Wagner of Valparaiso. She chose Heidi Hildebrandt of Indianapolis as her maid of honor, with Jennifer Kuss, Westville, Ind., and Mrs. Pam Roberts, Willow Grove, Pa., as bridesmaids.

They were attired in aqua and white printed voile gowns complemented by bands to match the dresses. Their bouquets were of purple asters, aqua daisies and baby's breath.

THE BRIDE CAME down the aisle in a white organza gown appliqued in a floral motif on a wide yoke, on the long full sleeves and on the chapel train. Her elbow-length veil was attached to a Juliet cap also appliqued in flowers. The bride carried a cascade arrangement of Amazon lilies and stephanotis with ivy.

Standing at the altar with the groom were his best man, Lloyd Wardley of Franklin Square, N.Y., and two groomsmen, Bruce Stevens of Wauwatosa, Wis., and Curt Wille of Blue Island, Ill.

The newlyweds honeymooned for two weeks in California and are now at home in Mount Prospect.

Linda Albrecht weds the boy next door

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Stetz

A romance began 14 years ago for next-door neighbors Linda Albrecht and Alan Stetz, and on June 29 they were married in St. Mary's Church, Buffalo Grove.

Linda and her family, the George Albrechts, live at 290 Melinda Lane, Buffalo Grove, and Alan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stetz, live at 300 Melinda.

The groom's cousin, Father Robert Cholpecki, who was recently ordained in Belleville, Ill., officated at the mass, while Father Duffy performed the wedding.

LINDA'S BRIDAL party came down the aisle in a parade of rainbow colors. Her sister, Sharon, was maid of honor, wearing an orchid gown, and the bridesmaids included another sister, Betty, in green; Martha Soludczyk, cousin of the groom, in peach; Cathy Eastway, the bride's cousin, in yellow; and Donna Campbell in blue.

Bridget Kielbasa, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a pink floral printed dress and carried a basket of multicolored daisies, carnations and button mums.

The adult bridal attendants all carried multicolored daisies, mums, carnations and baby's breath to match their gowns.

Linda chose an organza and lace gown with bell-shaped skirt and complemented it with a jeweled crown headpiece and triple-tiered elbow-length veil. Her bouquet was of red roses, white carnations, button mums, stephanotis and baby's breath.

ALAN'S BEST MAN was his cousin, John Soludczyk. Ushers were Wayne Knapcik, the bride's cousin; Steve Kowski of Charleston, S.C.; Dale Wiegand of San Diego; and his brother, Terry Stetz.

The bride's brother, George Albrecht III, served as ring bearer.

The double ring ceremony was followed by a dinner reception for 325 guests at Sokol Community Hall, Chicago.

Both the bride and groom are '72 graduates of Wheeling High School. Alan is now in the Navy attending school at Great Lakes Naval Base. When he completes his course, he will take his bride to San Diego, Calif., his station for the next 18 months.

Until then the couple is living with the Stetz family.

Cynthia Stone wears a tiny gold heart

A small gold heart locket given to her by her grandmother when she was two years old accented the high Venise lace neckline of Cynthia Stone's wedding gown.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWayne Stone, Palatine, Cynthia became the bride of Donald R. Reed II June 29 in Christ Lutheran Church, Palatine. Donald is the son of the Donald R. Reeds of Mount Prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Reed II

Cynthia's short-sleeved Empire gown was of white silk organza with lace appliques. The skirt ended in a chapel train. A lace headpiece held her veil, and she carried white daisies, roses and baby's breath.

A '68 graduate of Fremd High School and a '73 graduate of Northern Illinois University, Cynthia is first grade teacher at Hunting Ridge School, Palatine, and her students of the past school year were among guests at the wedding. The service was held at 4:30 and was both double ring and candlelight.

DeANN STONE was her sister's maid of honor, and Margo Vest, South Holland, was bridesmaid. Both girls wore long, yellow dotted swiss halter gowns with Venise lace appliques and matching jackets. They carried yellow and white daisies and baby's breath.

Pete Smith, West Palm Beach, Fla., was best man, and ushers were Joe Koza, Hanover Park; Rick Staiger, Mount Prospect; and the groom's brother, Rick, also of Mount Prospect.

A dinner reception for 160 guests was held at the Park Ridge VFW Hall after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week at Lake of the Ozarks. They are now at home in Mount Prospect.

The groom , a '67 graduate of Prospect High School, attended Illinois State University. He is with Standard Brands, Ind., Chicago.

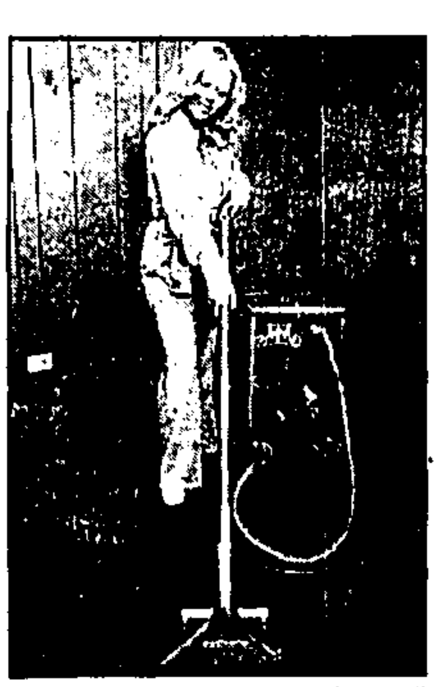
DO IT YOURSELF STEAM CARPET CLEANING



THE PROFESSIONALS USE a method of steam extraction to clean carpets. So can you . . . it's as easy as vacuuming your carpet. It works like this. A jet of hot water containing detergents is sprayed into the pile of your carpet, then immediately extracted by vacuum removing the dirt. (You actually see it) Since no brushes are used, the pile is left evenly fluffed instead of in patterns or swirls.

Out-of-date shampoo cleaning only spreads or forces dirt where it soon works its way back to the surface. The shampoo method also leaves a residue of dirt and soap — your carpet isn't really clean.

By following the instructions on the machine, you can professionally clean 15-25 square yards of carpet in approximately 30 minutes. (This is a little more than a 9x12 rug.)

Best of all it's so inexpensive. Do it yourself for only $12.50 plus chemicals for a minimum of 4 hours or let us do it for 18¢ per square foot for regular pile, or 20¢ per square foot for shag including chemicals.

Perfect for use at the office, too.

Call today to rent a MAGIC SYSTEMS MACHINE or to set up an appointment for our man to steam clean your carpets . . . 398-0230.

Most women color hair eventually

Although hair coloring has become a standard part of many women's beauty routine, two experts agree that nature brings most women to the doorstep of a decision.

"If you have a beautiful crop of hair and it's one of your best features, you probably won't consider coloring until you see your first gray strands," says Vern Silverman, director of product performance and research for Clairol.

"Eventually," maintains Andre Verna of the Michel Kazan salon, "everyone — women and men — must decide whether or not to color."

Once the time has come (statistics show at least half the women past 40 color their hair), women are pleased to find that today's products not only conceal gray and restore luster and highlights, but they condition the hair so it may be better than it was in its natural state.

"WOMEN WITH fine hair appreciate the texture change that takes place with coloring. It gives a feeling of more body and manageability," Mrs. Silverman explains.

The beginner usually starts with a semi-permanent product which lasts through four or five shampoos, she notes. "This enriches her own color and covers the gray. And she can stay with it forever, or move to something stronger as her percentage of gray increases."

Mrs. Silverman says women who've never liked their natural tone may now experiment. "They figure as long as they have to cover gray, they can be any color they like."

Both experts encourage women to go lighter, rather than darken their own shade. "Nothing makes a woman look older than solid dark brown or black hair," warns Andre Verna. "It's harsh and it draws attention to unbecoming facial lines."

THE KAZAN STYLIST is enthusiastic about streaking — or highlighting the hair with color. "We take individual strands and lighten them the way the sun does. It looks natural and it's flattering to the face."

He's adamant that streaking, which blends in well with gray hair and requires less frequent touch-ups than coloring the whole head, be done by a professional.

"It takes a trained eye and an artistic bent to put streaks where they'll be most flattering. Plus, a layman can't really tell when the bleach should be removed. Depending on how long it's left on, you can come up with brassy yellow, copper, pale yellow or white. This takes training."

Vern Silverman is well aware of the nuances of color. Every day she oversees development and testing of new shades her company will market.

"THE NICE THING is you take 10 women with essentially the same hair color using the same tint, and each will look a little different. It's the color you start with, plus the color you choose, that produces the final result."

Colored hair requires special care. "It isn't just the color," she points out, "there's air pollution and the way we treat our hair — curling, straightening and spraying. If you give your hair extra consideration, such as using a special shampoo and conditioner, you'll enjoy it that much more."

As for summer sun, "Years ago we used to tell women to cover their hair so the sun wouldn't lighten the color. But I've discovered that covering makes many women perspire profusely, so they may be doing more harm than good. Perspiration attacks and distorts the color. So of the two — leave the wraps off and let the sun lighten it the way it does natural hair."

It was between the swinging doors at Woodfield that Teresa Nelligan and Richard J. Derrig Jr. first met. Both were employed there at the time and both recall that Teresa held the door for Richard. Introductions came as they walked through the parking lot to her car.

Teresa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nelligan, 1343 Anderson Drive, Palatine. A graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and of Harper College with a degree in applied science and a certificate in child care, Teresa still works at Woodfield, in the ABC Kiddie Shop

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Derrig, 889 Thornton, Buffalo Grove, are parents of Richard, who studied at the University of Illinois and the Police Training Institute. He has an associate degree from Harper College and is now with the Harper College Police.

THE COUPLE'S wedding took place June 30 in St. Thomas of Villanova Church, Palatine. Sandy Miller, Arlington Heights, was Teresa's maid of honor, and Katie Redmond, Rolling Meadows; Sally Pulak, Champaign; and Judy Derrig, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids

Steve Nelligan, Schaumburg, brother of the bride, was best man, and ushers were a cousin of the bride, Rick Cleys, Chicago; the groom's brother, David; and Doug Foss, Barrington.

The sting: how to avoid it

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

My neighbor is sitting home with both feet swollen the result of gardening barefoot.

This is an annual malady with her, as she claims the wasps lie in wait on her front lawn hoping she'll step on them — and every year she does. You'd think she'd get smart and wear shoes to mow the lawn, but she never does.

Biting insects, such as flies, mosquitoes and gnats, bite to get a meal, but stinging insects, such as wasps, bees and hornets, sting usually only to defend themselves or their homes.

Stinging somebody means death to a honeybee because her stinger is barbed, and in stinging, she tears off part of her body and bleeds to death. So really, a honeybee isn't going to sting anybody just for kicks.

HOWEVER, SHOULD you get stung, resist the urge to pull out the stinger; instead, scrape it out. Pulling will force more venom into the wound and cause greater inflammation.

Perhaps you accidentally disturb a nest or colony; the insects will immediately give off a chemical that serves to alarm all hands (or stingers). They'll come out fast prepared to defend their nest. Your natural impulse is to run away fast. If you do that, you are inviting multiple stings. The eye structure of stinging insects is well suited to detect movement and fast movement is threatening to such insects.

Your best bet is to move away slowly. And you're less likely to get stung while wearing white or other light colored clothes.

If you detect wasps or hornets nests on your roof rafters, wait and remove them during the winter, if possible. If they are causing great nuisance, a safe insecticide would be the use of rotenone after dark. On patios, repel by lighting the barbecue grill. If one should get into your house, go after it with a can of aerosol hair spray.

ACTUALLY HORNETS and yellow jackets are beneficial insects, at times, preying on cabbage worms, but they can be terrible pests in confined places.

My daughter, for instance, is terrified of any kind of buzzing insect in the car. She has "sting-o-phobia" I call it. I've tried to tell her to remain calm, stop jumping around, and we will stop the car when traffic permits and let the insest out.

Bees, hornets, and wasps often cause automobile accidents by inadvertently flying inside the open windows of cars and frightening or distracting drivers.

Unless the occupants strike at such insects or accidentally trap one inside their clothes, these insects probably won't attack. They are usually most happy to be helped to freedom.

I'M GLAD MY daughter wasn't riding with me the other evening. I had the car windows open and a bat flew inside. Thank goodness no accident occurred. I dread to think my telling it to the judge: "Your honor, I had a bat in my Hornet."

That is almost as unusual a defense as the one I heard when I was working in the district attorney's office. When the judge asked the lady how her accident happened, she replied, "A watermelon rolled off the seat, landed on my dog and he bit me." Case dismissed.

Tricks to moving into new apartment

Knowing some of the tricks of moving into a large apartment or condominium building can help make your move easier and avoid grief later on.

So advises Jerome L. Roth, executive vice president of IRMCO Corp., which operates the Belmont and Sovereign apartment hotels in Chicago.

Here are some of the tricks, gleaned from orientation letters which IRMCO sends to all new residents:

- Have your moving company schedule the move property with the building manager. This is important to make sure the elevator is available to move your furniture when you want it.

"During the peak moving periods in May and October, when many people want to use the service elevator at one time, scheduling is critical," Roth says.

- Have your mover determine in advance whether the building elevator and halls can accommodate extra large furniture you may have, such as a long sofa, grand piano or other large pieces. In some cases, you may have to pay extra for elevator modifications to allow these articles to be carried. In other cases, there is no way to accommodate them.

"If you know this in advance, you can often arrange to sell the large furnishing rather than be stuck with it on moving day, with no place to put it," Roth noted.

- Try to get your moving company to quote a flat fee for moving, rather than pay by the hour. Many movers are reluctant to grant this, saying that it's against their procedures. But exceptions frequently are made.

"If you get a fixed price, then you don't have to worry abut delays such as heavy traffic, truck breakdowns, and other circumstances that can run up an hourly bill," the IRMCO executive said.

- Follow the receiving procedures of your building if you expect merchandise to be delivered when you move in and afterward. Most buildings require that all deliveries be made to a receiving area, and generally no C.O D. deliveries are accepted. So make the proper arrangements if you're expecting something
- Did the building management promise that something would be done to your apartment? Get all such promises in writing as a rider to your lease, so there can be no mistake or confusion about what was promised.
- Check your insurance for proper fire, water, and theft coverage. While most building managers will do their utmost to provide safety and security, they are not liable for loss or damage to personal belongings in your apartment or the storage area of the building. See your insurance agent for proper coverage.
- Find out in advance whom to call if you need service in your apartment, such as plumbing, electrical or other repairs. While most buildings will have your apartment shipshape before you move in, there may be certain things that need attention. Sometimes it's the building office that arranges for service orders, other times it's the front desk.
- Determine what to do with cartons, wrappings and other refuse that can't be put down the garbage chute. In most cases, you can't leave these in the corridors. Your building manager will tell you how these are disposed of.
- If you have pets, double check your lease to see if the new building allows them. Most well-run buildings don't permit pets of any kind, except goldfish and caged birds. Finding a new home for your pet before you move can save you embarrassment later on.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Weldner

They honeymoon in St. Louis following a June 29 wedding

After a honeymoon in St. Louis Mary Kay Weisgerber and her bridegroom, Dale Weldner, are residing in Hoffman Estates. Married June 29, Mary Kay is the daughter of the Clarence Weisgerbers, 706 E. Redwood Ln., Arlington Heights, and Dale is the son of the Richard Weldners, 1131 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

The 1 p.m. service was held in St. Edna's Church, Arlington Heights, followed by a buffet reception for 150 at Howard Johnson's in Palatine.

Mary Kay chose a princess gown of sata peau with Venise lace bodice and cathedral train. A lace and pearl headpiece held her elbow-length veil and white roses, yellow daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath made up her bouquet.

KAREN WEISGERBER was her sister's maid of honor while Barbara and Pat Weisgerber were bridesmaids for their sister and Nancy Weisgerber was junior bridesmaid. Rosemary Dobbins of Miami, Fla., was also a bridesmaid. All wore apricot dotted swiss voile gowns and carried white daisies, white carnations and baby's breath.

Mike Mieck, Kansas City, Mo., was best man, and the groom's brother, Art of Crystal Lake, and Andy Erbach and Dave Nash, Des Plaines, were ushers.

The new Mrs. Weldner is a 1970 graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows and a May '74 graduate of Marycrest College, Davenport, Iowa. The groom, a 1970 graduate of Arlington High School, is also a graduate of Harper College. He is with Arlington Federal Savings, Arlington Heights.

Red accents highlight Anderson-Alford rites

A red and white color scheme was chosen by Susan Marie Anderson of St. Charles, Ill., for her June 30 wedding.

Surrounded by bridal attendants attired in red and white checked seersucker, she became the bride of Fred Howard Alford of Arlington Heights at 4 p.m. in Baker Memorial Methodist Church, St. Charles.

The attendants' gowns were trimmed in white eyelet lace and complemented by white picture hats with red ribbon bands. Each of the girls carried a single red rose to complete her ensemble.

Susan, daughter of the Alan Andersons, added a touch of color to her nosegay bouquet which was composed of red roses, white carnations and blue bachelor buttons.

THE BRIDE MADE her own gown of white nylon dotted swiss over satin, edging the square neck, long full sleeves and three-tiered skirt with lace. Susan's fingertip veil was held in place by a tiara of lace trimmed with seed pearls.

Sandy Worthley of St. Charles was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Joan and Kathy Anderson, Susan's sisters; Joyce Bennett, Worth, Ill., sister of the groom; and two of Susan's college friends, Denise Rose of Park Forest and Maggie Malloy of Wheeling.

Fred is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris H. Alford of 1720 Chesterfield Dr., Arlington Heights. His brother, David, of Hawthorn Woods, Ill., was his best man, while four of his college friends were groomsmen. They were Wally Carlson, Kankakee; Ted Roberts, River Grove; Bill Nelson, Dixon; and John Moffatt, Crystal Lake.

THE BRIDE AND groom and their friends all went to Illinois Wesleyan University together.

Also in the wedding party was 5-year-old Andi Morris of Springfield, Ill., a nephew of the bride, who served as ring bearer.

Mrs. Fred Alford

An uncle of the bride, the Rev. Richard Oliver, performed the double ring ceremony. Afterwards there was a reception at the Baker Hotel in St. Charles, and the couple then left for a week's honeymoon at the Clock Tower in Rockford.

Fred is an assistant national bank examiner for the Chicago region.

Women Realtors have advantage

A woman's knowledge of the home gives her a distinct advantage over men for counseling in real estate, says the president on the women's council, the National Association of Realtors.

Says president Angeline A. Kopka, "How many men know if a kitchen has an efficient layout, accessibility to appliances and adequate cabinet space? How many men can tell whether the laundry area is in a convenient location, whether there is enough closet space and whether the traffic pattern is favorable? Because many women have an inherent knowledge of the real estate product, the home, they start out with a greater insight into home buyers' and sellers' needs than most men."

Child abuse study planned

A federally-funded study of child abuse will be conducted in the Chicago area during the next 18 months.

The project, to develop and analyze data on the factors involved in child abuse and serious neglect, will be conducted by the research department of the Council for Community Services in Metropolitan Chicago under a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"The abuse and neglect of children are hideous realities of our society," said John H. Ballard, executive director of the Council. "That these shocking conditions have existed for ages, and persist in spite of governmental action and considerable public attention in recent years, indicates the complexity of the problem and the difficulty in finding a solution."

"THIS STUDY, commissioned by HEW's National Institute of Mental Health, is aimed at gathering data to provide greater insights into the underlying factors, circumstances and family problems surrounding child abuse cases," he said.

"Present efforts to deal with child abuse are largely after-the-fact," Ballard added. "What must be developed is better prevention — intervening when the family is first in trouble, before the child is injured."

The amount of the grant is $109,500.

Richard E. Friedman, regional director of HEW, which funds a portion of state and local child welfare services, said he was particularly interested in this project because the magnitude of the child abuse problem is not properly understood.

this project because the magnitude of the child abuse problem is not properly understood.

"State laws mandating both the reporting of suspected cases and appropriate follow-up by official agencies have certainly increased the number of cases brought to the public's attention," he said. "But the true number and nature of abuse cases is unknown, here and throughout the country."

Jean E. Bedger, Council research director, said the survey will focus on obtaining data on the following:

- Kinds of abuse. Physical, psychological.
- Family structure. Household composition, stability and cultural background.
- Family functioning. Relationships of family members to each other, with the community. The kinds of violence found within the family and the attitude towards violence.
- Special problems in the family. Physical and mental health; economic and social problems.

The project will look for better ways to estimate the number of suspected cases and unreported incidence.

"Serious attention must be paid to the problems and needs of families," Miss Bedger said. "Not only must there be protection for the infants and children; counseling and supporting services must be available to help parents who release pressure and hostilities on their children.

"What is discovered in this study will have nationwide applicability," Miss Bedger said. "However, it will be of particular significance to Chicago area planners."

Miss Bedger said a report on the findings will be published when the survey is completed.

For a Happy Life

It's fun in July to:

1. Browse through your cookbooks looking for new recipes and ideas.
2. Step outdoors and look at the stars before going to bed at night.
3. Think of one way you can simplify your life.
4. Start thinking about making fall dresses for school.
5. Make it a family project to wax and polish the car. Park it under a shade tree and serve lemonade during the rest breaks.
6. Plan a family reunion for early fall. Set the place and date right now.
7. Splurge! Buy some canned crabmeat and prepare a luscious salad.
8. Note this by Goethe: "The sum which two married people owe to one another defies calculation. It is an infinite debt, which can only be discharged through all eternity."

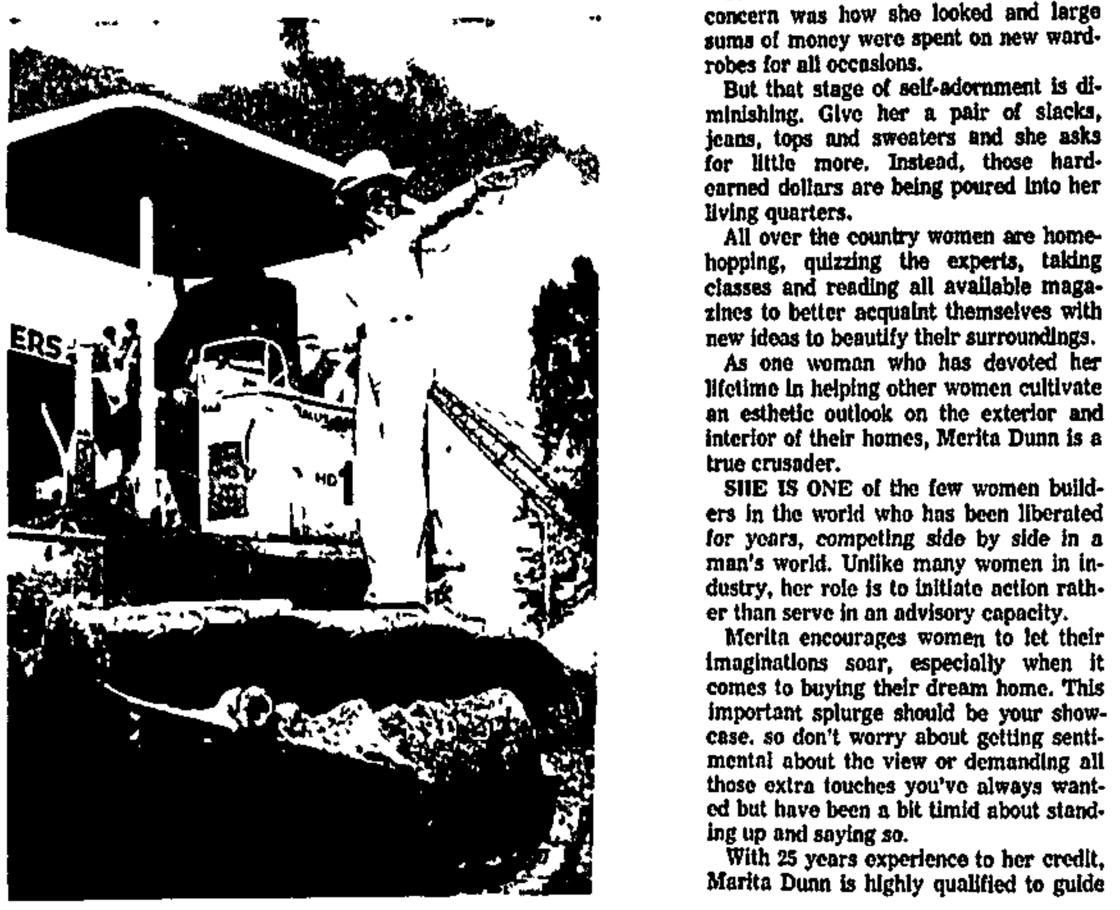
Woman builder builds for women



AS MUCH AT HOME on a bulldozer as in her kitchen, Merita Dunn has been building homes for some 17 years, both luxury and moderately priced apartments and townhouses in sunny Florida.

by HELEN HENNESSY

There was a time when a lady's main concern was how she looked and large sums of money were spent on new wardrobes for all occasions.

But that stage of self-adornment is diminishing. Give her a pair of slacks, jeans, tops and sweaters and she asks for little more. Instead, those hard-earned dollars are being poured into her living quarters.

All over the country women are home-hopping, quizzing the experts, taking classes and reading all available magazines to better acquaint themselves with new ideas to beautify their surroundings.

As one woman who has devoted her lifetime in helping other women cultivate an esthetic outlook on the exterior and interior of their homes, Merita Dunn is a true crusader.

SHE IS ONE of the few women builders in the world who has been liberated for years, competing side by side in a man's world. Unlike many women in industry, her role is to initiate action rather than serve in an advisory capacity.

Merita encourages women to let their imaginations soar, especially when it comes to buying their dream home. This important splurge should be your showcase. so don't worry about getting sentimental about the view or demanding all those extra touches you've always wanted but have been a bit timid about standing up and saying so.

With 25 years experience to her credit, Marita Dunn is highly qualified to guide and advise new residents who are seeking a haven in the sunny South. Statistics show people ditching hometowns all over the country for a place in the sun — the Gold Coast, a most sought-after area, all the way from Hollywood, Fort Lauderdale to the Palm Beaches.

MERITA HAS built her share of homes in Florida. Born into a family of builders, she began her career constructing lakeside cottages in Alabama. She moved to Florida 17 years ago, building some 200 luxury homes in the $100,000 to $400,000 price category for leading socialites.

Her latest development, Isla Merita, is a large-scale project in western Broward County near Fort Lauderdale where she is building more moderate-priced garden apartments and town houses.

Merita's models are decorated to illustrate the breezy feeling in tune with Florida living. Her complete package helps women visualize the over-all concept of a new life. And she offers guide lines on how to decorate to suit the lifestyle, flare and personality of each individual.

Here are some of her tips for Florida-bound families.

- A warmer climate calls for lighter pieces. Just as you discard heavy wools and furlined coats, leave the heavy furniture behind too.
- Save money and frustration by getting rid of all excess baggage.
- Carpeting will probably be your biggest investment. If carpet is included in the purchase price of your home check the quality. You may want to invest a bit more and get a higher grade. Consider not only beauty but durability and stain resistance. Buy thick padding. It prolongs the life of the carpet.
- The color of your carpeting will be the inspiration for your entire decorating theme. Think of shags and tweeds for informal rooms, velvety textures and sculptured designs for formal areas. Stay with one basic color varying its value from one room to the next. Most successful color schemes are the ones with few colors. White is always in. It spreads calmness and serenity and produces an illusion of space.
- There are no rules that say you have to stick to furnishings from one particular period. A dramatic effect can be created by mixing modern furniture with old pieces.

Some moving tips to consider — give yourself plenty of time to plan and execute the move.

Check the moving company's insurance policy carefully. If you have items of considerable value, have them appraised and list them separately on insurance inventory.

Keep an accurate record of all moving costs including travel expenses. They are often tax deductible.

Keep the weight of your cartons under 50 pounds. For added protection use plenty of packing material around the articles inside.

Fresh air party

Host an outdoor cocktail party for an easy and economical way to entertain this summer. Fresh air and informality insure a good time for all, and finger foods prepared ahead leave you free to enjoy the party..

Keep the drinks simple too. Offer a refreshing punch or mix up a batch of Bloody Mary's, always popular with a crowd. Serving one basic drink will make it easy to estimate quantities and keep your costs down.

This carefree party,is adaptable to any backyard, or even an apartment terrace, depending on the number of guests. Recipes can be doubled for a larger crowd.

Prepare one hot hors d'oeuvre like Hibachi Deviled Chicken on your barbecue grill. Partially cooked ahead, the chicken is basted with a sweet pineapple glaze as it heats over the coals. A Zesty Cheese Mold, crowned with nuts, adds a festive touch to the snack table. Smooth and creamy, it spreads beautifully on assorted crackers. The Health Snack Mix, an updated version of an old favorite, is the perfect drink accompaniment. Soy and sunflower nuts give this cereal mix a new twist. Antipasto Tuna Rolls round out our economical party menu. Flavored with garlic and peppers these hearty finger sandwiches are a tasty treat.

GARDEN-FRESH cherry tomatoes are a natural on Mrs. Fritz Michaelis' menus during the summer. To create an unusual salad, she halves the tomatoes and mixes them with olive oil, salt, pepper, paprika and marjoram.

Mrs. Fritz Michaelis

Her garden is a nutritional asset

by LOIS SEILER

Nutrition is the key word in Fay Michaelis' culinary endeavors. This Arlington Heights homemaker became interested in natural foods several years ago and her interest expanded from emphasizing nourishing meals to growing her own vegetables organically.

"Each year our garden grows bigger and the grassy area grows smaller," Fay mused. "When vegetables are picked fresh and used immediately, they retain all their food value and are at their peak of flavor."

Uninterested in elaborate recipes, Fay leave the gourmet cooking to her husband, Fritz, who loves to experiment with food. She concentrates on simplicity as well as good taste, but Fritz concurs that fresh, organically-grown vegetables also enhance the flavor of a dish.

Fay prefers using raw vegetables as much as possible and has developed several different salads utilizing them. One of her favorites is a cherry tomato salad. She grows her own cherry tomatoes, and mixes them with olive oil, seasonings and marjoram.

Another specialty is Norwegian Cucumber Salad, which she says is quite basic and traditional but has just the right proportions and ingredients to make it especially good.

After cucumbers are sprinkled with salt and have the moisture squeezed out, they are marinated in vinegar and honey. Fay often substitutes honey for sugar in recipes because it is a natural sweetener. These cucumbers are sweet-sour with a nice bite.

Last summer Fay worked at developing recipes with yogurt and devised some that appeal to Fritz, who never liked it before. An appetizing relish combines yogurt with fresh grated beets which retain all their vitamins and minerals. It is zipped up with horseradish and sweetened with a bit of honey.

FAY MAKES a point of serving a good salad every day, and all of these go well with barbecued meats. One of the Michaelis' favorites is grilled trout which Fritz makes by wrapping the fish in foil with ham slices, onion, brown sugar and herbs and cooking it outdoors. Hard rolls and beer are ideal accompaniments.

Even Fay's desserts are nutritional. One specialty, Jamaican Sweet Avocado is prepared in a blender. Avocado pulp is mixed with turbinado (raw sugar), sherry and lime or lemon juice. A sprinkling of nutmeg adds the finishing touch.

Simulating the flavor of strawberries and cream is the strawberry sherbet which Fay makes with fresh strawberries, buttermilk and turbinado. It is deliciously refreshing as well as nourishing.

In addition to their extensive vegetable garden, Fay and Fritz grow a variety of herbs, each in their own box with the proper soil mixture. They use these fresh and Fay also dries them in the oven. Placed on a cookie sheet, they take about half a day at 110 degrees.

Fay is accumulating a collection of recipes to use with herbs, and both she and Fritz have made their own cookbooks of specialties which are organized seasonally. Even their son, Klee, 9, is working on his own cookbook of favorites and when their daughter, Mai, 3, is old enough she will surely become involved in this enterprise.

The Michaelis' grind their own grain for bread, both corn and cracked wheat, and during the summer months Fay makes bread sticks in quantity, which she keeps on hand in the freezer.

CHERRY TOMATO SALAD

1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry marjoram
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 quart cherry tomatoes

In a shallow bowl, fork whisk oil with seasonings. Wash tomatoes and cut in half. Add to dressing, lightly stirring with fork. Chill 15 minutes. Makes about 6 servings.

NORWEGIAN CUCUMBER SALAD

3 cucumbers
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons honey
¼ cup white wine vinegar

If parafin coated, peel cucumbers. Slice them very thin and sprinkle slices with salt. Let stand one hour.

Meanwhile, blend together honey and vinegar in a cup.

Hand-squeeze cucumbers and pour off liquid. Pour honey and vinegar dressing over them. Let stand at room temperature for 2 to 3 hours. Refrigerate until time to serve. Serves 8.

BEET YOGURT SALAD

½ cup plain yogurt
2 teaspoons horseradish
½ teaspoon honey
2 cups grated raw beets
Salt to taste

In a medium-size bowl, blend yogurt, horseradish and honey. Add beets and season with salt. Chill half a day. Serves 4.

JAMAICAN SWEET AVOCADO

2 avocados
3 tablespoons sugar
or turbinado (raw sugar)
3 to 4 tablespoons sherry
¼ teaspoon lime or lemon juice
Freshly-grated nutmeg

Halve avocados and scoop pulp into blender. Add sugar, sherry and juice. Blend at medium speed until smooth, stirring top edges in direction of rotation with chopstick to keep mixture moving. Put in small dessert glasses and sprinkle nutmeg on top. Serves 4.

STRAWBERRY SHERBET

1 pint fresh strawberries
1 cup sugar or turbinado (raw sugar)
2 cups buttermilk

Wash and hull strawberries. Place in large bowl with sugar. Mash and beat with electric beater. Blend in buttermilk at low speed. Pour into two refrigerator trays and freeze until edges form an icy mush, about 1½ hours.

Scoop out in chunks and beat with electric beater until slushy consistency. Put in plastic container and freeze firm. Makes 1½ quarts. Serves 6 to 8.

Cucumber soup and crab pie, cool dishes for summer days

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

Dishes to keep cool by are wonderful assets for summer days. Cream of cucumber soup is ideal for the light lunches dictated by hot weather and crab pie has a variety of uses.

To make the soup, combine in a blender 2 cups peeled and coarsely chopped cucumbers (remove seeds if large), 1 cup chicken broth, 1 cup half and half, ¼ cup chopped chives, ¼ cup chopped celery leaves, 3 sprigs parsley, 3 tablespoons soft butter or margarine, and 2 tablespoons flour.

Cover and blend mixture until smooth. Season with salt and pepper. Serve either hot or cold. For the former, put into saucepan and heat thoroughly but do not boil. Garnish with dill weed. Chill for cold serving and garnish with additional chopped cucumber and grated lemon rind. Serves 4 to 6.

The crab pie, recipe for which has been furnished by the people who produce Alaskan King Crab, is a two-step process. First make a cheese pastry.

Sift 1 cup sifted flour with ¼ teaspoon salt. Add ½ cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese. Mix well. Cut in ¼ cup shortening until mixture resembles cornmeal. Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons very cold water and 3 drops hot pepper sauce. Toss with fork until dough holds together.

Shape into a ball, then roll out on a floured board to pie-shell thickness (about 1/8 inch). Put into a 9-inch pie pan and fold under edge of dough, crimping. Prick surface with a fork and bake in a pre-heated 450-degree oven for 10 minutes or until nicely browned. cool.

FOR THE filling, allow 12 ounces cream cheese to soften, then blend with ¾ cup sour cream. Thaw, drain and slice a 6-ounce package of frozen king of crab meat. Add crab to cheese and cream mixture, then stir in ¼ cup each of chopped celery, green pepper, stuffed green olives, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon dill weed, and 2 drops hot pepper sauce.

When filling is well mixed, spoon into the cooled baked pie shell, cover with waxed paper and refrigerate thoroughly (several hours). When ready to serve sprinkle with crushed cheese crackers and sprigs of fresh parsley or parsley flakes. Cut into 6 to 8 servings and place on endive or bibb lettuce leaves for luncheon.

This also can be used as an appetizer cutting into a dozen servings.

For quality and flavor use sweet corn immediately

by Fran Heckart

The secret to delicious fresh sweet corn on the cob is cooking and eating it right away — within a day or two after it's purchased. If it's held longer, the sugar in the kernels starts to turn to starch, and the tenderness and sweet flavor are lost.

Top months for sweet corn are now through August. Although local stores and vegetable markets have adequate supplies, the crop is currently down 25 per cent from the high yield of last year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture figures.

When selecting this native American vegetable watch for signs of freshness and quality. Sweet corn should have kernels that are plump, but not too large, and cover the cob. Look for yellow corn of bright (not deep) color and white corn that is really white. Husks should look fresh and have a good green color. Avoid ears with yellow or dried husks. Silk ends should also be free from decay or worm injury.

If the ears must be held, put them, unhusked, in the crisper of your refrigerator. And don't forget to use them right away.

SWEET CORN has long had the reputation of being one of the more fattening additions to summer menus. More accurately, the calories come from the butter or margarine which nearly always accompany the corn. An ear of corn contains only 65 calories but a tablespoon of butter easily adds another 100. If you insist on corn slathered with butter, chances are your diet will indeed suffer.

When ready to cook, husk the corn and remove silks. Cover ears with boiling water, cover and cook three to five minutes. Do not salt the water, however, adding a couple of teaspoons of sugar seems to give the corn a sweeter taste.

Lift out of water with tongs, drain and serve at once.

A different approach to corn on the cob is to coat it with an herb seasoned bread crumb mixture and bake it.

For six portions remove the husks and silks from six ears of fresh sweet corn. In a medium saucepan melt 1/4 cup butter. Stir in 1 teaspoon salt. Sprinkle 3/4 cup packaged, herb-flavored dry bread crumbs on waxed paper. Brush each ear of corn with salted butter. Then roll in crumb mixture. Place on a rack in a shallow open pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 15 minutes or until corn is cooked.

Household hints

How do you keep mashed sweet potatoes from darkening? Just add a little orange or lemon juice. (About two tablespoons with each quart of mashed sweets.)

If you plan to freeze celery, you should heat it for three minutes in boiling water. Cool promptly in cold water and drain. (It's best to cut the stalks into one-inch lengths.)

Why are nuts filling? It's their fat content. But they prevent between-meal hunger pangs that encourage nibbling. Most common nuts contain about 10 to 25 per cent protein with peanuts highest in protein with about 25 per cent. Do not buy moldy nuts — they may not be safe to eat.

If you have vacant places in your freezer, you should prepare some combination main dishes for freezing, according to USDA home economists. It is more economical to make your own than to purchase commercially prepared frozen dishes.

Essential vitamins

Potassium, and the related mineral sodium, are needed to keep a normal balance of water between the cells and body fluids, according to USDA's research service.

Vitamin K is essential for the manufacture of a substance that helps blood to clot. It's widely distributed in a variety of foods such as green and leafy vegetables, tomatoes, cauliflower, egg yolks, soybean oil and any kind of liver.

Why do we need calcium? It's needed to clot blood, make nerves and muscles function properly and to develop bones.

Children (especially) may be short of vitamin C, because they do not eat enough citrus fruits or juice, tomates, raw cabbage or other foods which are rich sources of that vitamin.

Light, airy pies are summer treat

Angel Pie

"Pie, often foolishly abused," said Artemus Ward, "is a good creature at the right time and in angles of thirty or forty degrees, although in semi-circles and quadrants it may sometimes prove too much for delicate stomachs." No matter how you slice them, the chilled pies of summer are good creatures. Cool and creamy, they provide a refreshing end to dinner or a snack course that cheers.

When the weather is balmy, the hearty pies of winter give way to lighter, airier fare. And Angel Pie is one of the most delectable confections ever to emerge from a pie plate. The Angel Pie has a flaky meringue shell, baked until crisp and lightly brown. Inside the shell is a fluffy mixture of layers of whipped cream and tangy layers of lemon filling. Once formed, the pie goes into the freezer and you eat it in that chilled fashion.

Mocha Marble Chiffon Pie is another winner. Into a baked pastry shell go two fluffy mixtures — vanilla and mocha, the latter based on a delicious mixture of coffee and chocolate. The fillings go into the shell in alternate spoonsful to provide an attractive marbled effect.

Cheesecake is a national favorite that almost nudges out apple pie as America's most popular pastry — and cheese pie is equally welcome. The recipe that follows combines cheese pie fillings with a raspberry ripple and comes to the table with raspberry sauce. It's in a graham cracker crumb crust, too — one of the simplest and most flavorful ways to deal with crust.

ANGEL PIE

Basic Meringue Shell

3 egg whites, at room temperature
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup sugar

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar, salt and vanilla until foamy. Continuously beat in sugar, about 1 tablespoon at a time, at a slow speed. Continue beating until very stiff and glossy. Spread over bottom and side of well greased 9-inch pie plate; push up side to make high rim. Bake at 250 degrees for 1 hour or until dry and slightly browned. Cool.

Filling

3 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups heavy cream
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

In top of double boiler, beat egg yolks until well blended and gradually beat in ¾ cup sugar. Add lemon juice, rind and salt; mix well. Cook over simmering water, stirring almost constantly, until thickened, about 10 minutes. Remove from water and chill in refrigerator.

Combine cream with 1/3 cup sugar and vanilla in chilled bowl. Beat until thick enough to form soft peaks. Spread about 1/3 of whipped cream over bottom of cooled meringue shell and drizzle with 1/3 of cooled lemon mixture. Repeat layering with another 1/3 of cream and lemon mixture, then with remaining third. Freeze several hours or overnight. Makes 8 servings.

MOCHA MARBLE CHIFFON PIE

2/3 cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
1¼ cups milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1½ squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
2 teaspoons powdered coffee
3 egg whites
1/3 cup sugar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell

In medium saucepan, mix 2/3 cup sugar, gelatin and salt. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatin mixture. Place over low heat and stir constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Pour half of mixture into mixing bowl and set aside. To remaining mixture, add melted chocolate and powdered coffee; stir until smooth. (If chocolate is not completely blended, stir over low heat for about 1 minute.) Chill both mixtures, stirring occasionally, until thick enough to mound slightly when dropped from a spoon. If vanilla mixture thickens before the mocha mixture, remove it from refrigerator and leave at room temperature.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually beat in 1/3 cup sugar and continue beating until very stiff. Divide the beaten whites and fold half into the vanilla and half into the mocha mixture. Divide the whipped cream and fold into each mixture. Alternately spoon each mixture into the baked pastry shell. Gently run the tip of a knife through the filling to give it a marbled appearance. Chill until set, several hours or overnight. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RASPBERRY RIPPLE CHEESE PIE

¼ cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/8 teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
1 cup milk
1 package (8 ozs.) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 egg whites
1/3 cup sugar
9-inch graham cracker crumb crust
Raspberry Sauce

Combine ¼ cup sugar, gelatin and salt in a medium saucepan. Beat egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Beat cheese until smooth and creamy; add lemon juice and rind. Gradually beat in gelatin mixture.

Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually add 1/3 cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold into cheese mixture. Spoon half the filling into the pie crust. Drizzle with 2 tablespoons Raspberry Sauce. Spoon remaining filling into the crust. Chill until set, about 3 or 4 hours. To serve, drizzle 2 tablespoons Raspberry Sauce over the top of the pie. Serve remaining sauce over each individual slice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RASPBERRY SAUCE

1 package (10 oz.) frozen raspberries, thawed
2 tablespoons sugar

Drain raspberries. Then puree the berries through a strainer or in electric blender. Strain to remove seeds. Stir in sugar. Makes about 1/3 cup.

Economical frozen whiting, ideal for outdoor barbecues

Crispy Fried Whiting, a new recipe from the National Marine Fishersies Service, is a tasty entree at any time of the year, but it's ideal for outdoor cooking and dining. You could take the fixings for this entree to the beach or campsite in a refrigerated container and cook over an outdoor grill or a campfire if you wish. Plentiful, budget-happy whiting taste great when marinated in commercial French or Italian dressing, then coated cornflake crumbs and fried just until brown and flaky. Offer your own favorite tartar sauce or prepare the tasty but easy-to-make one listed below. Potato salad or a crisp garden salad would make a good accompaniment. If a picnic or camping isn't on your agenda this summer — try this entree for backyard or patio dining.

CRISPY FRIED WHITING

2 pounds dressed whiting, fresh or frozen (about 6 fish)
½ cup commercial French or Italian dressing
¾ cup fine cornflake crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Cooking oil
Tartar Sauce

Thaw frozen fish. Place fish in shallow dish and add French or Italian dressing, turning fish to coat well; cover and let stand in refrigerator one hour. Remove fish from dressing; drain and coat with crumbs. Sprinkle with salt. Place fish in single layer in hot fat in large skillet. Fry over moderate heat, 4 to 5 minutes or until brown on one side. Turn fish carefully and fry 4 to 5 minutes longer or until fish are brown and flake easily when tested with a fork. Drain on paper towels. Serve with favorite tartar or other fish sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

TARTAR SAUCE

½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tablespoon chopped olives
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickle

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Chill. Makes ¾ cup of sauce.

Crispy Fried Whiting

Steak and salad in Oriental style

The warmth of the summer sun sounds like such a pleasant prospect during the cooler months. . .but once it's here, it's best enjoyed only when it's almost gone for the day. That's when the first cool breezes of evening drive away the heat and the sky glows softly pink. That's when it's time to sit on the terrace, with a refreshing iced drink in hand, while you let dinner cook on the charcoal grill.

What could be better on such an evening than gingery marinated pinwheel flank steaks, served with a delicate and cooling molded vegetable salad? It's a meal to savor.

Teriyaki Ginger Marinade will flavor and tenderize the pinwheel flank steaks (sometimes called London broil) so that they're perfect for broiling over charcoal. Sunset Salad melds the flavor of a summer garden. Serve them with frozen egg roll appetizers, cooked on the grill until they're golden brown, for the perfect savory touch.

TERIYAKI GINGER MARINADE

½ cup teriyaki sauce
¼ cup dry red wine
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 teaspoons chopped fresh parsley
1½ teaspoons grated fresh ginger root or ½ teaspoon ground ginger
Dash freshly ground black pepper

Combine ingredients; mix well. Place 6 pinwheel steaks in a flat china or enamel dish; pour marinade over them. Refrigerate for at least three hours, turning steaks occasionally. Makes ¾ cup.

SUNSET SALAD

2 cups tomato juice
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
1 small onion, chopped
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
1 teaspoon soy sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup chopped water chestnuts
½ cup thinly sliced celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper

Combine tomato juice, bay leaf, salt and onion. Boil five minutes. Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Strain tomato juice mixture and pour over gelatin; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add soy sauce and lemon juice. Chill until partially set. Fold in water chestnuts, celery, and green pepper. Turn the mixture into a one-quart mold and chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Makes 6 servings.

Teriyaki Flank Steaks

Home freezer tips

Planning freeze-it-yourself meals? Cooked chicken or turkey casseroles freeze well — in fact, any type of cooked meat used in combination with vegetables will freeze well. Flaky pastry is a good way to top it before freezing.

Two for one? Why not make six — six meat loaves can be made as simply as one. Freeze five in portions for your family. Meat loaf has better quality if frozen baked rather than unbaked, according to USDA home economists.

Cooked dry beans freeze especially well because freezing softens beans somewhat. Cook them until barely tender for best quality frozen product.

Remember, new potatoes are better than mature potatoes in most frozen dishes. Mature potatoes tend to disintegrate or become watery when boiled and then frozen.

Low-cal answers to snack attacks

Most dieters are good as gold at mealtime. Generally, they tend to watch the calorie count; eat moderately. It's the urge for snacks of all kinds that sends the calorie count soaring. The snack attack usually sneaks up on the dieters mid-morning, late afternoon — and especially at night.

If you feel a snack attack creeping up on you, by all means have a nibble, but do stick to low calorie goodies and don't forget to include those calories as part of the total day's intake. Those old standbys — carrot sticks, celery, raw cauliflowerets, cherry tomatoes — often turn the trick.

Fruits are a delicious and low-calorie substitute for pastries when you're on the snack trail, and a simple "frosting" adds a little sweetness and makes them seem more festive. If sweetshop fare is your special weakness, try a thick lemon shake. And each Snow Drop cookie is only 15 calories.

FROSTED FRUITS

1 egg white
Strawberries
Seedless green grapes, broken into small clusters
Granulated sugar

Beat egg white until slightly foamy. Dip whole strawberries and clusters of grapes into beaten egg white. Sprinkle a piece of waxed paper lightly with sugar. Place the dipped grapes on the waxed paper and sprinkle with sugar until they have a uniform coating. Let stand until dried. Each strawberry is about 25 calories and each cluster of grapes, about 35 calories.

SNOW DROPS

3 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon water
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
Confectioners' sugar

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff; set aside. With same beater, beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually beat in sugar and continue beating until very thick. Beat in water, vanilla and almond extract. Sprinkle flour and salt over beaten egg whites; then pour beaten yolks on top. Fold all together gently but thoroughly. Drop by scant teaspoons on foil-covered baking sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes or until slightly browned. Cool, then remove from foil. Lightly sift confectioners' sugar over cookies. Makes about 55 cookies, 15 calories each.

LEMON SHAKE

1½ teaspoons unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1/3 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup skimmed milk
2 cups ice cubes or crushed ice

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water in electric blender. Add boiling water; cover and blend at low speed until gelatin dissolves, about 30 seconds. Add lemon rind, sugar and milk; cover and blend at high speed. Reduce speed to low. Remove cover and add ice cubes one at a time. Blend only until the ice is in very fine pieces and the mixture is frothy. Pour into chilled glasses. Garnish with lemon slices and serve immediately. Makes three 8-ounce servings. 70 calories each.

Low-Calorie Snacks

Meat and poultry prices averaged substantial declines this week, according to a price survey on Monday. Pork chops, down 40 cents, reflected the greatest decrease. Eight-cent declines were noted for ground beef and whole broiler-fryers. Bacon, up six cents, was the only exception.

For the first time in several weeks iceberg lettuce reflected a measurable decline of 16 cents. Celery and canned tomatoes each decreased two cents from a week ago.

All other food prices remained near stable this week.

Food prices are based on averages obtained from four area stores on Monday of each week to measure general trends.

Spice: the life of salad dressing

The first book on salad making was written almost three hundred years ago and the author, John Evelyn, was much concerned with giving salads "a grateful Gust and Vehicle." By "gust and vehicle" he can only have meant the herbs, spices and savory bits which give salads their appetite appeal. These can and should be varied according to the basic ingredients of the salad.

The flavor base of an oil-and-vinegar dressing should be salt, black pepper, dry mustard, onion and garlic. Whatever the dressing, you'd start with these. From there, improvise to give "character" to the dressing by selecting from such spices as curry powder, tarragon, mixed herbs, oregano or basil, cumin seed or chili powder.

How to spark a dressing? Make it good and garlicky if there's to be steak. Stir in tarragon or basil if you're dressing a salad to go with broiled, fried or baked chicken. Chili powder dressing is a favorite with frankfurter and hamburger lovers. An eighth teaspoon ground ginger and a speck more salt works wonders with a dressing which "just needs something." The list of spice combinations for salad dressings is almost endless — the above are just for-instances.

Here are two savory salad dressing recipes for summer salads. The Caraway Dressing is excellent over tossed leafy greens while the Old-Fashioned Cooked Salad Dressing is especially good in potato or tomato salads or when making cole slaw.

CARAWAY SALAD DRESSING

1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 tablespoon water
2 teaspoons caraway seed
¾ cup salad oil
½ cup wine vinegar
2 tablespoons parsley flakes
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper

Rehydrate minced onion in water for 10 minutes. Crush caraway seed in a mortor and pestle, if desired. In a container with a tight fitting lid combine oil, vinegar, parsley flakes, sugar, salt, black pepper, rehydrated onion, and caraway; shake well. Serve over torn salad greens, sliced tomatoes and cucumbers, etc. Yield: about 1½ cups.

OLD-FASHIONED COOKED SALAD DRESSING

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon onion powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon powdered mustard
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup milk
2 egg yolks
¼ cup lemon juice

In a medium saucepan combine flour, sugar, onion powder, salt, mustard, paprika and black pepper. Thoroughly blend in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Blend a little of the hot milk mixture into egg yolks; return all to saucepan; cook gently for 1 minute. Cool slightly; stir in lemon juice; chill. Serve over shredded lettuce or sliced tomatoes. Yield: About 1½ cups.

Treat the family to barbecued beef

The food shopper feels she is on some kind of a price yoyo string. Currently, it seems a better buy to serve more beef cuts whereas a few months ago most families were on a chicken diet. Take advantage of the break in beef prices while it lasts and stock up. For a budget-stretching barbecue try a flank steak rolled, jelly-roll style, and secured with skewers. One flank steak, about 1½ to 1¾ pounds, will make four to six individual steaks. Serve with creamy scrambled eggs for a summer brunch and top both with a Ranchero sauce using green chiles, green pepper and green onions.

BRUNCH MIGNONETTES, RANCHERO

1 flank steak, about 1½ to 1¾ pounds
Instant Meat tenderizer
Ranchero sauce

Prepare all surfaces of meat, one side at a time, with instant meat tenderizer following directions. Roll steak crosswise (from shortest side), fat side out, jelly-roll fashion. Secure steak with 4 skewers (about every ¾ inches). Slice between skewers to get 4 individual steak rollups, equal in size (about 1½ inches thick). Barbecue about 2 to 3 inches from hot coals allowing about 8 to 9 minutes per side for rare, 10 to 11 minutes per side for medium. Serve steak with scrambled eggs, both topped with Ranchero Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Ranchero Sauce: Heat together in small saucepan on barbecue grill, 1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce, ½ green pepper, chopped, 3 green onions, chopped and 2 tablespoons diced green chiles. Simmer 5 minutes.

Note: If desired cut rolled flank steak into 6 individual steaks. Reduce barbecuing time.)

Steak perfection

The ultimate entree is a special steak — Porterhouse, T-bone, sirloin, rib eye or tenderloin. Requiring no preliminary preparation, these are favorites of chefs as well as diners. Each does merit careful attention to be presented at its best. Most important is broiling at a moderate temperature. When cooking on an outdoor grill, this means waiting until the coals are covered with gray ash. Steaks cut at least an inch thick are best for the grill. Take care not to overcook. Since time estimates cannot be exact in variable outdoor conditions, check steaks frequently. Turn them with tongs; don't pierce with a fork allowing juices to escape.

Beef kabob klatch

Kabobs add excitement to outdoor cookery. Cubes or strips of beef threaded on skewers with fruits or vegetables are easy to ready for the grill and delicious when served from it. Let it be "each to his own" for a fun and fast way to conviviality. The vegetable and fruit pieces should be of the size to cook or heat through, as necessary, by the time the meat is done and not before.

Love peaches? Try plum clafouti

Weather played havoc with certain fruit crops this season. For example, the Georgia peach crop is at its lowest since 1964. However, compensating for scarcity of this juicy southern fruit are peaches from California. That state has a bumper crop of peaches and of plums which means that the prices are more reasonable for the next month or two. Capitalize on this and celebrate with a Plum Clafouti, a fresh plum and peach custard-type dessert.

PLUM CLAFOUTI

1 pound fresh California plums (about 6)
1 large fresh California peach, peeled and sliced
Sugar to taste
1½ cups milk
4 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ cup flour
¼ cup sugar
Powdered sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Slice and pit plums. Arrange plum and peach slices in a buttered 2-quart casserole (glass or ceramic). Sprinkle fruit with sugar. Into blender pour milk, eggs and vanilla. Blend 2 seconds, or use rotary beater. Add flour and ¼ cup sugar and blend 5 seconds on high speed. Pour batter over fruit. Bake in middle of oven 1½ hours. Cool slightly. Dust with powdered sugar, if desired. Serve warm or cool. Makes 8 servings.

(Note: The fruit rises to the top during baking. Dessert resembles a baked custard and will sink a little as it cools.)

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

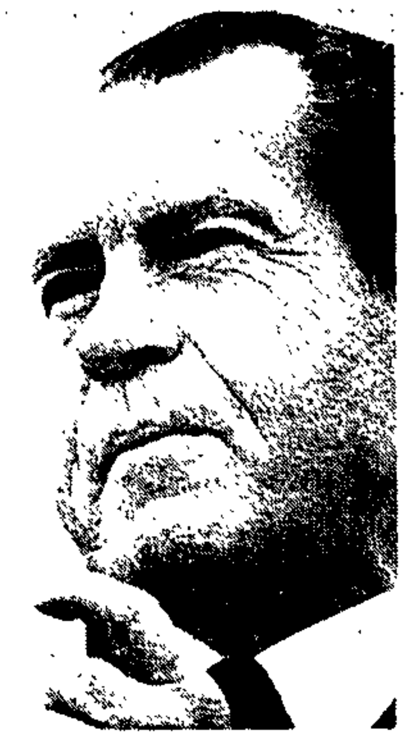
Nixon will give up tapes



RICHARD M. NIXON

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

by BOB LAHEY

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

Homeowners have mixed reactions

Armstrong says town center can benefit 'entire village'

by JOE FRANZ

It will take a "collective effort" if Buffalo Grove's proposed town center will be beneficial to the entire village, says Village Pres. Gary Armstrong.

Armstrong and several members of the village board met Tuesday night with most of the property owners in the proposed 80-acre area, north of Lake-Cook Road, between Buffalo Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 83.

"In my opinion we have a very unique opportunity to do something that hasn't been done before," Armstrong told the audience of about 40 persons. "We want something that will be beneficial to you as property owners and the Village of Buffalo Grove as well.

"There will be a lot of hurdles to cross before we are able to implement a plan for a town center," he continued. "But now is the time to do it and we feel this is an outstanding opportunity."

THE VILLAGE board about a month ago indicated it probably will hire a team of consultants to study the feasibility of a town center at the proposed location. Board members said their decision on hiring the consultant will hinge largely on whether the property owners are willing to go along with the idea.

After watching a short presentation by consultants from Economics Research Associates of Oak Brook, property owners had mixed reactions to the proposal. Some are enthusiastic about the idea, while others fear it will infringe on their rights as property owners.

Armstrong said because the area has multiple property owners there probably will be some points of disagreement, but he emphasized "the village's intention is not to hurt anybody."

"I think if the area is developed properly, the value of the property will increase immeasurably and everyone will benefit," Armstrong said.

AFTER DECIDING whether the town center idea is practical, the consultants will recommend a course of action for the village. Although nothing has been decided, officials say the town center could consist of such things as shopping facilities, offices, recreation areas, a community center, public buildings and multi-family housing.

Armstrong said he does not foresee the area as "just a shopping center." "In my opinion if it were going to be only a shopping center it would be a waste of our time."

Albert Knuth, one of the property owners, said the village would have a much easier time developing the town center if the property was under single ownership. At present, there are 25 property owners in the area.

"I think if it were owned by one party it could be done better and it would be a much smoother operation," he said.

KNUTH SUGGESTED the village consider a bond issue to purchase the property or seek a developer that would be interested in buying the property and building the town center. Armstrong said both are courses of action the village would consider.

No matter what is decided, Knuth urged the village to take some action

Pizza restaurant, offices rejected by village officials

Buffalo Grove officials have turned down a request for a Pizza Hut restaurant and office building near Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads.

The village board voted Monday night 5 to 1 to uphold the plan commission's recommendation. The plan commission rejected the proposal by a 7 to 0 vote about a year ago.

The project has been proposed by the Dominion Development Corp. The current plan is different from that which was approved by the village about two years ago, when the property was annexed to the village.

IN REJECTING the proposal, board members said the plan was not suitable for the site and would create traffic congestion. "I just don't think the project is going to contribute anything to our commercial areas," Trustee James Shirley said.

Alan Foss, vice president of Dominion, said the plan is not undesirable and will not create traffic congestion.

Dominion's attorney, Charles A. Berke, said his client should be allowed to build anything on the property that conforms to the zoning. The current zoning would allow what has been proposed.

VILLAGE ATTY. Richard Raysa said, however, that the village has a right to reject the project if it does not conform with the original site plan.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said last week the developer said he may take the matter to court if the request were denied by the village board. The Herald was unable to contact a Dominion spokesman Tuesday to find out the firm's plans.

Trustee Randall Rathjen, the only one who favored the project, said he feels the board is too restrictive on commercial development. "We (the village) need some of this type of development to help build up a commercial tax base," he said. "Some of this is desirable."

Some members of the village board and plan commission in the past have said they would be reluctant to approve a "franchise type" restaurant, such as Pizza Hut.

Paving on Dundee resumes after 2-month shutdown

Paving on Dundee Road resumed Wednesday after about a two-month shutdown caused by the cement and material truckdrivers' strike.

Albert Sifrer, project engineer for the Illinois Division of Highways, said Greco Contractors, the firm doing the work, hoped to put in 1,400 feet of pavement by Wednesday night.

"They've got cement now and should be able to go along pretty well if the weather remains beautiful like it has been," he said.

Sifrer said all four lanes of Dundee Road should be finished this year if construction materials remain available.

The project consists of widening Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53, through Wheeling Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights. Before paving resumed, two lanes had been installed from Elmhurst Road to about 300 feet west of Buffalo Grove Road.

In addition to widening Dundee Road, the $3 million project consists of realigning Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads where they intersect Dundee Road. The realignments are expected to reduce traffic congestion.

Finally the project provides for replacing 900 feet of Arlington Heights Road, north of Dundee Road. That area has been in disrepair for more than one year and recently was closed to traffic.

Dundee Road has been under construction since September, 1972. Before road construction began almost 14 months ago, another contractor was installing sewers.

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Bervid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Bervid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

by STIRLING MORITA

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

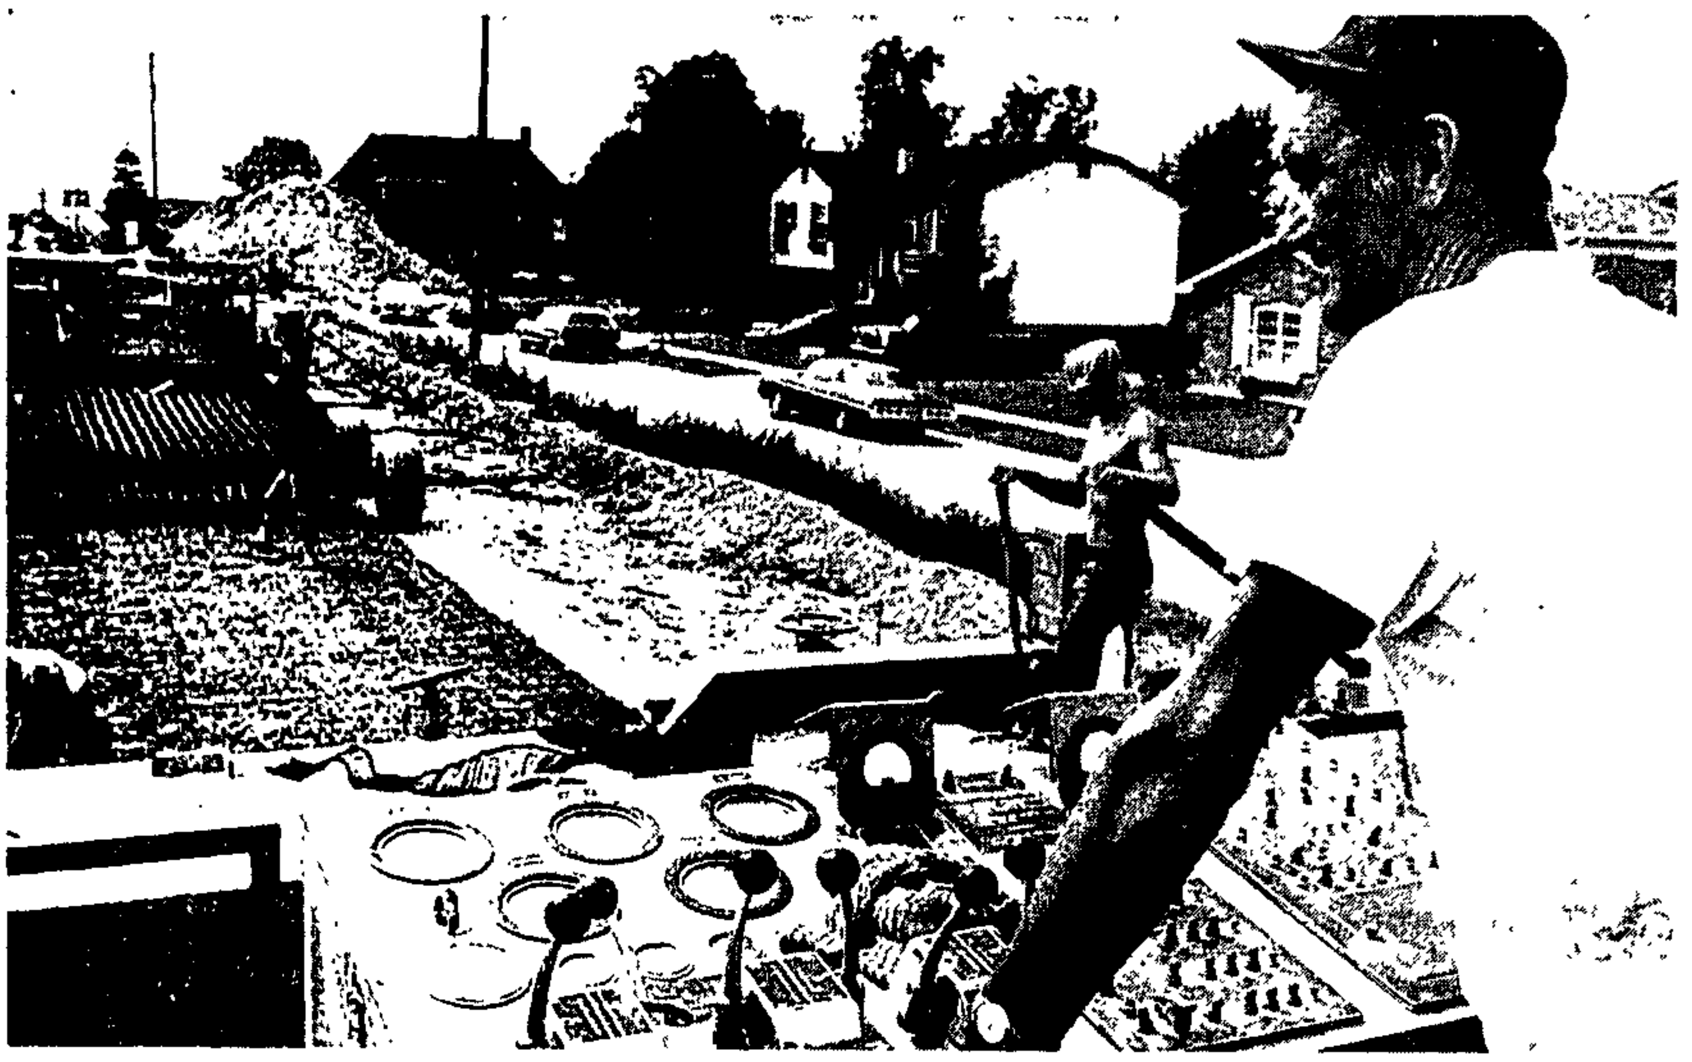
Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.



CONSTRUCTION CREWS along Dundee Road were busy Wednesday as they prepared to pour concrete along the highway. The activity was a change of pace from what has been the norm for the past two months when work was delayed due to a strike by cement truck drivers.

Mrs. Reid hiring expected to get formal OK tonight

The Dist. 21 Board of Education tonight is expected to approve a contract hiring former school board member Mary Joan Reid of Buffalo Grove as public relations and volunteer coordinator for the district.

The meeting is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Mrs. Reid resigned two weeks ago after nearly nine years on the school board to accept the position with the district at an annual salary of $9,000.

Today is the deadline for Dist. 21 residents to apply for the school board seat vacated by Mrs. Reid. Letters of interest should be directed to Jack Lane, school board president, in care of the administration building.

The board will interview candidates and appoint someone to serve until the school board election next April within the next 30 days.

Other items on the agenda for tonight's meeting include:

- Special report on art education in Dist. 21 junior high schools.
- Bus transportation bids.
- Towel bids.
- Home economics equipment bids.

Besides Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Dist. 21 also serves portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

On McHenry Road

Support builds to reduce speed limit

by LYNN ASINOF

A citizens' group working for lower speed limits on McHenry Road from Wheeling to Long Grove is gaining support from various segments of the community, including the police department and a state senator.

At a rally Tuesday, Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposing Slaughter Elimination (CORPSE) received a police department pledge for increased police enforcement of speed limits.

"We've been promised increased police enforcement," said Karen Williams, CORPSE media coordinator. She said that in addition to enforcement of the 50-mile-per-hour speed limit, the police department also will watch for illegal passing on the shoulders of the road.

SEN. BRADLEY M. GLASS, R-Northfield, also endorsed the CORPSE efforts to lower speed limits from 50 to 40 m.p.h. along McHenry Road in Wheeling. He said he would assist the group wherever possible.

"After meeting with the executive committee of CORPSE, the need for a speed limit reduction to 40 m.p.h. or lower and the installation of stoplights on Old McHenry Road became immediately evident," Glass said Wednesday. "I support fully the efforts of CORPSE and pledge my assistance to them in putting an end to the needless traffic accidents in this area."

Glass said he plans to seek more information on the problem and make inquiries of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation in an effort to expedite the speed reduction

"These organizations like the department of transportation get tremendous number of calls and letters and they are continually responding to them and they sometimes become hardened to where there is a real need," Glass said.

Mrs. Williams said CORPSE plans to keep Glass informed of all efforts to lower the speed limits, including a meeting scheduled for next week with a representative of the Illinois Highway Division north area office.

Ray Fonda of that office is scheduled to meet with the CORPSE executive committee Aug. 1 to outline state plans for McHenry Road. Residents plan to push for state reductions in the speed limit as well as the installation of traffic lights at Aptakisic Road and the intersection of McHenry and Elmhurst roads.

THE CORPSE GROUP was formed earlier this month after the state lowered speed limits on a portion of McHenry Road from 55 to 50 miles per hour. Residents said this reduction was insufficient, and are now in the process of organizing a campaign for further reductions.

Complaints about hazardous driving conditions along McHenry Road began when the area began to attract apartment and townhouse projects. Three persons were killed in fatal car accidents along the roadway in the last year.

As part of the campaign to lower speed limits, CORPSE will be distributing bumper stickers that urge drivers to travel at 40 miles an hour along McHenry Road. Signs will also be posted along the roadway to urge drivers to travel at a slower speed.

Since the state sets its speed limits according to the speeds drivers travel, the residents hope to get drivers to travel slower, thus allowing the state to reduce posted speeds.

The group is looking for donations to cover the cost of both the bumper stickers and the signs.

'Fire sale' to boost park grid program

The giant helmet of the Chicago Fire football team will be seen throughout Wheeling Sunday as part of a promotion for the fall Wheeling Park Football Program.

Starting at 10 a.m. the park football committee will travel throughout Wheeling with the helmet distributing registration forms for the football program. Youngsters from third through eighth grades will be eligible for the program, which has been revamped to include better equipment and coaching.

Registration for the program will continue through Aug. 3 at the Heritage Park recreation building, 222 S. Wolf Rd. There is a $15 registration fee to cover the cost of the game jersey and medical insurance.

Following the tour through the village, the football helmet will stop at the K-Mart parking lot on Dundee Road so that youngsters can examine it.

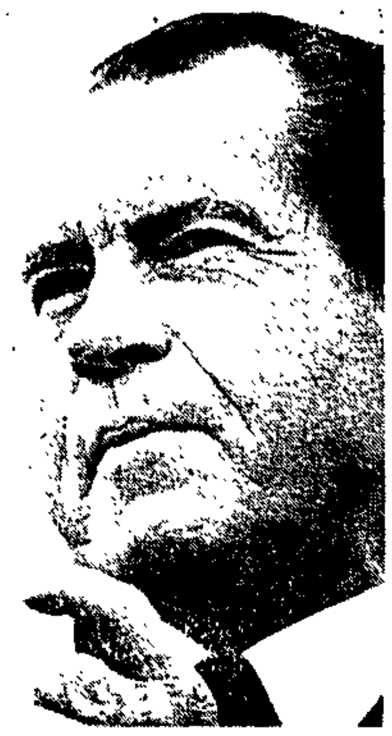
Nixon will give up tapes



RICHARD M. NIXON

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

by BOB LAHEY

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

YESTERDAY'S momentous developments surrounding the major branches of government produced varying reactions from close observers of the impeachment proceedings:

147 acres at $15,000 each

Work to start in spring on 147-acre Oakton campus

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Construction of a permanent campus for Oakton Community College on a 147-acre site approved Tuesday by the college board is expected to begin next spring.

The board has authorized its attorney to draw up legal documents for purchase of the property from the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese for $15,000 an acre. The $2.2 million site is located along the Des Plaines River between Golf and Central roads in unincorporated Maine Township.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said Wednesday, "We're certainly very pleased," to have Oakton located on the site. He said he hopes the city will annex the campus, saying Des Plaines would be able to provide water, sewer and fire and police protection.

"I think it's always good that schools should be in the corporate limits," said Behrel. "We'd be happy to see them in the city."

THE COLLEGE IS still negotiating for purchase of 23 acres owned by the Sisters of the Holy Family, a Catholic Order that operates Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. The property adjoins the permanent campus.

The 170-acre campus was approved by the Illinois Community College Board last March. The state will pay up to 75 per cent of the cost of construction and the remainder will come from local taxes.

Oakton officials hope to complete a master plan for the campus by November. Architects hope to begin construction next spring and open the buildings by the fall of 1977. About 50 acres will be used for buildings, walks, roads and athletic fields, about 40 acres will be devoted to a retention lake and floodplain and the rest will be open space.

The college has been operating in leased facilities at 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, since it opened in 1970.

THE MAINE TOWNSHIP Homeowners Assn. a coalition of 12 homeowner groups in unincorporated Maine Township, still has some reservations about the campus, because it is located in a floodplain.

First National to occupy Superblock office tower

BY STEVE BROWN

The first major tenant for the proposed Superblock office tower will be the First National Bank of Des Plaines, it was announced Wednesday.

Bank officials have filed an application with the U.S. Comptroller of Currency to change location. In a joint announcement made by J. R. Gottleib, president of the company which will develop the $14.5 million office and retail complex, and Frederick F. Webster, chairman of the bank, it was noted that the 12-story office tower will be named the First National Bank of Des Plaines Building.

The bank will occupy the lobby and the first two floors of the 12-story office building. It is anticipated that the bank facilities will occupy about 36,000 square feet of the 175,000-square-foot structure.

OFFICIALS WERE not available for comment Wednesday on the bank's plans for its present facilities at 733 Lee St. or a substantial tract the bank has acquired on the northern part of a block bordered by Prairie, Lee and Graceland streets. The Herald learned several months ago that bank had made tentative plans to develop a multiple-story office facility on that property.

Proponents of the often controversial Superblock project have now elated the groundbreaking date for September. Developers are hoping for occupancy of the structure in early 1976.

The backers of the project met earlier

They can't run to Colorado

Explorers need $2,000 to make Olympics trip

A group of Des Plaines young people have won their way to compete in the National Explorer Olympics next month in Fort Collins, Colo. — but first they have to raise more than $2,000.

Members of Explorers Post 60 from St. Stephen's Church in Des Plaines have earned the right to compete in the national olympics by beating other Explorer units from throughout the area in team and individual athletic events.

The group is hoping to raise the funds for their meals, lodging and transportation to the competition, which is slated to run from Aug. 18 to Aug. 24.

"We will be trying to raise the money in every way possible," said Marvin Martin, an adviser to the Explorer post.

HE NOTED THE group is planning to hold a paper drive, bake sales and other types of fund-raising activities during the next month in an effort to raise as much money as possible to pay for the trip.

"Our biggest problem is a matter of time. We don't have a whole lot of time before the Olympics are scheduled to begin," Martin said.

National Explorer officials expect more than 3,000 explorers from throughout the United States to take part in the competition which includes swimming, gymnastics, track and field and other athletic events plus such activites as public speaking, general knowledge and chess.

Over-all winners of the events will be eligible for college scholarships.

Martin said he hopes the group might be able to arrange a loan that would be repaid after the competition. He also hopes that interested persons might be able to help finance the trip through donations.

CHICAGO-AREA Explorer officials indicated Wednesday that the Des Plaines group probably will be only one of three area groups that will attend the competition.

The officials said this is the third National Explorer Olympics that has been sponsored. The competition is held every two years.

Persons interested in making contributions to help the Explorers travel to Colorado can contact Martin by calling the Des Plaines Health Department at 824-3136.

You guessed it—Illinois motorists pay more for gasoline

by RONALD NORBERG

A driver leaving the Chicago area on vacation will pay lower prices for a tank of gasoline when he reaches neighboring states, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile Assn.

The AAA's figures show gasoline prices, on the average, are lower in Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio, than in Illinois.

Robert Esserman, executive vice president of the Illinois Gasoline Retailers Assn., attributed the price differences to the tax structures in Illinois and its neighbors.

"Gasoline dealers would pay about the same for their allotments all over the country if not for taxes," Esserman said. "The price difference is due to the difference in taxes."

A driver in Illinois, Esserman said, pays 11.5 cents per gallon in road and sales taxes.

"The other states have lower taxes," Esserman said. "This has to affect prices."

THE AAA'S figures showed that a Chicago driver pays an average of 62.5 cents per gallon for premium and 59.5 cents per gallon for regular gasoline.

A driver in Columbus, Ohio, on the other hand, pays an average of 56.1 cents per gallon for premium and 54.1 for regular.

A random survey of 11 Northwest suburban gas stations, conducted Tuesday by The Herald, showed that gas prices for premium average about 62.5 cents per gallon, 58.7 cents per gallon for regular, and 60.2 cents per gallon for lead-free gasoline.

Some stations are charging considerably more than the average. The Mobil station at Dempster Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines, for example, charges 64.1 cents per gallon for premium, 60.1 cents for regular and 64.1 cents for lead-free.

Ron Fazzio, manager of the station, attributed its prices to a price increase to the dealers from the Mobil Oil Company last month.

"Don't think oil prices are going down," Fazzio said. "We're only getting 92 per cent of the gas we received last July."

JACK BERNDT, manager of Jack's Marathon, 710 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, had the same complaint.

"We're only getting 85 per cent of the allotment we received last July," Berndt said. "We've stopped selling gas for a while. We've only got 800 gallons left. That wouldn't last us a full day."

"People just don't see what's coming," said Norb Huecker, who owns an Arco station at 1 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. "There's going to be another gas shortage."

Huecker, whose station charges 64.7 cents per gallon for premium, attributed his prices to the Atlantic Richfield Oil Company's policies.

"Arco's stayed higher than everybody else," he said.

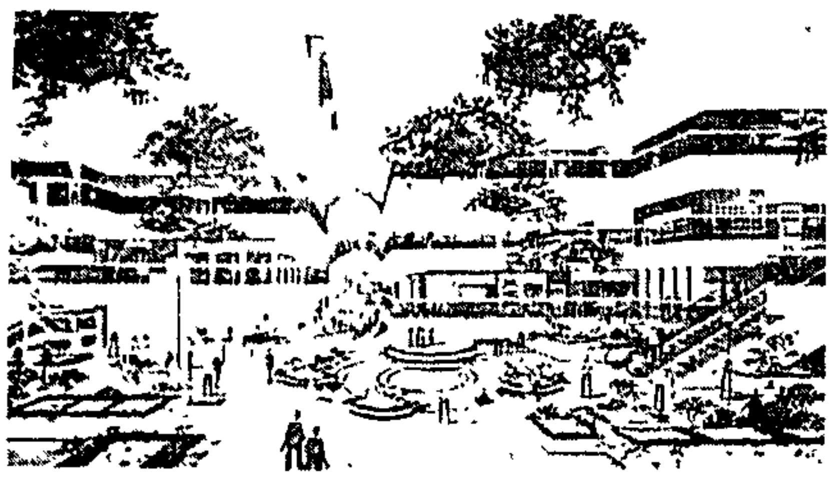
BUT PRICES in the area have not all been on the upward trend.

A spokesman at Ron's Phillips 66 station, 800 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, said prices were cut back 3 cents per gallon for all types of gasoline Monday.

The station now charges 58 cents per gallon for regular and 62 cents per gallon for premium, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for Johnson's Standard station, Route 83 and Oakton Street, Elk Grove Village, said the station has received exactly the same allocation as last July.

Prices at the station are 62.7 cents for premium, 59.7 cents for regular, and 60.7 cents for lead free.



NEW ARCHITECT'S drawings of the proposed Des Plaines Superblock were released Wednesday along with the announcement that the 12-story office tower has officially been named the First National Bank of Des Plaines Building. The exterior view (above) looks onto the building from the corner of Lee Street and Prairie and the interior drawing (below) shows the multiple-level shopping mall that will be attached to the office structure. Occupancy is scheduled for early 1976.

this week with Mayor Herbert H. Behrel to discuss some of the final arrangements for the facility. The city is making plans for a 500-space parking garage on Ellinwood Street between Lee and Pearson streets and a number of water and sewer improvements that will be installed in the development area.

Arthur R. Weiss, bank president, said the proposed relocation will be the fourth time it has moved in larger quarters since the bank was formed in 1913.

Weiss noted the enlarged facilities will allow the bank to improve and expand its services to its customers.

It is expected that Speiglers Department Store will be the major tenant in the 225,000-square-foot retail area planned as part of the overall Superblock development.

Work to begin in spring on 147-acre Oakton campus

Last month the group asked Oakton to see that proper geological studies are made of the site to make sure the college doesn't deplete the water supply of the area or engage in costly construction by building on unsuitable land.

Albert Sompolski, president of the homeowners association, said Wednesday he would like college architects to put up a performance bond saying they will do the construction at a fixed price and will stand any losses if they have problems building in the floodplain. Sompolski said he has no objection to the site but "I have an objection to paying the taxpayers' money indiscriminately."

Oakton Business Mgr. David Hilquist said Wednesday soil borings made on the site show that it is buildable. Additional borings were made to meet requirements of the Capital Development Board which must approve the site before releasing state funds for construction. The Capital Development Board was satisfied with the soil test results, Hilquist said.

HILQUIST SAID college architects, Perkins and Will Architects in Chicago, do not plan to build basements for the campus buildings because the land is in a floodplain. The foundation of the buildings, called a "spread-foot foundation" will only be a few feet deep, said Hilquist.

Hilquist said performance bonds are not usually required of architects but the college will probably ask the architects to insist on one from the building contractors. This sort of performance bond does not insure against unforeseen costs incurred while building the campus, said Hilquist, but it does insure that the contractor will complete the building on time or stand the losses.

Talks continued in church-city zoning dispute

Legal argument in the zoning dispute between the city and the Church of Three Crosses over development of property at Oakton Street and Wolf Road has been continued until Aug. 13.

The church and Dominion Development Corp. are challenging a 1972 zoning decision which denied the request to develop the property.

Witnesses for the church and the development company testified for three days. Robert DiLeonardi, Des Plaines corporation counsel, said he anticipates the hearing will be concluded after several more days of testimony before Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne.

The development company, which agreed to purchase the land if the zoning change was granted, had requested the zoning be changed from single-family to commercial. The developers had proposed construction of a small shopping center, office complex and gasoline station on the land.

Nixon will give up tapes

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

'A visible sigh of relief...'

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

$1.7 million offered for land

Village seeks 38-acre tract at Busse, Landmeier roads

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village trustees have authorized Village Pres. Charles Zettek to offer $1.7 million for a 38-acre tract at Busse and Landmeier roads that the village wants for future use.

The undeveloped farmland at the northeast corner of the intersection is part of the Esther and Dorell Everding estate. Village Mgr. Charles Willis said there are some 25 to 35 heirs who have some claim in the Everding estate.

Willis stressed that Tuesday's action gives Zettek authorization to make the offer but is not the actual purchase of the property. "He will make the offer to the estate subject to the village's ability to obtain financing," said Willis.

Earlier Tuesday night, trustees approved a more than $13 million appropriation ordinance that included an almost $4 million dollar appropriation for land acquisition.

VILLAGE BOARD members had met several times during the year in executive session to discuss land acquisition.

The inclusion of the almost $4 million appropriation for land acquisition was responsible for an 83 per cent jump in the total appropriation figure from the previous year's appropriation.

Without the land acquisition, appropriations in the corporate fund would have been 23 per cent higher than last year's estimate and most department totals averaged 26 per cent higher.

Willis said if the offer to purchase is accepted by the estate the village will have several possible uses of the land from which to choose.

The site could be used for a major water storage reservoir and pumping site if the village were to decide in the future to use Lake Michigan water.

WILLIS SAID THE village is now waiting for a report from its water consultant, Greeley and Hansen. The firm is studying the village's total water supply and distribution system and is reviewing the village's contract with the Tree Towns Water Commission, which also includes Elmhurst, Villa Park and Lombard in DuPage County. The commission in 1972 offered a plan for pumping water from Lake Michigan to the suburbs. Under the plan Elk Grove Village would receive nearly two billion gallons a year.

"We do not face a water shortage now but will have to look to Lake Michigan for water someday. Part of the land could be used for just that purpose," said Willis. "At present we have no other storage area."

The other proposed use for the acreage is as a site for a new public works garage. Willis said the present public works garage is being expanded, but even with the expansion it will not be able to keep

Summer has been sew, sew for 6 high school students

by BOB GALLAS

Kathy Whalen usually runs out of things to do on her summer vacation from school — but not this year.

Miss Whalen and five other girls signed up for a class at Elk Grove High School that guaranteed to keep them busy, sewing 30 costumes for a Shakespearean play.

While all of the girls had previous sewing experience, it was the first exposure to theatrical costuming for all of them. The costumes were made for "Romeo and Juliet," which opens next week at the high school.

MOST OF THE costumes were made from scratch, said teacher Diane Anderson. Some, however, were modified from other plays.

"You'd be surprised what you can do with an 1890s costume," laughed Mrs. Anderson.

Serving mostly as a coordinator for the sewing project, which keeps the girls busy four hours per day, six days per week, Mrs. Anderson said she has been called on to solve a few unexpected problems.

"Someone accidentally sewed a sleeve over a neck opening," said Mrs. Anderson. "Someone else sewed on some trim a little too well, sewing all the way through connecting the front and back of the dress."

THE CLASS ALSO calls for a lot of ingenuity on the part of the seamstresses "We only had one basic pattern," said Mrs. Anderson. "But by varying the trim, no two dresses look alike."

Making costumes is one of the areas of a play that usually goes begging for volunteers, but Mrs. Anderson hopes the 30 rap parks' decision on tennis courts

by BOB GALLAS

Residents of the Winston Grove area, upset with expert opinions that tennis courts cannot be constructed in a park in their area, plan to bring in their own "experts" to rule in the matter in an effor to get park district officials to install the courts.

About 30 members of the Winston Grove Homeowners Assn. attended a meeting Wednesday night to discuss their concerns with Lewis Smith, Elk Grove Park Board president.

Earlier threats from homeowners Pres. James Goggin, that his group would start a movement to "disannex" from the Elk Grove Park District because of the park district's decision not to install the courts, did not materialize. However, those at the meeting apparently refused to believe Smith's contention that experts have ruled soil conditions do not allow a tennis court at the park.

THE PARK IN question, Rachel Carson Park, is located at Kathleen and Worden ways in the area west of Ill. Rte. 53 and south of Nerge Road.

"We are tired of the park district taking our tax dollar and not giving us anything in return for it," Goggin told The Herald.

Two tennis courts and a basketball area were originally scheduled for the park, but park board members decided to move the courts to Link School, about six blocks away, when soil borings found that the park could not support the weight of the courts.

The park district had four soil borings taken at a total cost of $1,000 in an effort to find ground in the park that would support the courts.

Residents at the meeting, however, would not listen to Smith's "expert" reports. Many said they thought the park district had other motives for moving the courts, saying it was "politics."

Following Smith's presentation, the group decided to get information from the park district on the soil borings and park conditions, taking it to their own advisors for another opinion.

SMITH SAID he would "leave the door open" to the possibility that the courts might be moved back to Carson Park, but would offer no commitment.

Smith earlier refuted one idea that possible additions be made to the park that would equal the $30,000 cost for the courts, saying all village taxpayers paid for the courts and that the money was not earmarked for Winston Grove alone.

Some had suggested that the park district build a pool or fieldhouse at the park site. Residents were mainly concerned that taking the courts took away recreation activities for teen-agers and young adults, turning the park into "a large tot lot."

Smith said the park board had not finished plans for the park and that possible further additions could be made to it, working with residents of the area. He could give no specifics at the present time.

The homeowner group set no timetable for reapproaching the park district on the issue.

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Bervid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Bervid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

by STIRLING MORITA

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

You guessed it—Illinois motorists pay more for gasoline

by RONALD NORBERG

A driver leaving the Chicago area on vacation will pay lower prices for a tank of gasoline when he reaches neighboring states, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile Assn.

The AAA's figures show gasoline prices, on the average, are lower in Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio, than in Illinois.

Robert Esserman, executive vice president of the Illinois Gasoline Retailers Assn., attributed the price differences to the tax structures in Illinois and its neighbors.

"Gasoline dealers would pay about the same for their allotments all over the country if not for taxes," Esserman said. "The price difference is due to the difference in taxes."

A driver in Illinois, Esserman said, pays 11.5 cents per gallon in road and sales taxes.

"The other states have lower taxes," Esserman said. "This has to affect prices."

THE AAA'S figures showed that a Chicago driver pays an average of 62.5 cents per gallon for premium and 59.5 cents per gallon for regular gasoline.

A driver in Columbus, Ohio, on the other hand, pays an average of 56.1 cents per gallon for premium and 54.1 for regular.

A random survey of 11 Northwest suburban gas stations, conducted Tuesday by The Herald, showed that gas prices for premium average about 62.5 cents per gallon, 58.7 cents per gallon for regular, and 60.2 cents per gallon for lead-free gasoline.

Some stations are charging considerably more than the average. The Mobil station at Dempster Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines, for example, charges 64.1 cents per gallon for premium, 60.1 cents for regular and 64.1 cents for lead-free.

Ron Fazzio, manager of the station, attributed its prices to a price increase to the dealers from the Mobil Oil Company last month.

"Don't think oil prices are going down," Fazzio said. "We're only getting 92 per cent of the gas we received last July."

JACK BERNDT, manager of Jack's Marathon, 710 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, had the same complaint.

"We're only getting 85 per cent of the allotment we received last July," Berndt said. "We've stopped selling gas for a while. We've only got 800 gallons left. That wouldn't last us a full day."

"People just don't see what's coming," said Norb Huecker, who owns an Arco station at 1 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. "There's going to be another gas shortage."

Huecker, whose station charges 64.7 cents per gallon for premium, attributed his prices to the Atlantic Richfield Oil Company's policies.

"Arco's stayed higher than everybody else," he said.

BUT PRICES in the area have not all been on the upward trend.

A spokesman at Ron's Phillips 66 station, 800 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, said prices were cut back 3 cents per gallon for all types of gasoline Monday.

The station now charges 58 cents per gallon for regular and 62 cents per gallon for premium, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for Johnson's Standard station, Route 83 and Oakton Street, Elk Grove Village, said the station has received exactly the same allocation as last July.

Prices at the station are 62.7 cents for premium, 59.7 cents for regular, and 60.7 cents for lead free.

Village board wrapup

Emergency repairs to sewer line OKd

Emergency repairs to a 24-inch sanitary sewer line in Carlisle Avenue were approved by Elk Grove Village officials Tuesday.

Board members authorized employment of the C. B. Construction Co. to do the repair work on the line at a cost not to exceed $3,762.

The contract with the company was recommended by the director of public works, engineer and village manager because of the depth of the line and ground conditions. The line is located about nine feet deep in the street and portions of it have dropped.

Chief to seek state post

Elk Grove Village officials have authorized Police Chief Harry Jenkins to seek the office of third vice-president of the Illinois Police Chief's Association.

President Charles Zettek said if Jenkins attains the office it would represent an outstanding professional honor to the Chief and the village.

The office is a demanding responsibility that extends for four years, as Jenkins would pass from it through the presidency of the association. At present Jenkins is the sole candidate for the office.

Bus plan to be reviewed

Trustee Nanel Vanderweel, chairman of the transportation committee, set an 8 p.m. Friday meeting to discuss the June statistical report of the village bus program.

Village officials must decide soon if the village will continue the village transportation program. At present the village contracts with Davidsmeyer Bus Co. of Elk Grove Village, operating a special in-town trip service and commuter bus service to the Arlington Heights train station.

The six-month trial contract expires Aug. 31 and is up for review now.

Dwyer charges go before NEC board

by WANDALYN RICE

Eleven teachers from the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night to show their support for the program and its director to the Northwest Education Cooperative Governing Board.

The teachers and teachers aides, all but one of whom, currently are teaching in the Dwyer summer school program, said they feel the charges against the program made by former and present staff members are untrue and unfair.

The group appeared at the Kirk Center in Palatine as the governing board was going into a closed session with those making the charges and officials Martwick's office. The group asked the from Cook County School Supt. Richard board to hear their defense of the program after those making the charges finished their presentation.

Late last night the board was still in closed session.

The teachers supporting the program defended their qualifications and said the charges are hurting the children and parents involved in the program.

William Wallinger, a teacher of intermediate classes, at Dwyer said, "Some of my kids have come up to me and asked me how I have abused them. The parents want to send their kids and the kids want to come and if these allegations were true why would that be?"

The teachers have charged that students have been unnecessarily physically punished in the program, that Dwyer clinical director John Whipple and other members of the staff are unqualified and that Whipple allows "unprofessional" behavior among staff at the school.

Whipple and his attorney were not invited to the closed meeting. Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges to give him the opportunity to cross-examine those making the charges against him.

Among the specific charges some of the teachers have made against Whipple is that he does not have an administrative certificate as required of school administrators in Illinois, that he permits teachers to dress inappropriately and smoke in the classroom and that he has "showed off" the behavior of some severely disturbed children to visitors to the school.

In addition, officials from Martwick's office have indicated they want to check the claims that have been filed for state school aid from Dwyer School to see whether the school may have received more money than it was entitled to.

The Dwyer teachers admitted that some teachers in the program do smoke in the classrooms and in front of the students. However, they said the teachers spend five hours a day with the children without breaks. Since a teacher and teacher aide are both assigned to each classroom to handle the children "if someone goes down to the lounge to smoke it destroys the purpose of having two people in the classroom," said Wallinger.

IN ANOTHER development Wednesday, James Travers, acting director for the Handicapped Children Section of the State School Superintendent's office said he cannot comment about the controversy except to say that no questions about the operation of Dwyer have yet been referred to his office.

Travers said Leo Athas, council for the state superintendent's office, has been working with Martwick on the case. He said, "There is the possibility this will be referred to us at some point."

NEC officials had written to Travers to ask his office to review the Dwyer program when Martwick's office first told them of the charges. Travers said Martwick "has statutory authority" to investigate the matter and said, "We don't want to second guess him until he makes some judgment."

The Dwyer School program is for children from ages 3 to 14. School districts sending children to the program are Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21, Prospect Heights Dist. 23, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Mother takes daughter back; search called off

Lilly Ann finds home—again

by JOHN MAES

A brief search for a 3½-year-old girl, taken by her natural mother from a Maine Township woman who was caring for the child, was called off after police determined that there had been no violation of the law.

The woman, Nahn Koo Lee, 33, took her child, Lilly Ann, early Tuesday from Mrs. Burton Stevens, 8892 Jody Ln., in an unincorporated area near Des Plaines.

Maj. Richard Lowthorp, commander of the Niles Division of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, said Mrs. Lee apparently took her child from Mrs. Stevens because she feared the Stevens' efforts to legally adopt the child would be successful.

POLICE BEGAN an investigation of the incident but discontinued it several hours later when it was determined that Mrs. Lee had broken no laws, Lowthorp said.

The woman is a native Korean living in the United States on a student visa due to expire soon. She will appear for a deportation hearing within a short time, Lowthorp said. She lives in the vicinity of Bethesda, Md., according to reports.

"The child was turned over to the Stevens family with a letter giving them the authority to adopt if anything happened to the mother," Lowthorp said. "Now the mother believes she may have to leave the country and wants her child."

The Stevens filed a petition in Circuit Court late last month to adopt the girl and the mother was sent notice of their intent. She later contacted the couple and told them she wanted her child back.

LILLY ANN WILL become 4 years old in September and has been under the care of the Stevens couple since two days after her birth, said Lowthorp.

He was Miss Lee was unable to take care of her daughter and the Stevens arranged to care for the child, "on a personal basis through a mutual friend."

Lowthorp said Miss Lee waited in the foyer of a building Tuesday morning where Mrs. Stevens was bringing Lilly Ann to leave with a babysitter while she went to work.

A private investigator with her was waiting in an auto outside and when Mrs. Stevens approached about 7:15 a.m., the mother whisked the child away from her and into the waiting car.

LOWTHORP SAID THE investigator, who was questioned by sheriff's police but not charged, took the pair to Zweig's restaurant, 8630 Golf Rd. and dropped them off. They have not been seen since, Lowthorp said.

"It was a private investigator who accompanied her," said Lowthorp. "There's nothing criminally involved about the action. This is something civil."

Mrs. Stevens as well as an attorney for the couple declined to comment on what would happen to the adoption effort.

He did say however, the Stevenses are registered foster parents in several states and have been caring for foster children "for a substantial number of years."

THEY'RE OFF and running. More than 180 boys and girls competed in the Elk Grove Village Olympics last week. Winners represented the local park district at the Paddock Olympics which wound up Wednesday.

Glenview man gets probation in drug case

A Glenview man has been placed on two years' probation after admitting his involvement in a six-man drug ring broken up by the Metropolitan Enforcement Group earlier this year.

George Nowak, 21, of 1531 Maple, in the suburb, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of possession of marijuana before Judge Anton Smigiel Tuesday in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Cases against two other suspects facing charges in the case were continued. Steven P. Best, 18, of 8974 Western Ave., and Edward Mueller, 21 of 2157 Elmira Ave., both of Des Plaines, will appear again in Niles Aug. 27.

Both men face several counts each of possession and sale of drugs.

Two other men charged in the case, Neil Fagrelius, 20, of Des Plaines, and Allen Borre, 21, of Arlington Heights, face a Grand Jury hearing for their alleged involvement in the ring.

Charges against a sixth man, Edward Miskiewicz, 20, of Niles, were dropped last month.

All six were arrested last February by undercover agents in connection with the drug operation that included some narcotics said to have been stolen from Lutheran General Hospital.

Four of the suspects were former hospital employes.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Nixon will give up tapes

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

'A visible sigh of relief...'

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

YESTERDAY'S momentous developments surrounding the major branches of government produced varying reactions from close observers of the impeachment proceedings:

Village panel hits development for Old Madrid

The flexibility of proposed plans for the development of the Old Madrid complex at Baldwin and Hicks roads was objected to by the planning, building and zoning committee of the Palatine Village Board.

Among the changes requested by the panel were: more strict height limitations, a tighter time schedule for construction, restrictions on the uses of commercial area, a reduction of the seven liquor licenses sought, architectural renderings of the buildings, and a market study.

This ordinance is so loosely drawn it gives the developer carte blanche approval, said Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., committee chairman.

The revised plans for the development of the 66-acre Old Madrid complex call for nine condominiums or apartment buildings, an 18-acre shopping center, an 8-acre office/commercial area, and 10-acre recreation, commercial area.

THE PALATINE Zoning Board of Appeals, while agreeing with the plan's concept, recommended denial because it wanted more information on the present plan and a tighter ordinance, said David Kuh, zoning board chairman.

Five votes of the village board are required to overturn the zoning board's decision.

Three trustees had indicated they will vote against the plan if a provision which would allow either the developer of the shopping center, existing apartment buildings, or remainder of the parcel to default without affecting the other owners, was not stricken from the ordinance.

Three instead of seven liquor licenses were suggested as reasonable by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. The trustees also indicated they objected to a restaurant and lounge atop the existing 14-story apartment building.

Jones said he thought the board would unanimously approve the revised plans if the changes were made and additional information supplied.

11 teachers defend Dwyer before NEC board

by WANDALYN RICE

Eleven teachers from the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night to show their support for the program and its director to the Northwest Education Cooperative Governing Board.

The teachers and teachers aides, all but one of whom, currently are teaching in the Dwyer summer school program, said they feel the charges against the program made by former and present staff members are untrue and unfair.

The group appeared at the Kirk Center in Palatine as the governing board was going into a closed session with those making the charges and officials from Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office. The group asked the board to hear their defense of the program after those making the charges finished their presentation.

Late last night the board was still in closed session.

The teachers supporting the program defended their qualifications and said the charges are hurting the children and parents involved in the program.

William Wallinger, a teacher of intermediate classes, at Dwyer said, "Some of my kids have come up to me and asked me how I have abused them. The parents want to send their kids and the kids want to come and if these allegations were true why would that be?"

The teachers have charged that students have been unnecessarily physically punished in the program, that Dwyer clinical director John Whipple and other members of the staff are unqualified and that Whipple allows "unprofessional" behavior among staff at the school.

Whipple and his attorney were not invited to the closed meeting. Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges to give him the opportunity to cross-examine those making the charges against him.

Among the specific charges some of the teachers have made against Whipple is that he does not have an administrative certificate as required of school administrators in Illinois, that he permits teachers to dress inappropriately and smoke in the classroom and that he has "showed off" the behavior of some severely disturbed children to visitors to the school.

In addition, officials from Martwick's

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Borvid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Borvid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

by STIRLING MORITA

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Juveniles suspect in blaze

Juveniles are suspected of starting a fire at the Pinebrook Trace Apartments in unincorporated Palatine Township Monday, causing an estimated $15,000 damage.

The Palatine Fire Dept. arrived at the fire at 4:15 p.m. and were assisted by units from the Long Grove, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights fire departments. It took approximately 20 minutes to extinguish the fire.

The fire started in a first flood storage area in a vacant apartment building and was confined to three apartments in the cener of the building, said Barney Langer, assistant fire chief.

Witnesses reported seeing two juveniles leave the building before the fire started. Their names have been turned over to the Cook County Sheriff's Police Dept.

The state fire marshal and Palatine fire inspector, who are investigating the fire.

Pine Brook Trace Apartments are owned by Kassuba Development Corp. and have been vacant since Kassuba went bankrupt. There are 16 apartment buildings in the complex, all are unoccupied.

Andy Craig, a watchman for the complex, said there has been considerable vandalism in the apartments this summer and he has chased juveniles out several times. He also reported finding small fires and beer cans in the buildings.

Special report on Centner to be released

A special report of the Palatine Police and Fire Commission outlining the reasons for the forced resignation of former police chief Robert Centner will be released today.

A meeting of the Palatine Village Board is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St. in Palatine. The police and fire commission held a five-month series of hearings into the reasons for Centner's forced resignation.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that he received a copy of the report Wednesday afternoon from Paul Jung, chairman of the Police and Fire Commission. Jones said that he did not intend to release or comment on the report until tonight's meeting, and added that it was up to the village board to decide whether action will be taken on the recommendations in the report.

The newly elected village board said Centner lacked administrative ability and conducted poor drug control programs, among other charges. He was forced to resign June 25, 1973, and a massive petition drive forced a public hearing.

Centner has served as a lieutenant since then and a new police chief, Jerry Bratcher, was hired from Rochelle, Ill.

You guessed it—Illinois motorists pay more for gasoline

by RONALD NORBERG

A driver leaving the Chicago area on vacation will pay lower prices for a tank of gasoline when he reaches neighboring states, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile Assn.

The AAA's figures show gasoline prices, on the average, are lower in Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio, than in Illinois.

Robert Esserman, executive vice president of the Illinois Gasoline Retailers Assn., attributed the price differences to the tax structures in Illinois and its neighbors.

"Gasoline dealers would pay about the same for their allotments all over the country if not for taxes," Esserman said. "The price difference is due to the difference in taxes."

A driver in Illinois, Esserman said, pays 11.5 cents per gallon in road and sales taxes.

"The other states have lower taxes," Esserman said. "This has to affect prices."

THE AAA'S figures showed that a Chicago driver pays an average of 62.5 cents per gallon for premium and 59.5 cents per gallon for regular gasoline.

A driver in Columbus, Ohio, on the other hand, pays an average of 56.1 cents per gallon for premium and 54.1 for regular.

A random survey of 11 Northwest suburban gas stations, conducted Tuesday by The Herald, showed that gas prices for premium average about 62.5 cents per gallon, 58.7 cents per gallon for regular, and 60.2 cents per gallon for lead-free gasoline.

Some stations are charging considerably more than the average. The Mobil station at Dempster Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines, for example, charges 64.1 cents per gallon for premium, 60.1 cents for regular and 61.1 cents for lead-free.

Ron Fazzio, manager of the station, attributed its prices to a price increase to the dealers from the Mobil Oil Company last month.

"Don't think oil prices are going down," Fazzio said. "We're only getting 92 per cent of the gas we received last July."

JACK BERNDT, manager of Jack's Marathon, 710 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, had the same complaint.

"We're only getting 85 per cent of the allotment we received last July," Berndt said. "We've stopped selling gas for a while. We've only got 800 gallons left. That wouldn't last us a full day."

"People just don't see what's coming," said Norb Huecker, who owns an Arco station at 1 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. "There's going to be another gas shortage."

Huecker, whose station charges 64.7 cents per gallon for premium, attributed his prices to the Atlantic Richfield Oil Company's policies.

"Arco's stayed higher than everybody else," he said.

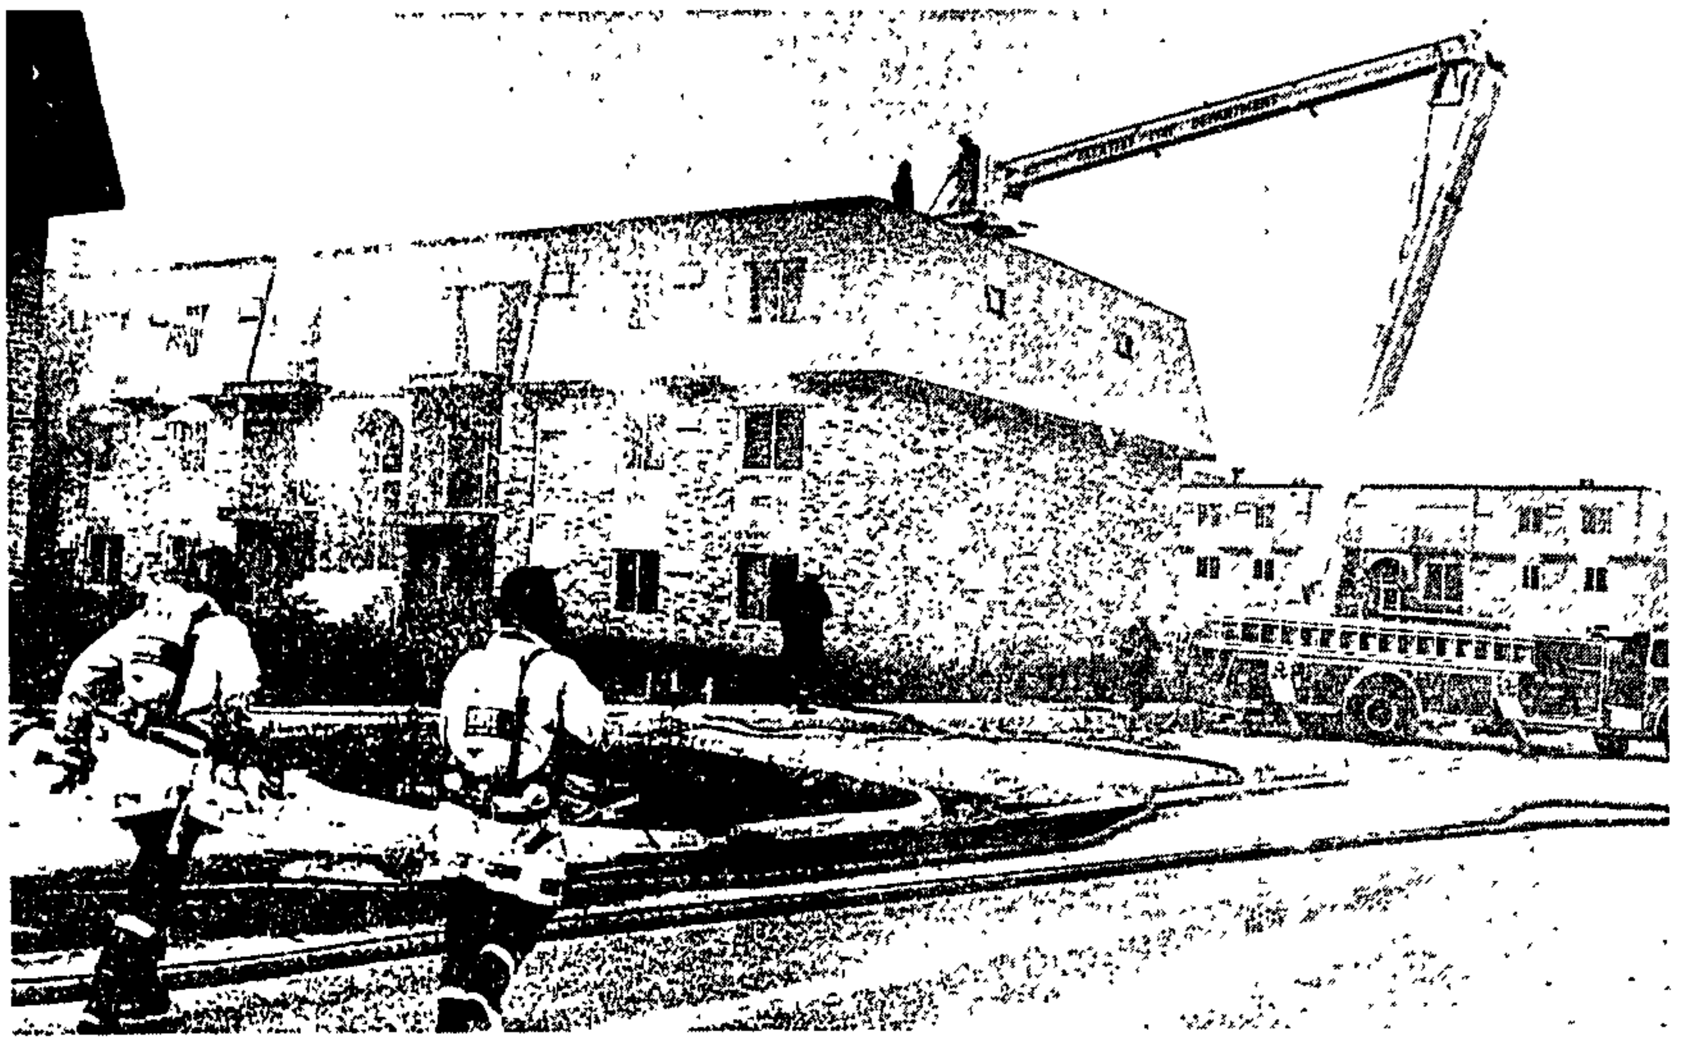
BUT PRICES in the area have not all been on the upward trend.

A spokesman at Ron's Phillips 66 station, 800 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, said prices were cut back 3 cents per gallon for all types of gasoline Monday.

The station now charges 58 cents per gallon for regular and 62 cents per gallon for premium, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for Johnson's Standard station, Route 83 and Oakton Street, Elk Grove Village, said the station has received exactly the same allocation as last July.

Prices at the station are 62.7 cents for premium, 59.7 cents for regular, and 60.7 cents for lead free.



PALATINE FIREMEN rush to the scene of Wednesday's fire at the Pinebrook Trace Apartment Complex in Palatine Township. Two juveniles are believed to have started the fire which caused $15,000 damage. The apartment buildings are not yet completed and have no tenants.

Governments join to ease area flooding

A project to ease flooding in unincorporated areas of Palatine Township is being completed through a joint effort of area governmental bodies.

The Palatine Township Highway Dept., the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and the Village of Inverness are working together to install 600 feet of 20-inch drain tile to ease the serious flooding along Arlington Road in western Palatine Township.

The $5,000 project is being paid for jointly by the three bodies.

The highway department and the abatement district repaired and replaced broken drainage tiles along Arlington Road last year. The Cook County Highway Dept. repaired damage to a storm basin installed last year along Ela Road which will also help to improve flood control in the area.

The drainage tiles, being supplied by Inverness and the township highway department, will run under Jules Road, through an Inverness park, and discharge into a tributary of Salt Creek.

Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner, said a similar project is being planned for the southeastern end of the township, between the township highway department and the village of Palatine, to ease flooding at Vermont Street and Wilmette Avenue.

Village may fund road plan

The Village of Palatine may fund a nearly $2 million proposed improvement project on Palatine Road through the central business district.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has asked the Illinois Department of Transportation to include Palatine Road in their 10-year priority list for improvements or transfer control of the road to the village.

A letter received by the village last week reads, "The Illinois Dept. of Transportation finds the complete transfer of maintenance, administrative, and jurisdictional control of Palatine Road from Cedar Street to U.S. Rte. 14 to the City of Palatine to be completely acceptable."

Prior to proceeding with the transfer of the state's portion of Palatine Road, the village wants to receive written confirmation that improvements on Palatine Road will not be made by the state within the next 10 years.

"If they deny our plans we should consider taking over jurisdiction so we can control our own destiny," said Jones.

"There is a lot of money involved and our priorities may not be any better than theirs," said Trustee Fred H. Zajonc, chairman of the streets and traffic committee.

JONES INDICATED Palatine Road improvements are the first priority in the village and are essential to the downtown redevelopment plan. The improvements could be partially financed from motor fuel taxes, but a special assessment or sale of bonds would be necessary to complete the entire project.

A traffic engineering study of the central business district was recently completed by Rolfe T. Gustus. The study called for widening of Palatine Road to four lanes between Northwest Highway and Quentin Road and several intersection improvements along Palatine Road.

The intersections of Palatine and Plum Grove roads and Palatine Road and Brockway Street were given priority in the study. Recommended improvements are two through lanes and left and right turn bays from all approaches at both intersections.

Rural parks propose 144,000 budget

The Palatine Rural Park District expects it will need a budget of $144,000 in 1975-76, a 23 per cent increase over this year.

The Palatine Rural Park District serves most of the unincorporated areas of Palatine Township.

The recommended budget increase would mean a tax increase of $3 50 per $10,000 equalized assessed valuation for rural park district residents. The present tax rate is $14 50 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Next year's estimated $18 tax rate is expected to be increased further by a $1 50 tax from the recent $350,000 general obligation bonds authorized by the park district board. This will make the 1975-76 tax rate $23 per $10,000 assessed valuation for members of the rural park district.

The budget increase for next year is partly due to the district's hiring of a part-time program director with a $7,000 a year salary, and the expense of the district's first recreation equipment estimated at $53,000.

New expenses in the district's corporate fund that will also cause the budget increase include $10,000 for land acquisition, $6 000 for the district's master plan, $27,175 for landscaping, and $27,175 for the purchase of equipment.

The rural park district board adopted an appropriation ordinance Monday night which outlines the limitations of the present year's spending and estimates the district's monetary needs for 1975-76. The ordinance will be used to prepare a tax levy ordinance that will be adopted by the board in the fall to generate taxes for 1975-76

Estimated figures for future spending are normally higher than figures in the present year's budget to insure that sufficient tax funds are available to the district.

Pepper Tree park plan opposed

A park planned in the Pepper Tree subdivision by the Palatine Rural Park District has met opposition from some area residents.

A petition and a statement of objections to the rural park district board will be presented at its next meeting, Aug. 26

Wayne Petersen, president of the Pepper Tree Homeowners Assn., said area residents were opposed to a high chain-link fence that would be built around the proposed park, and the high-intensity flood lights that would be installed for the night use of the tennis courts. Residents also are opposed to the traffic that a tennis court would attract to the area, Petersen said.

RURAL PARK district officials have been negotiating with Kaufman and Broad, developers of the subdivision, to buy a four-lot, one-acre area near Pepper Tree and Garden Road.

Thomas Patten, rural park district president, said that if the lots are purchased, they would probably be used for two tennis courts, a "tot" playground, and a heavily landscaped area with trees and shrubs that would "buffer" the nearby homes.

Rural park district officials hope to purchase their first park sites by September using state and federal matching funds in addition to $350,000 in general obligation bonds that the board recently authorized.

Jack Schmitt, 1373 Pepper Tree Dr., has offered an alternative plan for the four-lot area as a park site and hopes to present it to the park district board for consideration next month. Schmitt, whose home borders the proposed site, has suggested that the rural park district develop bicycle paths, a tot lot, volleyball and basketball facilities, swings, and climbing equipment on the property. Schmitt's proposal specifically prohibits the development of tennis courts, asphalt courts, high fences, or floodlights.

THE RURAL PARK district has applied to the Illinois Dept. of Conservation for a state grant that would pay 75 per cent of the park district's cost for land purchase and development, and has applied to the U.S. Dept. of the Interior, Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, for a federal grant that would pay 50 per cent in matching funds.

The district recently requested an evaluation of proposed park sites from the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) to find out which of the possible park sites would be more eligible for state or federal funds.

The commission gave another proposed park site at Home and Oak Avenue a higher rating than it did the four-lot area in Pepper Tree.

Pepper Tree residents are hoping that on the basis of these ratings, the rural park board leans more heavily toward the purchase and development of the Home and Oak Avenue property, Petersen said.

Park officials also are investigating the possible use of newly developed Metropolitan Sanitary District sites off north Plum Grove Road and south Clinton Road.

Nixon will give up tapes

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

First rate hike in three years

City taxicab fares expected to go up by 20% in month

Riders of taxicabs in Rolling Meadows can expect a fare increase of 20 per cent in a month.

The City Transportation Co. of Arlington Heights, which operates four of the six cabs licensed in the city, has been granted a requested increase by the Rolling Meadows City Council.

The rate increase is the first approved for the company in the past three years.

New rates will be 60 cents for the first one-sixth mile, 10 cents for each additional one-sixth mile, $6 per hour traffic delay and waiting time and 75 cents for each mile outside the city limits.

OLD RATES WERE 60 cents for the first two-fifths mile, 10 cents for each additional one-fifth mile, $5 per hour traffic delay and waiting time and 60 cents for each mile outside the city limits.

The new rates will go into effect in about a month, a spokesman for the company said Wednesday.

"We just got notification that it has been approved," said Mrs. Tom Gillen, who works for the company owned by her husband. She said fare boxes will have to be changed and cards placed in the cabs notifying the public of the impending increase before the rates go into effect.

The increase was sought because of rising operating costs, owner Gillen said. He told officials that gasoline costs, labor and wage increases were responsible for the rise.

THE INCREASE APPROVAL is the third granted the company from municipalities in the area. The company, which also operates in Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, was granted the same rate increase by the two municipalities in April and December, respectively.

Two other cabs are operated in the city by the Martin Cab Co. of Des Plaines.

The City Transportation Co. requested the increase in a letter dated May 1. The request was then sent to the city license, police, health and fire committee before council action was taken. Notification of the increase request had to be made 60 days prior to the effective date of the increase.

11 teachers defend Dwyer program

by WANDALYN RICE

Eleven teachers from the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children appeared Wednesday night to show their support for the program and its director to the Northwest Education Cooperative Governing Board.

The teachers and teachers aides, all but one of whom, currently are teaching in the Dwyer summer school program, said they feel the charges against the program made by former and present staff members are untrue and unfair.

The group appeared at the Kirk Center in Palatine as the governing board was going into a closed session with those making the charges and officials Martwick's office. The group asked the from Cook County School Supt. Richard board to hear their defense of the program after those making the charges finished their presentation.

Late last night the board was still in closed session.

The teachers supporting the program defended their qualifications and said the charges are hurting the children and parents involved in the program.

William Wallinger, a teacher of intermediate classes, at Dwyer said, "Some of my kids have come up to me and asked me how I have abused them. The parents want to send their kids and the kids want to come and if these allegations were true why would that be?"

The teachers have charged that students have been unnecessarily physically punished in the program, that Dwyer clinical director John Whipple and other members of the staff are unqualified and that Whipple allows "unprofessional" behavior among staff at the school.

See Wandalyn Rice's

Whipple and his attorney were not invited to the closed meeting. Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges to give him the opportunity to cross-examine those making the charges against him.

Among the specific charges some of the teachers have made against Whipple is that he does not have an administrative certificate as required of school administrators in Illinois, that he permits teachers to dress inappropriately and smoke in the classroom and that he has "showed off" the behavior of some severely disturbed children to visitors to the school.

In addition, officials from Martwick's office have indicated they want to check the claims that have been filed for state school aid from Dwyer School to see whether the school may have received more money than it was entitled to.

The Dwyer teachers admitted that some teachers in the program do smoke in the classrooms and in front of the students. However, they said the teachers spend five hours a day with the children without breaks. Since a teacher and teacher aide are both assigned to each classroom to handle the children "if someone goes down to the lounge to smoke it destroys the purpose of having two people in the classroom," said Wallinger.

IN ANOTHER development Wednesday, James Travers, acting director for the Handicapped Children Section of the State School Superintendent's office said he cannot comment about the controversy except to say that no questions about the operation of Dwyer have yet been referred to his office.

Travers said Leo Athas, council for the state superintendent's office, has been working with Martwick on the case. He said, "There is the possibility this will be referred to us at some point."

NEC officials had written to Travers to ask his office to review the Dwyer program when Martwick's office first told them of the charges. Travers said Martwick "has statutory authority" to investigate the matter and said, "We don't want to second guess him until he makes some judgment."

The Dwyer School program is for children from ages 3 to 14. School districts sending children to the program are Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21, Prospect Heights Dist. 23, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

City wins case with builder

Rolling Meadows has won a court judgment involving a suit filed by a developer.

Fredrick Walter had filed a lawsuit in March, seeking allowance to fill floodplain land for development.

Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne ruled Tuesday for the city. Dunne ruled the city would not be required to permit Walter to fill the property at East Frontage and Central roads in order to build on it.

WALTER HAD filed the suit after the city issued a stop order on a permit to fill the property. Walter sought to fill the land in order to build a nursing home.

Residents living near the site had feared the fill action would cause flooding problems on their land. The area has traditionally suffered flood problems during heavy rains.

City Atty. Donald Rose announced the court decision Tuesday to the Rolling

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Bervid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Bervid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

by STIRLING MORITA

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

City Council wrapup

Cowhey property hearing postponed

A public hearing on the proposed Cowhey property development near Harper College has been postponed by the Rolling Meadows City Council at the request of developer Plato Foufas.

The public hearing was re-set for Aug. 27 after Mayor Roland Meyer told the council Foufas would be unable to attend Tuesday's meeting because of an illness. Meyer said representatives of the developer notified the city late Tuesday that revised plans for the 81-acre townhouse and apartment development had been prepared but that Foufas would be unable to attend the meeting.

Tentative plans have called for the development of 1,080 units on the site near Plum Grove and Quentin roads.

Vacuums too noisy?

Arlington Heights officials have agreed to check the noise level reading of vacuum machines at the Arlington Park Race Track at the request of Rolling Meadows.

Aldermen have reported receiving calls from residents living near the track complaining about the noise of the machines in evening hours. City Atty. Donald Rose contacted village officials who said readings would be taken and if found to exceed the nuisance level appropriate action would be taken.

Sidewalk bid awarded

The Drew Construction Co. Tuesday was awarded the bid for the city's sidewalk maintenance program this year. The company's low bid of $8,750 will pay for maintenance of some 6,000 square feet of pavement.

Payment for lot deferred

Final payment for a $40,000 vacant lot on Meadow Drive next to the city fire station was deferred until title clearance is received. Rose said a three week to month delay until the clear title is received is expected.

The city purchased the property last month

Responsibilities accepted

Maintenance and service responsibilities in the Creekside and Dawngate subdivisions west of Ill. Rte. 53 were formally accepted by the city Tuesday. The council unanimously accepted release of the subdivisions by their developer. Services for the subdivisions have been performed by the city, but the council action completed paperwork on the release of the subdivisions to the city.

Sign requests OKd

Approval was given by the city council Tuesday to requests from Amlings Flowerland and the Bank of Rolling Meadows for new signs on their property. Both requests had gone before special use committees of the council, which recommended approval.

Rezoning for townhouse OKd

The rezoning of a parcel on West Frontage Road near Fairfax Village for a four-unit townhouse was approved.

The site was rezoned to a higher residential classification to accommodate the townhouse to be built by Richard Melone and his family, who will live in the units.

The plan initially had been turned down two weeks ago because some aldermen felt a height limitation within the zoning classification should be included. The council voted to reconsider the plan, including the height limits, and then approved the proposal.

Lot split in two

The subdivision of a lot in the Meadow Edge townhouse development near Plum Grove School was approved by the council Tuesday. The division allows the property to be considered as two lots, one on which recreational facilities for the complex will be located and another as open space.

The division will provide for easier tax assessment accounting of the lots.

Paving bid accepted

A bid of $39,440 from the J. A. Johnson Paving Company for paving work required at wells 1, 2, 5 and 6 was accepted by the council Tuesday. The bid was the lowest of several received for the project. Other bidder was Rock Road Construction Co. which bid $39,578. The Hardin Paving Co. declined to bid.

Special commission created

A special zoning commission to consider St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Assn.'s request for a site at Kirchoff and East Frontage Road was created by the city council Tuesday.

The commission will consider rezoning of the residential property to a commercial classification for the S & L branch.

Appointed by Meyer to serve on the commission were plan commission members Carl Couve, Elizabeth Brissenden, Richard Schar, Richard Blane, Robert Byrnes, Bud Torcom and Bernard Macklin. Alternate will be Keith Bane.

Committee to study signs

A special use committee was appointed by Meyer to consider the Three Fountains apartment complex request for new signs. The committee will consist of license, police, health and fire committee members Ald. Thomas Scanlan, 1st, Ald. William Ahrens, 2nd, Ald. Kenneth Retzke, 5th, and Ald. James Huddleston, 4th.

Paramedics receive gift

A special training device to identify lacerations and wounds was presented to the Rolling Meadows Fire Dept. paramedics Tuesday by the Rolling Meadows Jaycee-ettes.

The device was purchased through money raised by the organization last year in a special Queen of Hearts contest. Presenting the award to fireman Robert Cooney, who represented the department, was Kathy Wiggins of the organization.

Jacobsens to resign

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jacobsen, both members of the plan commission, will resign at the end of the month. Meyer announced the resignation of the couple, who will be moving with their family to Crystal Lake.

Mrs. Jacobsen also served as plan commission secretary.

Meyer said persons interested in serving on the commission should submit resumes to him for consideration. Some resumes are already being considered, he said.

Rebate—$126,294.49

Sales tax money collected and rebated to Rolling Meadows for the month of April amounted to $126,294.49, City Clerk Eileen Kornatz reported Tuesday.

City to hire, not appoint, sanitarian

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has authorized City Mgr. James E. Watson to hire a sanitarian as a city employe, instead of appointing someone to the position as a city officer.

The sanitarian job, a mayoral appointment by statute, has been vacant since the June 28 resignation of Donald Schindler. His successor, if appointed, could only expect to serve until the end of Meyer's term in April, 1975. Because of the short job duration, several applicants already interviewed have turned down the job.

The sanitarian is a one-man department responsible for inspecting all businesses, restaurants, swimming pools, new homes and apartments, vending machines, trucks, and garbage areas to see that they meet public standards of health and cleanliness. He has a full-time secretary and part-time summer help to inspect swimming pools.

MEYER SAID that a sanitarian hired by the city manager will not be a department head or a city officer. Thus, his salary might be $1,000 to $1,500 less than the $14,000 to $14,500 discussed as possible for an incoming sanitarian. No definite salary has been set.

Meyer said the sanitarian would be responsible to the city manager just as any employe is to his employer. If, at the beginning of the new mayor's term next year, the sanitarian's performance is found to be satisfactory, the new mayor could then appoint him as a city officer for his four-year term.

Meyer said Watson has several candidates for the job whom he will be interviewing in the future. No specific deadlines for hiring a sanitarian were mentioned. Meyer said he is sure Watson will consult the Board of Health and Rolling Meadows Health Officer John Schultz during the interviewing process.

Schultz said he is "very much in favor" of the mayor's decision to allow the city manager to hire a sanitarian. Schultz said a hired sanitarian would overlap the usual appointive periods and eliminate the gaps in sanitarian service that exist in an appointive situation.

Board of Health Pres. Kenneth Johnson also favors a hired sanitarian. He and Board Member Ronald Johnson, along with Schultz, have been looking into Rolling Meadows city statutes concerning the sanitarian's job. They hope to recommend that the sanitarian's job be made a hired position by statute.

City wins fight to stop builder

Meadows City Council. Rose said the judge's order would be entered Wednesday to formally conclude the case, unless an appeal would be filed by Walter.

Walter said Wednesday he did not expect to appeal the decision and said his plans to develop the land may be dropped.

THE CITY twice rejected Walter's plans for the nursing home after meetings were held with the developer and residents in the area. Walter originally sought council approval to rezone the residential land to permit the nursing home structure. He then attempted to obtain a special use authorization to allow the home to be built while the land remained residentially zoned.

City officials stopped Walter from filling the land site because of what they said were conflicts in ownership names on the landfill permit application.

Walter said the landfill was needed to improve building conditions on the site.

Parks hire director for ice skating arena

Richard De Voss, 28 has been hired as facility supervisor for the Rolling Meadows Park District Ice Skating Arena.

He will be in charge of directing the skating programs, hockey leagues, arena organization and arena scheduling, beginning Aug. 22. These duties were formerly split between hockey coordinator Timothy Wheeler and recreation director David Poremba, both of whom left earlier this summer. His annual salary is $10,900.

De Voss, formerly of Cortland, N. Y., has a teaching degree in physical education and industrial arts from Oswego State College.

De Voss also has taught for two years, managed an ice rink in Cortland, and reached the rank of first lieutenant in the Air Force.

An overflow crowd at zone meeting

Residents protest plans for 496-unit development

An estimated 150 residents of four subdivisions in Schaumburg Wednesday night protested plans for a 496-unit development including three 6-story condominium buildings at Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way.

The crowd overflowed the Lincoln Hall meeting room in the Schaumburg Civic Center, where the village's Zoning Board of Appeals heard revised plans which dropped approximately 200 units from the original plan.

As of press time Wednesday night, the residents had not yet presented a petition calling for a halt in multiple-family developments in the village. However, many residents were talking of the petition when they arrived and spokesmen had announced earlier this week they intended to present the petition Wednesday night.

The petition would call for a referendum April 15, 1975, the date of the next village election, opposing all further rezoning of land which abuts single family homes for planned unit developments or commercial use.

THE CATALYST FOR the citizen protest is the proposal for Stratford-on-the-Hills, a 46-acre project planned by R. L. Roth and Associates Ltd.

The project would include 316 townhouses in 54 buildings and 180 condominiums in three 6-story buildings.

The 6-story buildings would be near Weathersfield Way on the eastern side of the project. Although zoning board members suggested moving them closer to Roselle Road, Roth property does not front on Roselle. The project is part of the old Rosenwinkle farm and the Rosenwinkle family has retained ownership of a 10.5 acre strip along Roselle. Board members predicted that land probably will be developed commercially.

Among the earliest residents permitted to speak was James Lyons, 130 Hickory Ln., who presented a chart of existing and pending developments within 1.5 miles of Schaumburg and Roselle roads. Listing numerous projects, he said figures supplied by developers indicated 23,000 people would be residing on about 600 acres of land.

"What right does anybody here have to put 23,000 people on 600 acres?" he asked. "You people call it planned unit development and it stinks," he commented.

ANOTHER RESIDENT who said she had moved from a congested area to Schaumburg, added she could not believe, "I paid $50,000 to get back where I started."

The first resident recognized was Carol Johnson, 334 Hazel Dr., a candidate last year for village trustee. She complained of what she termed "a bottleneck" for residents of the Timbercrest subdivision trying to get onto Roselle Road and suggested the Roth development would contribute to that problem. She asked the zoners to require Roth to include a buffer strip of single family homes within his development where it borders single family property. "We would like to avoid the spot zoning that has been forced upon us by our village plans."

Zoning board members predicted the Roth hearings will be continued to a future date.

NEC board showed real concern: Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick said Wednesday that the Northwest Education Cooperative governing board "showed real concern and sensitivity" when they heard charges of improper operation of the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children.

The board heard nine present and former teachers, accompanied by Martwick, make their charges, in a closed door meeting that lasted for more than three hours.

The teachers have charged that students in the Dwyer program have been unnecessarily physically punished, that Dwyer clinical director John Whipple and other members of the staff are unqualified, and that Whipple has allowed "unprofessional" behavior among staff at the school.

FOLLOWING the meeting, Martwick and his staff commended the teachers who had made the charges for their courage. Martwick said he had told the governing board that he hoped for a fairly quick response to the situation.

Martwick also said, "The governing board was very receptive. I think they showed a real sense of sensitivity and concern for youngsters in the program — which was great."

Following the departure of Martwick and the teachers making the charges, the board went into closed session with a group of teachers now involved with the program who had appeared to support Whipple and refute the charges.

The teachers and teachers aides, all but one of whom, currently are teaching in the Dwyer summer school program, said they feel the charges against the program made by former and present staff members are untrue and unfair.

The group appeared at the Kirk Center in Palatine as the governing board was going into a closed session with those making the charges and officials from Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office. The group asked the board to hear their defense of the program after those making the charges finished their presentation.

The teachers supporting the program defended their qualifications and said the charges are hurting the children and parents involved in the program.

William Wallinger, a teacher of intermediate classes, at Dwyer said, "Some of my kids have come up to me and asked me how I have abused them. The parents want to send their kids and the kids want to come and if these allegations were true why would that be?"

Whipple and his attorney were not invited to the closed meeting. Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges to give him the opportunity to cross-examine those making the charges against him.

Hearing set on firing of park secretary

In a special executive session Sunday night, the Hoffman Estates Park Board will conduct a hearing into the firing last week of Josephine Hagen, wife of the Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. president.

Mrs. Hagen, former executive secretary to Allen Binder, park district director, was fired July 17 by Binder. Binder said Mrs. Hagen was fired for "personal reasons," but declined to comment further.

Mrs. Hagen, wife of Raymond Hagen, said she did not know the exact reasons for the dismissal and that she requested the hearing to learn the reasons.

SHE SAID SHE did not know if the firing had anything to do with her connections with the HEAA, but noted Binder told her on the day of dismissal that "she was the best secretary he ever had."

The HEAA has in the past been critical of park construction work done by the park district and centered most of the criticism on Binder, who is secretary of another community athletic organization, the Hoffman Estates Community Baseball Assn.

Mrs. Hagen several months ago openly criticized an alleged ban that prevented park district employes from attending board meetings.

The hearing, not open to the public, will be at the Vogelei Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Bervid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Bervid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

by STIRLING MORITA

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

You guessed it—Illinois motorists pay more for gasoline

by RONALD NORBERG

A driver leaving the Chicago area on vacation will pay lower prices for a tank of gasoline when he reaches neighboring states, according to figures compiled by the American Automobile Assn.

The AAA's figures show gasoline prices, on the average, are lower in Wisconsin, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio, than in Illinois.

Robert Esserman, executive vice president of the Illinois Gasoline Retailers Assn., attributed the price differences to the tax structures in Illinois and its neighbors.

"Gasoline dealers would pay about the same for their allotments all over the country if not for taxes," Esserman said. "The price difference is due to the difference in taxes."

A driver in Illinois, Esserman said, pays 11.5 cents per gallon in road and sales taxes.

"The other states have lower taxes," Esserman said. "This has to affect prices."

THE AAA'S figures showed that a Chicago driver pays an average of 62.5 cents per gallon for premium and 59.5 cents per gallon for regular gasoline.

A driver in Columbus, Ohio, on the other hand, pays an average of 56.1 cents per gallon for premium and 54.1 for regular.

A random survey of 11 Northwest suburban gas stations, conducted Tuesday by The Herald, showed that gas prices for premium average about 62.5 cents per gallon, 58.7 cents per gallon for regular, and 60.2 cents per gallon for lead-free gasoline.

Some stations are charging considerably more than the average. The Mobil station at Dempster Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines, for example, charges 64.1 cents per gallon for premium, 60.1 cents for regular and 64.1 cents for lead-free.

Ron Fazzio, manager of the station, attributed its prices to a price increase to the dealers from the Mobil Oil Company last month.

"Don't think oil prices are going down," Fazzio said. "We're only getting 92 per cent of the gas we received last July."

JACK BERNDT, manager of Jack's Marathon, 710 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, had the same complaint.

"We're only getting 85 per cent of the allotment we received last July," Berndt said. "We've stopped selling gas for a while. We've only got 800 gallons left. That wouldn't last us a full day."

"People just don't see what's coming," said Norb Huecker, who owns an Arco station at 1 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. "There's going to be another gas shortage."

Huecker, whose station charges 64.7 cents per gallon for premium, attributed his prices to the Atlantic Richfield Oil Company's policies.

"Arco's stayed higher than everybody else," he said.

BUT PRICES in the area have not all been on the upward trend.

A spokesman at Ron's Phillips 66 station, 800 Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, said prices were cut back 3 cents per gallon for all types of gasoline Monday.

The station now charges 58 cents per gallon for regular and 62 cents per gallon for premium, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for Johnson's Standard station, Route 83 and Oakton Street, Elk Grove Village, said the station has received exactly the same allocation as last July.

Prices at the station are 62.7 cents for premium, 59.7 cents for regular, and 60.7 cents for lead free.

Township youth consultant hired

A former Hoffman Estates youth outreach worker accepted the position as Schaumburg Township youth consultant Wednesday night.

Joanne Reid, who had been an outreach worker in Hoffman Estates since last September, resigned from that position July 19 and will begin working for the township Aug. 1.

Mrs. Reid is replacing Claudia Tull, whose resignation becomes effective Aug. 21. Miss Tull is moving to Indianapolis.

"I can't be an outreach worker forever," said Mrs. Reid after the Township Board of Auditors approved her for the post.

She said Hoffman Estates and the township youth workers work closely together, but the size limitations of Hoffman Estates were too restrictive.

"I was satisfied there but I wanted the opportunity to work in the broader range" that being a consultant in Schaumburg Township offered, she said.

AS A YOUTH consultant, Mrs. Reid will counsel, work with the Youth Employment Service, coordinate programs with the schools and community besides working with the youth.

In Hoffman Estates, Mrs. Reid helped establish Place With No Name, the youth drop-in center. She also worked as a volunteer with the youth one year before being hired as an outreach worker.

Mrs. Reid has a master's degree in community mental health from Northern Illinois University and has lived in the area for two years.

In other business, the board approved $15,000 from federal revenue-sharing funds for an alcohol and drug counseling program.

The Northwest Suburban Alcohol-drug dependence program will establish an outpatient center with service to Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships. Wheeling Township also has considered supporting the program.

The center should be open by fall. Similar programs have been operating at three Chicago locations for the last six years. The program, operated through Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois, is nonsectarian.

Work will be completed by early spring

Contract awarded for Walnut Lane sewer line

D. L. Amici Co. of Melrose Park received a contract Tuesday by Schaumburg officials to build the Walnut Lane trunk sewer for $339,959.75.

The trunk sewer is to be completed by early spring with restoration to residents' property to be completed by late spring. The sewer will start at the village's western boundary at Wise Road, go north along the western boundary to the pipe district gasline and then west to Syracuse Road. From Syracuse Road the line will go to Walnut Lane and then south to Schaumburg Road.

The trunk sewer will replace the existing pump station at Weathersfield and Slingerland roads and will service about 80 acres of the Weathersfield subdivision. The development currently being planned by Levitt Residential Communities on the Gray farm also will be serviced by this line.

If Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital builds at Schaumburg and Barrington roads, as reported, it also will be serviced by this trunk line.

LEVITT HAS agreed to pay $247,100 in advance for tap-on fees for this development to help pay for the trunk line. The terms of the agreement currently are being negotiated.

In other business, the board decided that the site east of Schaumburg High School on Schaumburg Road will hold only a police and court facility and that another site will be selected for a post office. Originally a post office also was planned for this site.

The board also approved Evans, Marshall and Pease Co. of Chicago to conduct the village audit for 1974 and the first four months of 1975. The audit will cost $7,500. The four-month audit is necessary because the village is changing the start of its fiscal year from Jan. 1 to May 1 next year.

THE FIRST READING of a refuse ordinance also was approved by the board. The new ordinance would permit residents to put their rubbish out for collection only after sundown of the night before their regular pick-up date.

A stop sign at Salem and Parker drives also was passed by the board.

Employe liability insurance for the mayor and village clerk was discovered to be only $5,000 and $3,000, the state requirement by the finance committee. Other village employes are insured for $250,000. The board approved raising the coverage of the mayor and clerk to $250,000 at a cost of $425.

BGinnings, a restaurant-club to open Aug. 1 in Woodfield Commons, Golf and Meacham roads, received permission for a liquor license from the board.

Nixon will give up tapes

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

by BOB LAHEY

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

YESTERDAY'S momentous developments surrounding the major branches of government produced varying reactions from close observers of the impeachment proceedings:

State will survey traffic on Euclid for second time

A new traffic survey along Euclid Avenue near Wheeling Road will be made by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to determine if conditions in the area warrant greater traffic control measures.

The decision to conduct a second survey of the area came in a letter from the state to River Trials Dist. 26 school Board of Education member Lloyd Demel. Demel and other Dist. 26 residents have been campaigning for more than a year for greater traffic control in the area near Euclid School.

Following its first traffic survey of the area done several months ago, the transportation department determined that present controls were enough to meet the existing needs of the area. Demel responded to this decision by charging the state with "gross disregard" of actual traffic needs of the area.

IN A LETTER TO state regional engineer Sigmund C. Ziejewski, Demel said the need for more traffic signs was not to control speed along Euclid, which is 50 m.p.h. from Wolf Road west to Wheeling Road, but was necessary to allow safe passage for students attending Euclid School.

Demel added that efforts to get action from the state would continue until a stop sign is placed at the Wheeling Road-Euclid Avenue intersection.

The decision to conduct a second traffic survey along Euclid Avenue is currently the only traffic control study planned in the district. Last month the board of education directed the administration to make a study of traffic control needs throughout the district but administration officials said no action has yet been taken.

Supt. John Fridlund said the areas of concern to the district include the Wheeling Road-Euclid Avenue intersection and the area near the intersection of Burning Bush Lane and Kensington Road.

THE CURRENT traffic problems on Kensington Road have been amplified due to the Euclid Avenue detour while construction is underway on Euclid east of Wolf Road, Fridlund said.

During school hours the problem is not as severe because crossing guards serving Park View School are on duty, Fridlund said. The problem exists after school hours when children go to and from Park View.

Fridlund said this traffic problem probably will be alleviated when construction on Euclid is completed and traffic is no longer rerouted onto Kensington. He added that although the state has lowered the speed limit on Kensington from 50 m.p.h. to 45 m.p.h., Fridlund said this is still too high a speed for a road traversed by school children.

New boundaries approved for Jay School students

A boundary committee studying attendance patterns at John Jay School in Mount Prospect has approved a recommended change in boundaries, which eventually will send about 85 Mount Prospect school children to Des Plaines schools.

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 committee approved the change pending in public hearing on the matter Wednesday at Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

The committee will then present their recommendation to the Dist. 59 Board of Education.

The change will affect no children now attending Jay School, 1835 W. Pheasant Tr. The change will move children living in three apartment complexes along Busse Road south of Algonquin Road.

VERY FEW PERSONS now are living in the three complexes, Crystal Towers, Laurel Estates and Forest Cove. Only one, Crystal Towers, is nearing full completion. Projections predict that the three complexes will have an estimated 85 elementary-age school children when finished.

Instead of attending Jay School, children from the three complexes will attend Brentwood School, 260 W. Dulles Rd., Des Plaines.

The charge was made necessary because Jay School is operating at capacity. Brentwood, at the same time, is substantially under capacity.

The committee had earlier eliminated other alternatives to relieving overcrowded conditions at Jay, including buying mobile classrooms, building an addition to the school, holding split shifts or busing one grade level to another school.

OTHER ALTERNATIVES considered involved sending the Jay students in the apartment complexes to other Des Plaines schools, High Ridge Knolls, Devonshire or Einstein.

According to Nita Stamm, chairman of the boundary committee, the children from the three apartment complexes will be bused to Brentwood, just as they would have been bused to Jay, due to heavy traffic conditions in the area.

The public hearing next week to discuss the proposed changes will start at 8 p.m.

Police say resident filed false report

A 19-year-old Mount Prospect man was charged with disorderly conduct Tuesday after he had allegedly filed a false report on an automobile theft.

Arrested was Alan Swanson, 304 N. School St., who will appear Sept. 11 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Police said Swanson reported his car as stolen from a parking lot at the Arlington Pop Shop on Central Road Sunday night. However, police said they found the car in a field behind the store.

Reportedly, the youth told police he lied about the theft because he could not remove the station wagon from the field and feared telling his father.

County kills parks try to buy Rob Roy

The County Forest Preserve District has turned down a request by Northwest suburban park districts to buy the Rob Roy Golf Course to preserve it as open space.

Richard Buck, chief landscape architect for the forest preserve district, said Wednesday acquisition of the course "wouldn't be the easiest thing for us to do."

Buck had contacted Max D. Lyle, president of the Prospect Heights Park District, at the park district's request, to set up a meeting between the two districts. However, Buck made clear during the conversation that thore is no need for a meeting because the forest preserve district could not consider buying the golf course.

EFFORTS HAVE BEEN made on a variety of fronts to buy the 180-acre golf course and adjoining 20-acre driving range in order to block multifamily development of the course.

Kenroy Inc., Skokie, has proposed building 2,350 condominium units while retaining an 18-hole golf course. Its request to annex the property to Mount Prospect and rezone it for the "Golfstream" development is pending before the village's zoning board of appeals,

A lazy sun peeked through scattered clouds into a Hanover Park backyard and onto the bare bottom of Jim Wills, who once again was out to prove there's nothing wrong with nude sunbathing.

However, Hanover Park police did not look favorably on the situation and arrested the skinny, 51-year-old marketing statistician on a charge of disorderly conduct after a neighbor, whom police declined to identify, filed a complaint.

Wills, 7102 Meadowbrook Ln., is looking for either a conviction on the charge or another in a string of acquittals he hopes to achieve. A similar incident staged last August in his backyard brought charges of public indecency and disorderly conduct, which were dismissed after a trial and retrial in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

LAST YEAR'S incident was staged with the help of his lawyer, William Stukas, and a prearranged complainant.

At 1:10 p.m. Wednesday, Wills stalked naked out of the rear door of his home, where newsmen had gathered. He said at the time he did not know if a neighbor would complain to authorities.

He expects a test case on the legality of browning in the buff. His acquittal last year at the branch court level is not binding on other judges. Wills said he hopes to put together a series of acquittals so police won't arrest him again or be convicted so he could try to have the conviction overturned in appellate court.

"I don't want to be arrested. That shows how much this religious thing is pushing me," said Wills. It is a "personal sacrifice" for him to chuck his clothes and go into the small backyard of his residential neighborhood in northeast Hanover Park, he added.

WILLS, WHO CALLED himself a religious Catholic, said he started nude sunbathing several years ago after a "religious awakening" that there is nothing wrong with the naked human form. "It was a strengthening at that time, and it didn't go away."

Lying on his stomach and at times on his side, Wills thumbed through a book, "The Pain of Being Human," while saying he had sunbatheed in the raw at secluded places in DuPage County since the acquittal on the earlier charges. Three young boys in the yard directly behind Wills' ignored the incident for awhile, but later began to chant, "Put your clothes on, Wills."

Three policemen appeared in the yard, and Sgt. Louis Bervid asked Wills to go inside his home and told him that if he did not he would be arrested.

NEIGHBOR JERRY WIGGINS watched the arrest with interest, saying, "The guy's a nut. I feel sorry for his poor wife. They ought to lock him up and be done with it."

Wiggins said he would not object if Wills' backyard was hidden behind a tall covered fence, but now teen-aged girls in the neighborhood could see through the short, chain-link fence. "They (the neighbors) just shake their heads," Wiggins noted. "Everyone laughs about it, but you can only laugh so long."

Wills, who has two daughters and a grandchild, was released after posting $25 cash bond pending an appearance at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 15, in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Policemen given order to enforce bike violations

by TOM VON MALDER

Bicyclists in Mount Prospect will have a rough time of it if they don't obey traffic laws.

Chief Ralph J. Doney of the Mount Prospect police has alerted village policemen to enforce traffic infractions by bicyclists. Doney said that while they should not be considered a "crack down" on bicyclists, he has asked policemen to look more closely for bicycle traffic violations.

In the first six months of this year, there were 11 accidents involving cars and bicycles. This is an increase of two over the figure for the same period last year. Invariably, the bicylist is injured in such accidents, Doney said.

ANY ADULT — age 17 or over — who receives a ticket for a violation of the bicycle rules of the road must either pay a fine or appear in court. Doney disagress with this aspect of the law.

"I feel the law is discriminating today in drawing the line at age 17. If they are 16 and below you can't do a damn thing to them," Doney said. He added that most of the "bad" bicycle drivers are youths under age 17.

For this reason, Doney hopes to set up a sort of "court proceeding" this fall in which youthful offenders of the bicycle traffic rules will have to come in — perhaps on a Saturday — and watch bike safety films and listen to lectures on bike safety. Doney said Officer Friendly, who will be the liaison police officer to the elementary schools starting this fall, may act as "judge" in this bicycle court.

DONEY SAID THE purpose behind such a program would not be to collect money through fines, but to instill the safety message in children by using someone who would be considered an authority figure, such as a judge or Officer Friendly.

For the moment, however, Doney said the police department is "not ready to handle a large volume of bicycle tickets."

In a related matter, Doney said the bicycle theft rate in the village remains high. Through the end of June, there were 139 reported bicycle thefts this year. Last year's total for the whole year was 341.

Police give tips to make bicycling safe

More than ever before, in this age of gasoline shortages, people are using bicycles to get around.

The Mount Prospect Police Dept. has issued the following basic bicycle safety rules:

- Stop for all red lights and stop signs.
- Always ride in the same direction as the automobile traffic.
- Night riders should have a white light on the front of the bike and an approved reflector at the rear.
- A bell or horn is required.
- The right-of-way should be yielded to pedestrians and bicycles should not be ridden on sidewalks.
- Extreme caution should be used when passing parked cars and bicyclists should be on the alert for sudden openings of car doors or autos backing out of driveways.
- Never hitch a ride on the back of a truck or car.
- Never ride two on a bicycle built for one.
- Always keep the brakes in proper working order.
- Look both ways before entering an intersection that is not controlled either by a stop light or stop sign.
- Use hand signals to let drivers know when changing directions or stopping.
- Do not weave in and out of traffic as that is inviting an accident.

Doney said residents can help cut down the number of bicycle thefts by adhering to five simple rules.

The first rule, he said, is to lock a bicycle every time it is left unattended. Second, if a bicycle is not being used, it should not be left out in sight but should be put away in a locked room, garage or basement.

ALL BICYCLES should be registered with the police department and a special pen at the police station can be used to mark each bike individually. The fourth rule is to record the bicycle's serial number and the location and type of individual identifying mark put on the vehicle.

Finally, a "high quality" lock and case-hardened chain should be used to lock the bicycle. Chains which can be cut with wire cutters and easy-to-pick locks should be avoided.

If a bicycle is lost, the police department should be notified and the serial number and identifying mark should be given to the police. The police can then check each recovered bicycle to see if the serial number or identifying mark match

Recovered bicycles that are not claimed or identified are auctioned off by the police department each year.

$23,900 bid to buy Hillcrest Slough piece

The Prospect Heights Park Board will offer $23,900 for the south half of the Hillcrest Slough in Prospect Heights.

If the offer is rejected by the current owners, condemnation proceedings to acquire the slough site will start 10 days after the offer has been sent out by the park district.

The park district, in a resolution, stated its purpose is to preserve the slough as a wildlife refuge and open space. The south slough is about 11 6 acres.

The district is in the process of trying to buy the north end of the slough, a tract of about 13 acres.

No Mount Shire compromise yet

No decision has been reached by the Mount Prospect Village Board on a compromise that reportedly would permit some apartments to be built in the Mount Shire subdivision while retaining some open space.

The village board, meeting in executive session Tuesday night, discussed a proposal by developer Salvatore DiMucci Jr., but did not reach a conclusion, according to Mayor Robert D. Teichert.

Teichert said board members raised some questions about the offer, which he will convey to DiMucci. The board is to further consider the compromise attempt in executive session Aug. 6.

Teichert would not comment on specifics of the plan. According to one source, apartments would be built on the northern half of the 5.5-acre site at Palm and Tamarack drives, and the southern half would be dedicated as a park.

The northern part of the property is adjacent to the Mount Shire Apartments, while the southern part is next to single family homes.

The compromise is an attempt to resolve a court dispute. DiMucci sued the village in 1969 after the village turned down his request to rezone the property for 119 apartment units. Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne urged the two sides to attempt to reach an out-of-court settlement.

Residents of the Mount Shire subdivision have opposed apartment construction, saying it would be incompatible with the neighborhood.

Unbuildable soil found at site of sports complex

Soil borings at the proposed site for the Prospect Heights Park District community center-sports complex have revealed several soft spots.

Park Board Pres. Max Lyle Wednesday said the district will have the site, where the Lions Park pool is now located, excavated and filled with good soil. Lyle said three or four of the 12 soil borings revealed peat about 12 feet down.

The fill project could cost an additional $25,000 but will probably cost less, Lyle said. The community center and renovation of the existing pool is a $650,000 project. The site is located on Camp McDonald Road east of Elm Street.

IN OTHER PARK district news, newly appointed Comr. Robert M. Barut, 417 Dorset Ln., was sworn in at Tuesday's park board meeting.

The park board also voted to reduce the price of pool passes by half for district residents. The reduced rate passes, which are available now, will be good for the remaining six weeks of the current pool season

Pool revenue so far this year was reported at $7,050. This is slightly more than $100 ahead of last year's revenue figure.

Lyle informed the park board of the possibility that the equalizer factor used to determine assessed valuation may be reduced this year from 1 59 to 1 48. Lyle said the district's total assessed valuation, which was $32 million last year, could be reduced by as much as 6 per cent unless there has been enough new construction to offset the reduction.

The tax money the district receives is based on the district's assessed valuation.

Shop center hearing may be postponed

A scheduled public hearing tonight on a request to annex property on Kensington Road near the Randhurst Shopping Center for a 13-story apartment-office building is expected to be postponed.

The Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals is slated to hear the petition, along with a companion petition to annex a small shopping center on Euclid Avenue, east of Randhurst. However, Robert Moore, attorney for petitioner J. M. Brickman, has indicated he will seek a continuance.

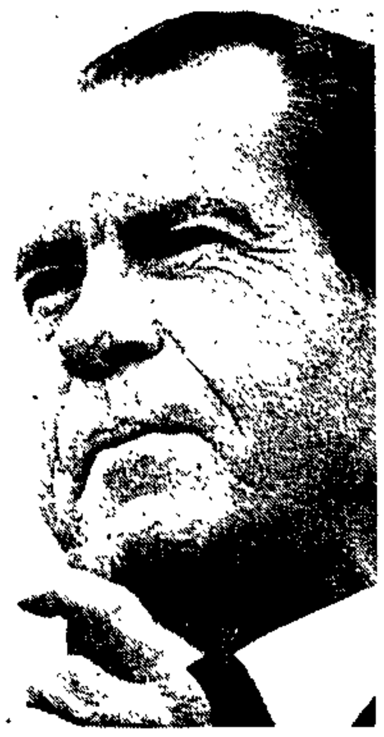
Nixon will give up tapes



RICHARD M. NIXON

The Supreme Court ruled and President Nixon obeyed Wednesday, agreeing to turn over subpoenaed tapes of presidential conversations for the Watergate coverup trial.

In its dramatic ruling, the court unanimously rejected Nixon's arguments of presidential privilege and ordered him to give the tapes and records of 64 conversations to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's announcement that he will obey the decision came seven hours later when White House Atty. James D. St. Clair said the President was disappointed but would follow the high court's order "in all respects."

"While I am of course disappointed in the results, I respect and accept the court's decision and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," St. Clair quoted Nixon as saying.

THE DECISION did not involve the President's dispute with the House Judiciary Committee, which has sought tapes and records on its own and been defied by Nixon on the same grounds of executive privilege. The committee began debate Wednesday on articles of impeachment against the President.

In his announcement, St. Clair said

by BOB LAHEY

President Nixon's announced intention to comply with a Supreme Court order to surrender disputed White House tapes to the special prosecutor in the Watergate case produced a wave of relief from both his backers and his opponents last night.

But there remained a deep vein of feeling that any further legal maneuvering — or reluctance by the President to supply the same materials to the House Judiciary Committee — would lead inevitably to the impeachment and removal from office of President Nixon.

The historic Supreme Court ruling yesterday made adamant the principle that no one, not even a president, may set himself above a ruling of the court.

But it did not address itself to the question of whether President Nixon should comply with the demands of the House Judiciary Committee to inspect the same tape recordings in its impeachment inquiry.

YESTERDAY'S momentous developments surrounding the major branches of government produced varying reactions from close observers of the impeachment proceedings:

In hearing Dwyer School charges

NEC governing unit showed real concern: Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick said Wednesday that the Northwest Education Cooperative governing board "showed real concern and sensitivity" when they heard charges of improper operation of the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children.

The board heard nine present and former teachers, accompanied by Martwick, make their charges, in a closed door meeting that lasted for more than three hours.

The teachers have charged that students in the Dwyer program have been unnecessarily physically punished, that Dwyer clinical director John Whipple and other members of the staff are unqualified, and that Whipple has allowed "unprofessional" behavior among staff at the school.

FOLLOWING the meeting, Martwick and his staff commended the teachers who had made the charges for their courage. Martwick said he had told the governing board that he hoped for a fairly quick response to the situation.

Martwick also said, "The governing board was very receptive. I think they showed a real sense of sensitivity and concern for youngsters in the program — which was great."

Following the departure of Martwick and the teachers making the charges, the board went into closed session with a group of teachers now involved with the program who had appeared to support Whipple and refute the charges.

The teachers and teachers aides, all but one of whom, currently are teaching in the Dwyer summer school program, said they feel the charges against the program made by former and present staff members are untrue and unfair.

The group appeared at the Kirk Center in Palatine as the governing board was going into a closed session with those making the charges and officials from Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office. The group asked the board to hear their defense of the program after those making the charges finished their presentation.

The teachers supporting the program defended their qualifications and said the charges are hurting the children and parents involved in the program.

William Wallinger, a teacher of intermediate classes, at Dwyer said, "Some of my kids have come up to me and asked me how I have abused them. The parents want to send their kids and the kids want to come and if these allegations were true why would that be?"

Whipple and his attorney were not invited to the closed meeting. Whipple has asked for a public hearing on the charges to give him the opportunity to cross-examine those making the charges against him.

Among the specific charges some of the teachers have made against Whipple is that he does not have an administrative

Crackdown on drugs in parks weighed

Arlington Heights officials may order a "get tough policy" in an attempt to curb illegal drug use, drinking and disorderly conduct in village parks.

Sentiment for a crackdown on misconduct in the parks, which has cropped up this summer for the third straight year, was voiced by several village trustees in a meeting with park district officials Tuesday night.

Measures under consideration include:

- Police arrest of persons caught drinking or using drugs in the parks.
- An enforced ban on night auto parking in the parks and on the side streets around them.
- A consistent police policy of park patrol and apprehension of violators.

"THE PARKS IN these residential areas belong to the people who live around them and there is no reason they should be bothered with these problems. I think if we're vigilant, the troublemakers will go some place else," Trustee Frank Palmatier said.

Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave., was closed by police order last Friday night after police found widespread evidence of drugs and liquor among a crowd of 150 young people.

There also have been major problems reported at Frontier Park, 1033 N. Kennicott Dr., and Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

However, there were no arrests made in connection with Friday's park closing, a situation Tom Thornton, park district director, said he cannot understand.

"I want to talk to the police and find out why, if all this was going on, no one was arrested," Thornton said. "We have to get at what their policy is going to be."

IN THE PAST, police have said arrests in the park often do not stand up in court unless the police complaint is signed by an individual resident.

"Even if some of these cases are thrown right out of court, I think it would be worthwhile to make a few arrests," said Trustee David Griffin, adding his voice to the calls for more militant police work in the park.

Another trustee, J. Burton Thompson, suggested that the park district might want to create its own police force solely to patrol its parks.

Park Comr. Kay Muller said she was opposed to a separate park police force

IT'S TIME TO go in. Sgt. Louis Bervid of the Hanover Park police asks Jim Wills to stop sunbathing nude in his backyard.

After a long talk with Bervid, Wills refused to go inside his home and was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Re-buff

It's a 'sacrifice' for Jim to do his sunbathing; won't somebody please convict him or let him alone?

School Supt. Donald Strong town's highest paid official

Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Supt. Donald V. Strong will receive a 5.5 per cent salary increase to $38,000, thus making him the highest paid public official in the village. Last year he received a salary of $36,000.

Donald V. Strong

He will earn $500 a year more than Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson who draws a salary of $37,500.

Strong, who has been Dist. 25 superintendent since 1968, will continue to receive prior benefits including a 20-day vacation, use of an automobile, major medical insurance and a $5,000 life insurance policy.

Other administrators including school principals will receive salary hikes ranging from 7 to 10 per cent. Salaries range from $18,000 to $26,800.

The increases were determined by administrators and were based on individual duties and merit.

The salary hikes are contingent upon the adoption of the school budget on Aug. 29 by the Board of Education.

Plans for law office rejected by planners

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission, by one vote, rejected Wednesday a special-use permit for converting a single-family home into a law office.

John L. Colmar of Northbrook and attorney for Rolling Green Country Club, had asked the commission to approve his establishing offices in an existing house on the northwest corner of Chestnut Street and Palatine Road.

Comr. George Grulke said of his vote in opposition to the proposal that it failed to meet the requirements of providing for the public welfare and need. He said the special use permit ". . . is in effect spot zoning."

Grulke's "no" vote was joined by Norman Breyer, Lewis O'Donnell, Joseph Turley and William Hannum.

COLMAR SAID he planned to retain the residential character of the house and had already invested more than $15,000 in improvements along those lines. He further promised to return the building to residential use after 12 years.

Several residents of the area testified that approval of office use in the house would open the door for commercial zoning in the area.

Colmar said after the meeting he is considering moving into the house and in that way meeting the provisions in the zoning codes that allow professional offices in residences in R-3 zones.

He testified to the commission, "I will brush my teeth there to get the place."

Comr. Madeline Schroeder abstained from the voting. Her husband George had testified in opposition to Colmar's plans.

The commission will be forwarded to the Village Board of Trustees for final action.

Fire station work to begin soon

Buffalo Grove's new fire station will get under way as soon as construction materials can be obtained, according to Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

Now that a two-month strike by cement and material truck drivers has ended, Winter said nothing should stand in the way of construction of the $415,000 project.

The station will be built on two acres on the south-side of Dundee Road, west of Kingswood United Methodist Church. Winter said he hopes the station will be ready for occupancy in late winter or early spring.

When the station is finished, it will house six pieces of firefighting equipment. A pumper and ambulance will remain at the present station, 50 Raupp Blvd., to answer calls in the northern part of the district.

Overflow of applicants

19 teacher posts yet to be filled

Interviews for new teachers have tapered off in Arlington Heights School Dist. 25, but there are still 19 full-time positions to fill.

James E. Riebock, personnel director, said between 500 to 600 applicants have been interviewed since January. Only 50 of them will be hired.

"The applications started coming in by January, right after the holidays," Riebock said. "By March it was pretty heavy."

For a while as many as 30 applicants a day were seeking teaching jobs in Dist. 25. Last year the personnel office was swamped with thousands of credentials.

Riebock hopes to fill the 19 positions, which include special education and junior high teachers, in two to three weeks.

Currently there are 444 teachers employed by the district. Approximately 50 new teachers will be hired.

The turnover rate is expected to be the same as last year's 12 per cent, which, according to Riebock, is the lowest figure in years.

Additional teachers and other personnel as proposed in the 1974-75 school budget, will be hired when the budget is adopted by the Board of Education in August.

Scout paper drive

Boy Scout Troop 66 of St. James Parish in Arlington Heights, will hold its bimonthly paper drive from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Papers will be picked up at the curb in the area bounded by Arlington Heights Road, Euclid Avenue Northwest Highway, Wilke Road and Thomas Street.

Persons living outside of the area may bring paper to the parking lot located east of St. James grade school at 821 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Proceeds from the paper drives will be used to purchase additional Scouting equipment and to help defray the costs of summer camp.

PALATINE FIREMEN rush to the scene of Wednesday's fire at the Pinebrook Trace Apartment Complex in Palatine Township. Two juveniles are believed to have started the fire which caused $15,000 damage. The apartment buildings are not yet completed and have no tenants.

$15,000 damage in Palatine fire

Juveniles are suspected of starting a fire at the Pinebrook Trace Apartments in unincorporated Palatine Township Monday, causing an estimated $15,000 damage.

The Palatine Fire Dept. arrived at the fire at 4:15 p.m. and were assisted by units from the Long Grove, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights fire departments. It took approximately 20 minutes to extinguish the fire.

The fire started in a first flood storage area in a vacant apartment building and was confined to three apartments in the cener of the building, said Barney Langer, assistant fire chief.

Witnesses reported seeing two juveniles leave the building before the f :e started. Their names have been turned over to the Cook County Sheriff's Police Dept.

The state fire marshal and Palatine fire inspector, who are investigating the fire.

Pine Brook Trace Apartments are owned by Kassuba Development Corp. and have been vacant since Kassuba went bankrupt. There are 16 apartment buildings in the complex, all are unoccupied.

Andy Craig, a watchman for the complex, said there has been considerable vandalism in the apartments this summer and he has chased juveniles out several times. He also reported finding small fires and beer cans in the buildings.

At Jay School in Mount Prospect

Panel OKs new school boundaries

A boundary committee studying attendance patterns at John Jay School in Mount Prospect has approved a recommended change in boundaries, which eventually will send about 85 Mount Prospect school children to Des Plaines schools.

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 committee approved the change pending in public hearing on the matter Wednesday at Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines.

The committee will then present their recommendation to the Dist. 59 Board of Education.

The change will affect no children now attending Jay School, 1835 W. Pheasant Tr. The change will move children living in three apartment complexes along Busse Road south of Algonquin Road.

VERY FEW PERSONS now are living in the three complexes, Crystal Towers, Laurel Estates and Forest Cove. Only one, Crystal Towers, is nearing full completion. Projections predict that the three complexes will have an estimated 85 elementary-age school children when finished.

Instead of attending Jay School, children from the three complexes will attend Brentwood School, 260 W. Dulles Rd., Des Plaines.

The charge was made necessary because Jay School is operating at capacity. Brentwood, at the same time, is substanticially under capacity.

The committee had earlier eliminated other alternatives to relieving overcrowded conditions at Jay, including buying mobile classrooms, building an addition to the school, holding split shifts or busing one grade level to another school.

OTHER ALTERNATIVES considered involved sending the Jay students in the apartment complexes to other Des Plaines schools, High Ridge Knolls, Devonshire or Einstein.

According to Nita Stamm, chairman of the boundary committee, the children from the three apartment complexes will be bused to Brentwood, just as they would have been bused to Jay, due to heavy traffic conditions in the area.

The public hearing next week to discuss the proposed changes will start at 8 p.m.

Strike delays Ramada groundbreaking

Uncle Andy's Cow Palace will be torn down during a second phase of the development and a one-story office building will be constructed after the Ramada Inn is completed.

Groundbreaking for the Ramada Inn adjacent to Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in Palatine is at least a month away.

Construction of the 166-room motel was scheduled to be under way by Aug. 1 but has been delayed because of the cement drivers' strike, said John Bakos, owner and developer of the Ramada Inn.

Bakos said it will take 12 months to complete the Ramada Inn, which will be located on 5.75 acres at Northwest Highway and Quentin Road.

The Ramada Inn site was annexed to the village in May, clearing the way for construction of the motel. The motel was blocked by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals when Bakos' rezoning request for the site was denied.

The plans call for a four-story motel and one-story commercial building housing managerial, offices, banquet facilities and a restaurant.

Special report on Centner to be released

A special report of the Palatine Police and Fire Commission outlining the reasons for the forced resignation of former police chief Robert Centner will be released today.

A meeting of the Palatine Village Board is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St. in Palatine. The police and fire commission held a five-month series of hearings into the reasons for Centner's forced resignation.

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones said that he received a copy of the report Wednesday afternoon from Paul Jung, chairman of the Police and Fire Commission. Jones said that he did not intend to release or comment on the report until tonight's meeting, and added that it was up to the village board to decide whether action will be taken on the recommendations in the report.

The newly elected village board said Centner lacked administrative ability and conducted poor drug control programs, among other charges. He was forced to resign June 25, 1973, and a massive petition drive forced a public hearing.

Centner has served as a lieutenant since then and a new police chief, Jerry Bratcher, was hired from Rochelle, Ill.

Request for $120,000 to buy park land tabled

A request from the Arlington Heights Park District for $120,000 to buy additional park land has been tabled, pending a detailed breakdown of cash contributions to the village's land dedication fund.

Trustee Alice Harms has asked that the village administration break down where cash contributions, received by the village from developers in lieu of land dedication, have come from in order to determine whether the additional park land being requested could properly be bought from the fund.

The park board has asked for money to buy two acres at Dryden Park, 1.3 acres at Greens Park, two lots adjacent to Frontier Park and an as yet undetermined site near Chelsea Square.

Total cost of the properties comes to about $120,000, according to 1972 land value estimates. However, the current balance in the village's land dedication fund is $32,677.

Arlington Heights' ordinance which permits cash contributions for public land purchases specifies that the money contributed should be used to meet a land need directly attributable to the development from which the money comes.

By knowing where the money that has been contributed to the fund over the years has come from, the village board's finance committee can judge whether there has been cash donated in the vicinity of the proposed park additions.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said it would take two to three weeks to compile the cash breakdown.

Mrs. Reid hiring to get formal approval tonight

The Dist. 21 Board of Education tonight is expected to approve a contract hiring former school board member Mary Joan Reid of Buffalo Grove as public relations and volunteer coordinator for the district.

The meeting is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Mrs. Reid resigned two weeks ago after nearly nine years on the school board to accept the position with the district at an annual salary of $9,000.

Today is the deadline for Dist. 21 residents to apply for the school board seat vacated by Mrs. Reid. Letters of interest should be directed to Jack Lane, school board president, in care of the administration building.

The board will interview candidates and appoint someone to serve until the school board election next April within the next 30 days.

Other items on the agenda for tonight's meeting include:

- Special report on art education in Dist. 21 junior high schools.
- Bus transportation bids.
- Towel bids.
- Home economics equipment bids.

Besides Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, Dist. 21 also serves portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.
